The Memorial Mass for Morland V. Strom, 75, will be at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday at St. Michael's Catholic church with Rev. Paul Dalton as the celebrant. A graveside service will follow in the Olympic Memorial gardens with military honors by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Section 8 Format Altered

A change in the format for the 1984 Section 8 high school hockey tournament to be held in Thief River Falls was recently adopted by the Region 8A-8AA representatives, it was reported by Frank Fee of Crookston, the Section 8 hockey publicist.

As urged by the Section 8 hockey coaches, the top four spots in the 1984 Section 8 tournament will be selected by coaches' seeding votes. Under the old format the top four regular season finishers in the Section 8 standings were guaranteed berths in the Section 8 tournament quarterfinals. Now, however, if the coaches feel that a fifth or sixth place Bemidji or Crookston has a stronger team than a third or fourth place Alexandria or Lake of the Woods, they can seed them that way.

After the top four teams are seeded, rest of the tournament draw will revert back to the final regular season Section 8 standings, based on won-lost percentages.

North and South sub-section format will again be used, with a newcomer, East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, being assigned to the North line-up.

Coaches will seed the top four teams by noon on Wednesday, February 15. North and South sub-section tournament play starts the next day, Thursday, February 16, and continues Saturday, February 18, and Monday, February 20, with the higher seeded team always playing at home.

Those games will determine which two teams from each sub-section who will join the four already-seeded teams in the Section 8 quarterfinals. One other change the coaches asked for and got was that teams will retain their pre-tournament seed throughout the entire tournament, instead of inheriting a team's higher seed if you should beat them.

Section 8 tournament games will feature quarterfinal doubleheaders here Friday and Saturday, February 24 and 25, with single semifinal games scheduled Monday, February 27, and Wednesday, February 29 (instead of the normal Tuesday playing date because of precinct caucauses that night). Section 8 finals would be played Friday, March 2.

Fee also mentioned that the 1982-83 All-Section 8 hockey team could almost be called an all-academic team, as well.

East Grand Forks defenseman Craig Mack carries a perfect 4.0 grade-point-average (GPA) along with him to the University of Minnesota. He has never had a B. Warroad center John Bjorkman will attend the University of Michigan with his 3.9 GPA and Thief River Falls center Tim Bergland will go to the University of Minnesota with a 3.4 GPA.

Two Lake of the Woods players, Jeff Solheim and Jerry Peiper, were named to the National Honor Society, with Peiper headed to the University of Minnesota and Solheim is going to attend Army. Two Bemidji players that were on the All-Section 8 first team both carry over a 3.0 GPA: goalie Mike Sauer, who will attend the University of Minnesota, and center Don Smith, who is going to the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

University of Illinois Chicago Circle will have two members of the All-Section 8 second team, including center Mark Nordling of Hallock, who has a 3.2 GPA and Roseau center Chad Johnson, with a 2.7 GPA. Thief River Falls center Tom Kenville will take a 3.0 GPA to Clarkson.

Dave Cauble of Lake of the Woods was also named to the National Honor Society and will attend Army, and East Grand Forks forward Jeff Bowen, with a 3.4 GPA, will either attend Wisconsin, University of North Dakota or Bemidji State.

It would seem that athletics and academic studies do work well together.

Fee finishes an off-season newsletter by guessing that maybe as many as seven Section 8 players will be selected in the June 8 National Hockey League draft. Top picks, according to scouts who confided in Fee, should be Craig Mack, Bob Caufield of Detroit Lakes, Tim Bergland and Chad Johnson.

+ Cal Marvin, writing in the Warroad Pioneer, says, "Don't look for David Christian to be wearing a (Winnipeg) Jets uniform next year." Marvin figures the former Warroad high school and U.S. Olympic hockey team star will be continuing his NHL career in Hartford. Marvin also announced that the Warroad Lakers, St. Boniface Mohawks, East Kildonan Millionairs and Steinbach Huskies have added the Morden Bombers into the CASH League for the 1983-84 hockey season.

+Crookston lefthander Craig Stahlecker struck out 17 batters Saturday as the Pirates beat Thompson, N.D. 8-1 in the first round of the four-team Crookston Boosters invitational baseball tournament. In the finals, Tony Amon, another Crookston lefthander, had a five-hit shutout until Ada collected four consecutive one-out singles in the bottom of the seventh for a 2-1 win. Thief River Falls, weathered out of two games against Crookston this spring, will face the Pirates in a 4 p.m. doubleheader Thursday at Crookston, with a trip to Ada planned Monday.

+Bemidji high school baseball team lost the services of righthanded pitcher Doug Garrigan due to pulled ligaments in his pitching shoulder. The Prowlers were to play the Lumberjacks today (Wednesday) in a 3:30 p.m. game at Bemidji.

NORTHLAND BASE RUNNER Bob Rockwood stepped back on the bag ahead of the tag by Fergus Falls first baseman Marc Helmrichs on a fifth inning pick-off attempt during the first game of Monday's community college baseball doubleheader played in Thief River Falls. In a showdown for the Northwest Division title and a berth in the 1983 Minnesota Community College (MCCC) state baseball tournament, the Spartans and Northmen played nine scoreless innings before Fergus Falls emerged a 3-0 winner in ten innings. That clinched the pennant for the visitors, who tacked on a 13-1 second game victory.

Northmen Bow Out Of Division Race . . .

Spartans Win Title-Deciding Showdown 3-0 In Ten Innings

Championship showdown in the 1983 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division produced a dandy 10-inning baseball game Monday that was scoreless until Fergus Falls pushed three runs across the plate in the top of the tenth for a title-deciding 3-0 victory over Northland in Thief River Falls.

Northland needed a sweep over front-running Fergus Falls to remain in the Northwest Division pennant race, and when the Spartans emerged the winner in the emotional first-game struggle, the Northmen did a disappearing act in the nightcap, won by the visitors 13-1 in five innings.

That resulted in a 10-2 first-place Northwest Division finish for the Spartans. For their efforts they not only earned a berth in the 1983 MCCC state baseball tournament, they'll get to host the four-team affair Saturday, May 28.

Meanwhile, Northland fell to 5-5 heading into a season-ending doubleheader at the University of Minnesota-Crookston Tuesday. Fergus Falls left 13-7 overall, Northland 12-7.

"The first one was a helluva baseball game. Nobody deserved to lose that one," observed Northland coach Chet Engelman. "The second game we just embarrassed ourselves."

Fergus Falls 3
Northland 0

Both teams had their chances, but good pitching and excellent defensive play on both sides left the teams scoreless in Monday's first game until Fergus Falls finally broke the ice with a three-run tenth inning.

With one out in the tenth, Fergus Falls lead-off batter Rick Zollner bounced a single through the middle and Todd Pilgrim dropped a base hit into center field for a perfect 5-for-5 game at the plate. Both runners moved up on an errant pick-off throw to first base by Northland catcher Dave Kays. Greg Ellingson was given an intentional walk to load the bases and Monte Fredrickson broke the scoreless tie when he dribbled a two-run single through the middle of a pulled-in infield that was looking for the play at the plate. An infield ground-out by Lonnie Benziner plated the third run of the inning.

Before that it was a game of missed opportunities for both sides. Fergus Falls had runners in scoring position with less than two out in each of the first three innings, but each time the Spartans were stiffled by the pitching of Northland freshman lefthander Kevin Sanders of Thief River Falls. Then in the eighth, Kays, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, threw out two runners trying to steal second.

Northland wasn't given as many opportunities, and those that did present themself were quickly wasted. Four Northland runners were lost on the bases, two of them on double play throws from the outfield.

"It was an excellent ball game," acknowledged Fergus Falls coach Jim Swanson. "It's too bad somebody had to lose it. Both pitchers were in command. It was a good game for a championship game."

Ellingson, a quick-working sophomore righthander from Breckenridge who is the ace on the Fergus Falls staff, pitched an outstanding ten-inning, three-hit shutout, striking out 12 and walking two. And he was backed by key plays in the field.

"We made the big plays on defense," confirmed Swanson. "You work on those things all year, and when they work in a game where it really counts, you're excited about it. If you expect to be a championship team, you have to play like a champion in those type of situations."

Fergus Falls did.

There were 11 Fergus Falls base hits and six Northland errors that led to a 13-1 victory for the Spartans as the Northmen put on a less-than-inspiring performance in the doubleheader nightcap after having been eliminated from the divisional pennant race in the opener.

Monte Fredrickson was 4-for-4 at the plate with two doubles and four runs-batted in for the winners, who jumped out to a 3-0 first inning lead and had a 7-1 bulge through two frames of what would turn out to be a shortened five-inning, ten-run rule debacle.

Parks Observe Open House

Visitors to Minnesota state parks on Sunday, June 5, will get in free, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Don Davidson, director of state parks, said one day each year is designated as an "Open House Day" and the usual requirement for a motor vehicle entrance permit is waived.

"We want to encourage those who have never visited a state park, or who have not been inside of one for several years, to come and see the improvements and developments that have taken place recently," he explained.

Many of the parks will have special displays or special activities for the park visitor.

Local news media will report on any special events at nearby parks. The open house has been held annually since 1971.

Davison noted that the regular charges for services such as camping and electricity, canoe and boat rentals, and firewood will be in effect June 5.

"There is no charge for using the picnic areas, swimming beaches, trails or for participating in the parks' naturalist programs."

Girls Golf Team To Host EGF Thursday

Host Mahnomen, led by medalist Kathy Spilde, won the Indians' invitational high school girls golf meet Monday, an 11-team field that found Thief River Falls finishing sixth.

Mahnomen carded a 408 to win it, followed by Roseau at 411, Red Lake Falls 435, Crookston 444, Fosston 461, Thief River Falls 469, East Grand Forks 474, Bagley 535, Mahnomen junior varsity 552, Norman County West 560 and Clearbrook 584.

Spilde shot a 90 to win medal honors, with Cheryl Byfuglien of Roseau shooting a 95 and Sharlene Culp of the Rams finishing at 96.

Michelle Olson led Thief River Falls with rounds of 62-50 for a 112, while Karin Wennberg went 59-59 for a 118; Kathy Reuter 65-54 for a 119; Kirsten Pollick 62-58 for a 120; Heidi Tanquist 62-60 for a 122; and Paula Bergan 65-65 for 130.

Thief River Falls will make its third and final home appearance of the 1983 season Thursday with a 1 p.m. dual meet vs. East Grand Forks on the Thief River Country Club course. The Prowlers finish their schedule Monday at Crookston at 3 p.m. and Tuesday at Moorhead at 9:30 a.m.

Region 8AA girls golf tournament will be played Tuesday, May 31, at 9:30 a.m. at Moorhead.

LHS Girls Finish Second At Roseau

Lincoln high school girls track team had a second-place finish Monday in a ten-team Roseau invitational meet.

Host Roseau won it with 133 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 87, East Grand Forks 80, Warren 51, Beausejour 38, Marshall County Central-Middle River 34, Blackduck 26, Lake of the Woods 12, Warroad 4 and Indus 0.

"We were very happy with what we got," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It was a good meet for us."

Schafer was most impressed with a pair of Thief River Falls seventh graders: Jackie Smith, a runner-up finished in the 3200 meters, and Cindy Kruta, who placed third in the 400 and fifth in the 800 meters.

"Jackie ran a super race, her best time of the year," noted Schafer. "Kruta had a great 400-800 combination."

Freshman Renae Berg was also singled out, with a third place finish in the 100, plus a pair of anchor relay legs on the first-place 800-meter unit and the third place 400-meter outfit.

Thief River Falls' two wins for the day came in the relay races. Tricia Armstrong, Sherry Sabo, Hildegunn Nyland and Berg ran a 1:54.04 in the 800, while Paula Wilkens, Georgia Howard, Stacie Kruta and Nyland ran a 4:20.7 in the 1600.

While the Lincoln girls ran at Roseau Monday, a scheduling mix-up forced the Lincoln boys to miss a Grafton invitational appearance that they had down as a Tuesday event only to learn it was run Monday.

Both Thief River Falls teams have two regular season meets left. They'll appear together at the East Grand Forks Lions invitational Friday at 4:15 p.m. and will both be at the Roseau twilight invitational Monday at 5 p.m.

North Half Region 8AA boys and girls track meet will be held Saturday, May 28, at Moorhead.

IT WOULD HAVE been a successful suicide squeeze bunt, but Fergus Falls runner Greg Mavis had to go back to third base when batter Brett Schmidt of the Spartans fouled off the pitch in the second inning of Monday's doubleheader nightcap against Northland in Thief River Falls. Northland catcher Dave Kays was after the ball when it was called foul. The Spartans won both ends of the community college baseball twinbill, 3-0 and 13-1, clinching the 1983 Northwest Division title.

Northwomen Finish Season With 3-15 Mark

Four losses closed out the 1983 Northland community college women's softball season as the Northwomen ended the year at 3-15.

Coach Deb Jacobson's Northland squad closed out its Northwest Division schedule Wednesday at Fergus Falls, losing both ends of the doubleheader 7-3 and 11-5.

On Saturday the Northwomen participted in a strong 10-team Anoka-Ramsey invitational, losing a first-round 8-1 game to Inver Hills and dropping a 14-0 consolation round game to Rochester.

Northland actually had a pair of short-lived leads at Fergus Falls. The Northwomen opened the first game by scoring in the top of the first inning on back-to-back game-opening walks, an RBI single by Marlys Huot and a passed ball for another run and a 2-0 edge. A triple by Huot and an RBI single by Lori Bulzomi gained Northland a 3-3 tie in the third, but Fergus Falls broke it open with a four-run fifth for a 7-3 win. Northland had a 7-6 base hit edge, but also had five errors, while Fergus Falls played errorless ball.

Fergus Falls once again surrendered a pair of first-inning Northland runs in the second game Wednesday on RBI singles by Bulzomi and Kim Phillips. But the Spartans went ahead 3-2 in the bottom of the inning and scored five in the second en route to the 11-5 win. Errors were even at three-apiece in this one, but Fergus Falls had a 12-7 base hit edge.

Strong pitching shut down Northland's offense Saturday. The Northwomen collected just one hit in the 8-1 loss to Inver Hills — a fifth inning RBI double by Kim Dehann — and were held hitless in the 14-0 rout at the hands of Rochester. They were five-inning tournament games.

Federal Funds

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources received $1,260,520 in federal aid monies during fiscal year 1983 for assistance with its fisheries programs, the fourth highest figure among all the states.

State ranked seventh among the states in the receipt of federal aid funds for wildlife restoration projects with a figure of $2,951,643.

Funds to finance the fish and wildlife restoration programs are derived from federal excise taxes on hunting and fishing equipment.

For the entire nation, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service announced that $32.7 million was apportioned for fish restoration projects and $88.2 million for wildlife projects during the fiscal year.

Under the programs, states are required to expand their own monies for projects and are then reimbursed for up to 75 per cent of the costs by the federal government.

FERGUS FALLS base runner Rick Zollner tried to score from third on an infield ground ball, but was thrown out at the plate by Northland third baseman Bob Rockwood as catcher Dave Kays applied the tag in the first inning of Monday's baseball doubleheader opener. The out at the plate proved to be a big play as the teams went through the regulation seven innings without a score, and kept it up until the tenth when Fergus Falls finally emerged a 3-0 winner to decide the 1983 Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) Northwest Division title. The Spartans added a 13-1 victory in the second game.

UMC Sweeps Northland In Final Baseball Series

Northland community college baseball season ended Tuesday with a doubleheader loss at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. The Trojans swept the rival Northmen 9-6 and 7-3.

It was a disappointing finish to what started out to be a fine 1983 season for the Northmen, who lost their final five games to finish the year at 12-9.

"We didn't close it out in very happy fashion," admitted Northland coach Chet Engelman. "In the books it was still the best season we've ever had, but at one point we were 12-4 and playing well."

Northland was in the thick of the Northwest Division pennant race until Monday when Fergus Falls came to Thief River Falls and beat the Northmen 1-0 in a title-clinching ten-inning first game and moped up with a 13-3 second inning rout.

The extra-inning loss that took the Northmen out of the running for a Minnesota Community College Conference (MCCC) state tournament berth took most of the steam out of the club, admitted Engelman. "We just didn't show much intensity after that," he said.

UMC 7
Northland 3

An eight-run third inning lifted the University of Minnesota-Crookston to a 9-6 first game victory Tuesday.

Trailing 2-0, UMC broke it open by banging out seven base hits in the third, starting with a lead-off home run by Dan Stetz. Mark Majeres had a bases-loaded double in there that scored three runs and helped him coast to the pitching decision.

Jeff Cwikla had a two-run sixth inning home run for the Northmen, who tacked on two more in the seventh.

Fish Consumption Warnings Issued

State Health Department has updated and reissued its long-standing warning about eating fish from certain Minnesota lakes and rivers.

New advisory covers fish taken from lakes and rivers statewide. An earlier advisory, released in mid-April, applied only to fish taken from certain parts of the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers.

Department's fish consumption guidelines were revised in response to new studies conducted by the Minnesota Pollution Congrol Agency, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the state of Wisconsin. Studies provide new evidence that fish in some parts of the state are contaminated with mercury or polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), according to Department authorities.

Department's guidelines suggest that no one eat fish from the affected waters more than a specified number of times per month, or per year, depending on the kind of fish and where it was taken. Department has issued fish consumption advisories periodically since 1970, in an effort to limit human exposure to PCBs and mercury. Department's consumption guidelines were last revised in 1979

In addition to setting general fish consumption limits, the following recommendations were made:

+ For pregnant women, nursing mothers and children under six, limit consumption to half the amount suggested in the guidelines.

+ When possible, eat smaller fish rather than larger fish, because the larger fish tend to contain higher concentrations of mercury and PCBs.

+ When possible, eat learner kinds of fish, like walleye, northern pike or bass, rather than fatty fish like carp, channel catfish or white bass.

+ Before cooking, trim away the skin, belly fat and internal organs from the fish, to reduce PCB content.

+ Thoroughly cook each fish filet — rather than cold smoking or pickling it — to further reduce PCB content.

Minnesota Department of Health fish consumption guidelines, listing sites, fish species and maximum consumption per month:

FISHING OPENER was generally slow, with few fish reported caught. In spite of the fact that the sun was shining, the temperature hovered near freezing, and warm clothing was required to keep fishing for any length of time. This angler wading in the Red Lake River just below the power dam in Thief River Falls, observed a group of youngsters who had given up on fishing, preferring to spend their time tending a fire built on the banks. Apparently, he too decided there were more comfortable ways to spend the day, as he packed up and left shortly after the picture was taken.

FISHIN' TIPS

from . . . Tom Mann

DEAR TOM: Being a lure maker you should know the answer to my question. I see all colors of spinner blades, like red, green, yellow, copper, and nickel. I can't buy them all. Which is best?—Buzzer

MISTER BUZZER: I've made 'em all colors, even chartreuse and hot pink, for our spinner bait line. But, sales records and personal experiments narrow my personal choice to one—nickel. I'm convinced if fish won't hit nickel then you're better off at home catchin' up on your chores.

DEAR EXPERT: Just what is the favorite food of bass? I hear they eat most anything.—Call Me Curious

HELLO CURIOUS: Well, bluegills (bream in the south) are found about everywhere bass live, and make good forage. But, threadfin shad would have to be number one across the nation. I've got them in my experimental farm ponds and am very impressed with what they're doing for my bass population.

MORE AND MORE fishermen today are using downriggers in freshwater and catching more fish. But, not every fisherman can afford the windlass types which mount on the gunnel of a boat. Well, how about what I call "a poor man's downrigger?"

It's made by a friend of mine, Dan Gapen, and is called a Bait Walker. It's a keel-shaped lead on a "V" shaped wire and you can either cast it out or troll it. The lead walks the bottom while your lure swims above and behind it, rarely snagging on cover.

Dan uses it in conjunction with a Razorback wiggling lure and catches many sporting species such as bass, walleyes, northern pike, white bass, even an occasional channel catfish.

The whole idea is to get your lure right down on bottom and still effective is the oldtimey way of adding a lead weight, like a ball sinker, about two feet above your lure. You can lob it out from shore or troll it behind a boat. Big fish are deep and a downrigger rig will get down and knock on their front doors.

BRER TOM'S CLOSING TIP: A last-ditch, desperation trick to catch bottom-dwelling fish is to hook a frog through both lips, weight it to sink, and wind-drift it through deep, mid-lake holes . . . . a dirty trick to play on a frog, but deadly!

DNR NEWS

Night Fishing Ban

Department of Natural Resources announced that night fishing on Mille Lacs lake will be banned from May 21 through June 11.

No fishing will be allowed on the lake during the hours of 10 p.m. to 6 a.m.

Summer fishing season opened Saturday, May 14, meaning that night fishing will be allowed during the first week of the season.

DNR also ruled that the spearing season for northern pike on Mille Lacs will not open until December 20. (Spearing is allowed elsewhere in the state starting December 1.)

Officials said that in order to comply with a state law requiring that angling be reduced 3½ days for each day taken from the spearing season, the northern pike fishing season in 1984 will not open on Mille Lacs until July 21.

At the same time, the Department said that the whitefish and tullibee netting season on the lake will be limited to 15 days and will be open on 48 hours notice.

Purpose of the regulations, said officials, is to reduce fishing pressure on the populat lake and to ensure Mille Lacs remaining as one of the finest walleye lakes in the U.S.

They said that a stepped-up enforcement program will be in effect on the lake that will include road checks and intensive patrolling on the water by conservation officers.

There will also be continuous water quality monitoring, and an evaluation of the walleye fishery and of the effect of the new regulations to determine if further measures are necessary.

Boat Access Maps

Maps showing boat access sites to state lakes are now available from the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for 55 Minnesota counties.

Maps, which are free, show boaters and anglers the location of more than 1,900 sites where trailered boats may be launched into public waters.

You can receive an order form for these maps by calling the Minnesota Travel Information Center, toll free 1-800-652-9747 and ask for "Travel Information".

An order form for the maps can be obtained from the same source. Maps can also be requested by writing: DNR Trails and Waterways, Box 52, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155. A maximum of five maps can be ordered by an individual.

Location of access sites within the seven county metro area are all included on one map. The map can be ordered in the manner stated above.

Funds to acquire and develop public access sites are provided by the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR) from a special tax on cigarettes, from marine fuel taxes and a federal excise tax on fishing equipment.

Flash Flood Awareness

Governor Rudy Perpich has proclaimed May 22-28 flood awareness week in Minnesota, according to the Department of Natural Resources. This is the second year the state has called attention to the problems associated with flash floods.

During the week, the state departments of Public Safety, Emergency Services and Natural Resources (Division of Waters), and the National Weather Service will be focusing attention on the causes of flash floods and their hazards. Cooperating in the information campaigns will be the Association of County-Planning and Zoning Administrators, U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Officials say many flash flood deaths happen because warnings are not heeded. The typical flash flood results from continous rain over a particular area or watershed. In Minnesota, the potential flash flood season extends from May through mid-September.

People often ignore flash flood warnings, say officials, because they cannot actually see the flood warnings. They look outside, see no immediate danger, and do not feel threatened. The danger may be developing upstream, out of sight. It is vital that residents know what watch or warning signals mean, and heed them if they are activated.

If flooding has damaged a person's property in the past, evacuation may be the safest action if a warning has sounded.

In preparation for evacuation, have a flood-free evacuation route in mind or follow a route which has been desinated by your community. If you are driving during a flood watch or warning, stay tuned to local weather and road information. Stay clear of low-lying roads and bridges that may be inundated. If a flash flood warning is issued, go immediately to the nearest high ground.

Further information of flooding and flash flood awareness week can be had by contacting Ron Harnack, Land Use Management Section, DNR Division of Waters, 612-296-9226.

Tip Program

April was a relatively slow month for Minnesota's Turn In Poachers (TIP) program, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

Although the DNR's Enforcement Division received 66 phone calls on the special hot lines from "tipsters", only 16 calls were referred to conservation officers for investigation and only five arrests were made during the month.

Other calls were deemed to lack sufficient information on which to act or were outside of the DNR's authority or responsibility.

Rewards amounting to $700 were paid out during the month to persons whose information resulted in an arrest.

Special phone number for those wishing to provide information under the TIP program is toll-free 1-800-652-9093.

Callers may remain anonymous and may accept or refuse a reward if an arrest is made based on their information.

Enforcement officials added that they are just as interested in receiving tips on fishing violations as on wildlife infractions.

"We would like to be getting more calls on illegal nets, sales of game fish and over the limit catches," said a spokesman.

Form Alliance On Property Use Rights

A group of Minnesota residents have formed an organization called Private Property Rights Alliance (PPRA), prompted by their concern that "the historic rights of individuals to own and enjoy their private property are being eroded and may eventually be lost unless someone stands up to protect that basic tradition."

The organization is an independent, non-partisan, non-governmental group of property owners, who come from broad geographic and occupational backgrounds. At meetings in August and September of last year, these PPRA founders decided that such an organization was pertinent to assist persons with legitimate complaints against government and other governmental departments encroachments on individual property rights, according to Eugene Holmes, a Waseca county farmer.

Methods used by public utilities in locating high voltage power lines and pipelines, as well as the procedures used in Minnesota by the department of natural resources to alter the rights to and the classification of private wetlands under the Minnesota Water Bank act caused much concern and fear — particularly among farmers — that they would lose control over their farmland.

Heading the PPRA as chairman is Eugene Holmes. Other members of the board are Dick Sheldon, Spring Valley, vice chairman; Victoria Bergstedt, Stillwater; Robert Mostad, Osakis; Florence Daninger, Forest Lake; and Raymond Albrecht, Brownton.

Among other concerns of the members of PPRA are the many experiences of individual property owners in the acquisition by the government of wetlands, native prairies, wildlife habitat and parks. In all of these instances, if the owner objects, he must prove his defense against the taking of that property. "We believe that the burden of proof for the acquisition should be on the public agency," board members said.

The board is planning to schedule informational meetings throughout the state for property owners who are concerned or fearful about losing control over their property.

"We are searching for methods to preserve private property rights. There are many organizations which have a single concern about property rights, such as pipe lines, waste disposal sites and others. We are attempting to put all of these groups under one umbrella," Holmes said.

Among other activities being planned by the PPRA are the monitoring of lägislative activity on matters of concern to property owners, developing a library of pertinent information, providing a reference service to put concerned persons in touch with others with similar problems, and with attorneys who are experienced in these areas.

Holmes reports, "The Alliance realizes that the government needs to possess and exercise constitutionally supported and controlled authority to carry out its required functions, but we believe that we must be vigilant, so that the government does not violate the fundamental rights of citizens to possess property. We hope to provide a balanced attitude regarding private property, keeping the traditional rights, yet recognizing the need to conserve ecological and recreational resources."

UNSURE OF all the people and animals milling around in the lobby of Oakland Park nursing home on Tuesday, Sharon Hoglo's little spaniel "Freckles" decided to take shelter under Theresa Ristau's wheelchair. Turtles, chickens, sheep, goats, dogs and even a horse were among the animals which visited the home for "Pet Day," which was observed as one of many activities during national nursing home week at Oakland Park.

THANK YOU

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you who sent cards, letters, gifts and your phone calls and visits during my long stay at United hospital.

Your prayers and words of concern for my health and your offers to help my family will never be forgotten. It made my stay in the hospital a bit more endurable.

A special thanks to Pastor Gene Broughton for his prayers, visits and words of encouragement.

I came home on May 10th to continue my recuperation. May God bless all of you.

Fine-tune your field speeds.

There's probably not a tractor built anywhere that lets you fine-tune field working speeds better than our 2-135 (137 hp*) and 2-155 (157 hp*) Field Boss* tractors. And if you come into the dealership during the next two weeks, we'll prove it.

More field speeds. Our exclusive 3 x 6 Over/Under transmission lets you shift to Under Drive, Direct Drive or Over Drive without touching the clutch. To get more on-the-go lugging power or more speed—whichever you need.

Three ranges in six forward gears means you have 18 forward speeds, including nine speeds between 2 and 7 mph. That's fine-tuning for performance.

Advantages you can see. We can show you other advantages on the 2-135 and 2-155 that you don't get with competitive tractors. And it doesn't cost you a dime to find out what they are. Come in today.

WHITE FARM EQUIPMENT COMPANY

IRS Team Detects Tax Claim Fraud

Employees at the Internal Revenue service center in Philadelphia became suspicious when five income tax returns arrived, all claiming several hundred dollars in tax refunds and all with the same address. Further investigation revealed more than 60 tax returns, which all appeared to be filed by the same person, using seven different names, 16 addresses and four different refund amounts.

IRS special agents subsequently identified the person behind the scheme, and he was indicted, convicted and sentenced to three years in prison on 48 counts of "filing false, fictitious or fraudulent claims."

This is an example of what the IRS calls a questionable refund scheme; where individuals file false income tax returns claiming refunds of taxes they've never paid. The IRS' primary device for detecting false filings of tax returns and preventing the issuance of fraudulent refunds is the questionable refund program (QRP).

The QRP was organized in January of 1977 to consolidate the IRS efforts at detecting questionable refunds by making better use of IRS personnel, expanding the use of the computers at the 10 Internal Revenue service centers and emphasizing national office coordination of the program.

Keystone of the QRP is the questionable refund detection team: one at each service center, consisting of personnel from various IRS functions and headed by the chiefs, criminal investigation branch. During peak workloads there are as many as 13 persons on a team.

When an income tax return arrives at a service center, computers analyze the data on the return and assign it a weighted score based on previous experience with questionable refund schemes. Suspicious looking refunds are selected and reviewed by the service center's questionable refund detection team. If indications of fraud are found, the team can cancel the refund and refer the case for further investigation.

As the teams discover new refund schemes, they communicate methods of operation and statistics to other service centers and can recommend adjustments to the fraud finding criteria as the schemes change. Characteristics of newly detected schemes are programmed into service center computers to facilitate detection of returns with the same characteristics. The computers at the national computer center in Martinsburg, WV, complement the service center effort by analyzing characteristics of schemes on a national level, crossing service center boundaries.

Detected schemes are referred for further investigation to the appropriate IRS function, usually the criminal investigation division, which in turn works with other federal, state and foreign agencies and law enforcement organizations to identify those behind the schemes and to obtain evidence for indictment and conviction.

When IRS employees might be involved in questionable refund schemes, the IRS inspection service works both with, and independent of, the detection teams. Inspection provides the teams with profiles of employee refund schemes and evaluates indications of employee misconduct. Independently the unit conducts investigations and internal audits of the QRP and detection team operations.

Questionable refund schemes range in complexity from altering a single Form W-2 to setting up a corporation; from filing one to several hundred false returns. In a recent case, two persons were indicted for filing 978 false returns.

Since 1977, the IRS has investigated 1,449 refund schemes and obtained 531 criminal convictions. In the first five months of 1982, the IRS discovered 334 refund schemes involving 2,998 returns. Out of 100 persons sentenced during this fiscal year, 78 received prison sentences averaging 35 months. The maximum penalties for "filing false claim" and for "conspiracy to commit offense or defraud the United States" are a $10,000 fine or five years in prison, or both. There are civil penalties as well as the applicable criminal penalties.

The IRS admits that just as the IRS cannot audit every tax return, it cannot assure that every fraudulent refund claim is identified. The sheer volume of refunds makes that impossible. In fiscal year 1981, the IRS received nearly 94 million individual tax returns and issued over 71 million individual refunds averaging $676. The IRS says that efforts to stop questionable refund payments must also take into account the needs of honest taxpayers to have their refunds processed expeditiously.

According to the IRS, its programs have stopped the great majority of questionable refunds prior to payment and have gained a significant number of criminal convictions. This, combined with efforts to refine methods of identifying questionable refunds, the IRS believes, will deter most who might be tempted to defraud the IRS.

The Eliasons returned to their home on Thursday.

$48 Million Saved Through MN Rideshare

Minnesotans have saved $48 million in driving costs and conserved about 8.2 million gallons of gasoline since the Minnesota department of transportation's (Mn-DOT) Minnesota rideshare program began in 1980.

Individual commuters may have saved as much as $1,500 a year in driving costs by saving on fuel, maintenance, insurance and other expenses, said Richard P. Braun, state transportation commissioner. Braun said more than 20,000 commuters have changed their habits from driving alone to joining a vanpool or carpool or using available public transportation to get to work during the last two years.

"Minnesota Rideshare has helped form about 7,400 carpools and 81 vanpools and has provided information about public transit to nearly 7,000 people," he said.

Ridesharing has taken many forms ranging from two or three neighbors sharing a short ride in a carpool to vans carrying 12 or more passengers on round trips of more than 100 miles each day.

The ridesharing concept also includes regular transit, paratransit and buses operated by companies for employee use.

An increased number of people ridesharing also decreases the number of vehicle miles traveled each year by 101 million and reduces air pollution and congestion on city streets and the state's highway system.

As increasing numbers of commuters have changed their way of getting to work, Mn-DOT has also changed the way rideshare programs are developed and operated.

Under direction by the legislature in 1981, Mn-DOT works with city governments, chambers of commerce and others to help them design and operate their own programs instead of providing direct services.

Since then, Mn-DOT has worked with public and private agencies in cities such as Eden Prairie, Fairmont, LeSueur, Olivia and Marshall to create their own ridesharing programs to develop car and vanpools. Mn-DOT has worked with larger cities such as Duluth, Mankato, Moorhead, Rochester and St. Cloud to develop pooling and to stimulate ridership on public transit systems.

Ridesharing also benefits communities in other ways. Jim Rossow, rideshare coordinator at Mn-DOT's Mankato district, said reducing the number of dollars spent on gasoline helps strengthen local economies.

"More than 60 per cent of each dollar spent for gasoline leaves the state right away," he said, "but dollars saved by ridesharing and used for other needs continue to circulate locally, increasing local business and jobs."

Rossow, whose district includes cities having active ridesharing programs such as Fairmont, LeSueur, Mankato and New Ulm, said ridesharing also helps rural areas by matching people who use the same route to commute to distant communities.

"We've matched people who drove on the same roads to work but who had no way to contact each other in the past," he said. "We've fulfilled a lot of transportation needs in the rural areas."

As the program has changed during its first two years of operation, Mn-DOT has developed a major innovation to enable local communities to match riders effectively and become more flexible in its response to the changing needs and priorities of local communities.

A Mn-DOT employee adapted word processing to ridematching. Word processing equipment eliminates the need for more expensive and complex computers and enables small ridesharing offices to make matches with minimal time and cost.

Mn-DOT's approach to ridesharing has become responsive to a wide range of needs, Braun said, from actively promoted programs to communities establishing a framework for a program that can easily become operational in case of a fuel emergency.

Braun said Mn-DOT has also been able to create partnerships between private businesses and government agencies as it assists local communities operate their own programs.

"To remain effective," he said, "we will continue to provide training and technical assistance to local units of government and the private sector to develop workable programs to meet their special needs."

CPAs Advise On Electronic Revolution

Those personal computers that can fit on a desk top are part of an electronics revolution sweeping into the 1980s as much as television swept into the 1950s. Other parts of the electronics revolution are video game units, cable television systems, videotape recorders, and special cable or computer information services.

New electronic technology is changing the way people work, communicate, and spend their leisure time and money, notes the Minnesota society of CPAs. Before long there may be a computer in every home, and you will be able to shop, bank and find entertainment without leaving the house.

However, it is also likely that the cost of maintaining these electronic and communication "systems" in your home will be greater than what you now spend on heat and utilities. So, right now is a good time to start planning your finances to take advantage of these new developments, CPAs say.

Before you buy a basic computer, the "hardware" that performs computing work, consider the costs of "software," or instructions that allow certain work to be done.

What you spend on software programs, costing from $10 to $500, depends on what you want to do — from playing Pac-Man to charting your annual budget to regulating your home's lights, temperature, and security system.

There will be additional costs for add-on components to perform certain tasks. A software or disc drive, which costs about $600, feeds software programs into your computer. If you use your computer as a word processor, a printer to type out the text costs about $400 to $800. The paper for the printer is about $10 for 500 sheets.

If you're an investor and want to use your computer to get access to stock and bond reports, you'll have to buy a modem for $100 to $300 to connect your computer by telephone line with a teledata service to get the reports.

You can also use your telephone line and modem to connect your computer with your office, bank, or other computer operators. You can even participate in special surveys, get airline schedule information, and order retail products promoted on cable television channels.

Naturally, your costs for these capabilities will depend on how much you use them, CPAs say. One teledata service, which provides stock prices plus news reports and even classified ads, charges a one-time subscription fee of $100 and an hourly usage cost ranging from $20.75 during "prime" business hours to $5.75 an hour after midnight. Another service, with stock market information, charges 90 cents a minute during the day and 15 cents a minute at night.

Maintenance and electricity costs involved in running your computer are minor but should not be overlooked. While the electronic components of the computer will probably need little maintenance, the mechanical parts like the keyboard, printer or drive may require occasional servicing. Consider buying either a warranty extension for $90 to $300 a year, depending on the computer, or a maintenance contract that costs 10 to 15 per cent of the price of your whole computer system.

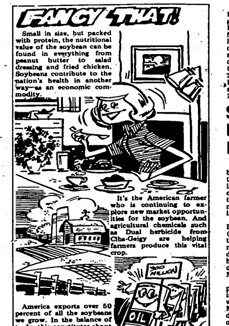
Surprisingly, electric costs will be rather small. The computer itself uses a negligible amount of power. The monitor screen or television takes the most electricity, but even that only costs about five cents an hour (for a 300 watt color set where electricity costs 16 cents a kilowatt hour).

Besides the costs of a computer system, consider what you are spending to use your television. Cable television services charge a monthly fee of $10 to $20, and an extra $15 to $25 a month for special movie and sports channels.

Of course, you can also use your television to play video games or connected with a videotape recorder to tape programs. You can also buy or rent movies on video tape to play on your set. All your costs, again, depend on how much you use the equipment.

While what you spend on a home computer and television systems can really add up, the end result could be effective management of your time and money. It's really the wave of the future, so set your budget to take advantage, CPAs conclude.

FANCY THAT!



Small in size, but packed with protein, the nutritional value of the soybean can be found in everything from peanut butter to salad dressing and fried chicken. Soybeans contribute to the nation's health in another way—as an economic commodity.

It's the American farmer who is continuing to explore new market opportunities for the soybean. And agricultural chemicals such as Dual herbicide from Ciba-Geigy are helping farmers produce this vital crop.

America exports over 50 percent of all the soybeans we grow. In the balance of trade, this constitutes about $10 billion a year—enough money to buy almost 300 million barrels of oil.

Handicapped Offer Resource For Future

By 1992, the number of Americans between the ages of 18 and 24 will have decreased by 25 per cent. This small population will have to support an ever-growing older population, which means that our country will need all the productive young people it can find.

Handicapped children offer a major untapped resource to meet this need, says Paul Salmon, executive director of the American association of school administrators, in the April issue of "PTA Today," the national PTA's magazine. The issue is devoted entirely to the theme, "Education for the Handicapped."

"The handicapped offer a new source of talented, dedicated and loyal workers and citizens," Salmon says. "We must develop them to the fullest."

Salmon discusses the history and current status of PL 94-142, the law passed by Congress in 1975 mandating, among other things, that parents and educators work together to assure an appropriate education for each handicapped child. According to Salmon, though educators initially found it threatening to share their decision-making power with parents, they now agree that it is an improvement over previous methods.

Parents of handicapped children may still experience conflicts with the school system, however. To resolve these conflicts, Charles Henley, professor of special education, Michigan state university, and Harrold Spicknall, director of special services, Ingham intermediate school district, Mason, MI, suggest that parents take the following steps:

+ Identify the problem.

+ Know your school system, especially the administrative structure.

+ Know your rights as parents of a handicapped child, and know how to use the special education laws to help solve problems.

+ Try to solve problems at the lowest level in the most informal way possible.

+ If informal efforts fail, be prepared to take more formal action.

In addition to being constructively involved in school decisions, parents must also be aware of the special emotional needs of their handicapped child. One way is to provide a handicapped child with a pet. "For a handicapped child who is lonely or misses out on certain privileges that his peers enjoy, a pet can provide a special sense of integrity," according to an article on pets and pet therapy by Jacqueline Johnson.

Participation in sports programs also has a positive effect on the handicapped child, according to an article devoted to this subject. "Just like their able-bodied peers, disabled people need to experience the sense of physical well-being, mental awareness and increased socialization that sports and recreation afford them," it says. The article describes special programs for the handicapped child in horseback riding, basketball, square dancing, skiing and other sports.

April issue of "PTA Today" also features articles on teaching retarded children about sex, preparing the special child for the job market, mainstreaming, and spcial education PTAs (SEPTAs).

Vietnam Vets Affected By Experiences

by Bill Rooney
Northwestern Mental Health Center

It is estimated that at least 500,000 Vietnam veterans are experiencing psychological and emotional effects as a result of their war experiences. These after-effects, which are occurring 10, 15 or even 20 years after the war, are known collectively as Delayed Stress Disorder or Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder.

Many of the effects, such as difficulty in forming intimate relationships, feelings of emotional distance from family members, and difficulties in expressing emotions can have obvious effects on the family members of the Vietnam veteran.

Mothers and fathers saw their sons leave as typical teenagers interested in cars, girls, college and everything else that teenagers think about. But when they returned as Vietnam veterans, there was a difference. They seemed distant, quiet and perhaps angry. Wives especially experienced these changes, and many thousands of marriages ended within months of the Vietnam veteran's return home.

These same problems have led to divorce in subsequent marriages and, as mentioned in a previous article, Vietnam veterans have a higher divorce rate than their non-veteran peers.

Just as the Vietnam veterans are continuing to feel some of the lingering emotional burden and pressure of the war, their loved ones are also feeling the pressures through them. What complicates the problem is that neither the vet nor the family members understand these feelings, or recognize their origin in the war.

The answer for the Vietnam veteran who wants to deal with these problems can be found in the discussion or rap groups offered by the Disabled American Veterans; Vet Centers or mental health centers throughout the country. One of the benefits of these groups is that the Vietnam veteran recognizes that many others share the same feelings, and they will come to understand these psychological and emotional effects as they relate to their experience in Vietnam. When family members are given the opportunity to meet together, the same benefits can be achieved. Even if the Vietnam veteran is not participating in a group, the family members can still benefit.

Northwestern Mental Health center will be offering groups for Vietnam veterans. Interested spouses, parents, family members and close loved ones may obtain additional information on specific services and discussion groups by contacting Bill Rooney (218) 935-2207, (Mahnomen); Rick Ramey (218) 281-3940, (Crookston); or Jim Froseth (218) 436-2942. Small Business Research Funds Hold Promise

A new federal small business research program today was described as holding out the promise of an increase in new products and technologies coming from the nation's work places and laboratories.

The program is the Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program. It requires that federal agencies direct more research and development work to small high-technology firms, many of which are headquartered in Minnesota.

"Most of our new ideas, new products and new technologies in this century have originated with small companies," said Mel Aanerud, acting district director of the Minnesota SBA office. "Therefore, it is logical to assume that under the new law qualified small hi-tech firms will be doing a greater share of federal research and development and in the long run will come up with an increased number of new ideas. These ideas will be used not only by the government, but in the private marketplace."

In signing the Small Business Innovation Research act July 22, President Reagan said, "Our nation is blessed with two important qualities that often are missing in other societies: our spirit of entrepreneurship and our capacity of invention and innovation. These two elements are combined today in the small businesses that guide our land."

Robert W. Santy, SBA's director of congressional affairs, also said, "SBIR also holds out the promise of creating more jobs. Under a prototype SBIR program managed by the National Science foundation since 1977, employment in small firms completing NSF awards increased 125 per cent — a sure sign our new government-wide SBIR will pay handsome dividends."

Under the SBIR program, federal agencies with external research and development budgets of more than $20 million annually must establish small business R & D goals. These goals must be at least equal to small business R & D awards made last year.

In addition, agencies with annual external R & D budgets of more than $100 million must establish SBIR programs. There are 10 such agencies — defense, health and human services, energy, interior, agriculture, transportation, nuclear regulatory commission, environmental protection agency, national science foundation, and national aeronautics and space administration.

The nine civilian agencies in the group must set aside, for small businesses, two-tenths of one per cent of their outside R & D budget in fiscal 1983, with the set-aside total rising to 1.25 per cent in outside budget in 1983 and has five years in which to reach the 1.25 per cent total.

"Our estimates," Santy said, "show that in fiscal 1983, the year that began October 1, nearly $45 million in SBIR R & D funds will go to small firms. In 1986, this range is estimated to be between $250 million and $400 million and in fiscal 1987, when the act becomes fully effective, between $275 million and $450 million."

SBA, which recently issued program policy directives, will monitor and report to Congress on the program. At least once a year, SBA will publish a master schedule outlining when solicitations will be made by the 10 large agencies and where information is available. The master list, in short, will be a score sheet on when and who to contact.

Copies of solicitations will come from individual agencies. Interested small firms must get specific solicitation data from the agencies and send responses to the appropriate agency.

The R & D awards will be made in two phases:

—In Phase I, agencies will award about $50,000 for each selected idea submitted by a small firm.

—In Phase II, a second funding — of about $500,000 — will be made for ideas holding out the greatest promise.

After this, private sector investment and support will be sought by the small firm, so its innovative ideas can be brought to the private market.

"A basic purpose of the act," Santy said, "is to strengthen the role of small innovative companies in federally-funded research and development. The act will also convert the research results from small science and high-technology firms into commercial applications.

"Small businesses, of course, will benefit from the act. But of greater significance will be the potential benefits for the government and the country. As President Reagan said in signing the legislation, 'Small business is a tonic for what ails this country. By passing and signing this act, we're showing our resolve to unleash this most innovative sector'."

Americans Send Over 7 Billion Greeting Cards

by Ink Mendelsohn
Smithsonian News Service

Greetings! Don't be alarmed. This message comes to you not from your Uncle Sam but from your Aunt Minnie — and all your other relatives, your countless friends and your insurance agent. They're simply wishing you a Happy New Year, a happy Valentine'ds day, a happy St. Patric's day, a happy Easter, a happy Mother's (or Father's) day, a happy Fourth of July, a happy Rosh Hashanah, a happy Halloween, a happy Thanksgiving and a Merry Christmas.

On America's crowded celebratory calendar, there is no holiday from holidays. Even in a long, hot August, people celebrate anniversaries. And every day of the year is somebody's birthday. Over the years, familial milestones must be marked — as students graduate, couples marry, babies are born and family members die. One way Americans respond to this formidable social challenge is by sending greeting cards — seven billion of them a year.

"Today, the greeting card is central in American life as a form of communication," Dr. Luna Lambert of the Smithsonian Institution points out. A popular-culture specialist, she observes, "We're buying ready-made communication to bring ourselves closer to other people — often because we're far away physically or sometimes because we don't know what to say to each other." Lambert and other scholars have dubbed greeting cards "the democratic art."

In the late 19th century, the holiday card was just that — art for the millions. People gave cards as decorative gifts and sent their messages in other ways — like letters. The medium — not the message — decorated tabletops, china cupboards and Christmas trees in Victorian America. The medium was chromolithography, a multicolor printing process that made color reproductions of art works affordable for great numbers of Americans in the 1870s.

"The vast mass of the population is reached through the heart," Louis Prang declared in 1884. Prang, America's foremost publisher of chromolithographed gift cards and an advertising agent, determined to bring art and good taste into everyday Victorian life and to make a good living besides. He achieved both goals.

To generate excitement and to convince the public that holiday gift cards were legitimate art, he staged national design competitions to attract talented artists. Christmas card design entries were judged by the likes of famed architect Stanford White and artist Louis Comfort Tiffany.

Prang produced high-quality gift cards in his up-to-date Boston factory. Costing from a penny apiece to a dollar-and-a-half and depicting appealing domestic and natural scenes — children and flowers in profusion — the cards were enormously popular. Prang used these scenes interchangeably from holiday to holiday, altering only the printed wish. His favorite flower, the Killarney rose, and the rest of his chromolithographed garden, regardless of the season, might have decorated a valentine, a happy Easter wish or a Christmas card.

Prang, however, hadnothing on later 19th-century publishers who adapted mechanical fold-out valentines and made them into Rosh Hashanah (Jewish New Year) cards by attaching pictures of a Jewish wedding or a similar scence to a hearts-and-flowers background.

As competition among card publishers grew in the 1880s, the gift card became less a fine art reproduction and more a production. Silk-fringed cards were followed by cards printed on satin sachets, cards decorated with tiny particles of glass charmingly called "flitter" and cards embellished with metalline, which Louis Prang claimed looked just like real gold.

All too soon, the novelty of decorative novelty wore off. The public was ready for a change of scenery. The development of photgraphy brought photgraphic post cards from faraway places in the 1890s. And after the turn of the century, the card publishers adopted the post card format for lighthearted holiday cards celebrating the Fourth of July, Halloween and Thanksgiving in addition to the old favorites. The new post cards provided space for a personal message. The greeting card, as we know it today — design on the cover, a printed message inside and room for a handwirtten greeting to boot — was not far behind.

This development from Victorian gift cards to today's familiar greeting cards is traced via a posie-strewn path of plain and fancy holiday cards in the Smithsonian Institution exhibition, "The Season Trade: Holiday Gift Cards." Organized by the Smithsonian Institution traveling exhibition service (SITES) with Lambert as guest curator, the show will be touring the country for the next several years with paper beauties like the fringed and tasseled chromolithographs of Louis Prang.

Prang has been called "the father of the American Christmas card." If this is true, then surely Esther Howland might farily be called "the mother of the American Valentine." Howland, in her early 20s and just graduated from Mount Holyoke college, class of 1847, started a business devoted exclusively to the heart — the publishing of valentines. A half-century before Henry Ford, she created an assembly line. To help her produce the valentines, Howland gathered a number of friends in her Worcester, MA home. One cut pictures, another painted flowers, one added lace, and so on, as the lacy love tokens were passed from hand to hand.

Esther Howland's business flourished and imitators followed. By mid-century, the giving and sending of valentines had become a well-established custom in America. In 1886, when the postmaster general pleaded, "Please mail cards early to prevent a swamping of the post office," he was talking about valentines.

Not everyone was swept away in the lacy tide, however. After the Civil War, as the country was attempting to put itself back together, valentines were divided. Both the sugar-and-spice kind — the sentimental valentine — and the "vinegar valentine" of vituperation were popular. The sentimental valentine elevated the Victorian wife to angle-on-earth, while the vinegar valentine promised an ill-tempered wife that a fun-loving second wife would not be hard for her spouse to find.

Candied or candid, Americans clearly enjoyed sending each other cards. At the turn of the century, the Cornhill Dodgers ushered in the era of the modern greeting card, as the message took on new importance. The Dodgers were not a bush-league baseball team but elegantly lettered cards carrying inspirational mottoes published by Alfred Bartlett of Boston's Cornhill neighborhood.

World War I created a demand for greeting cards to be sent to beloved soldiers. After the war, many new publishers entered the field pioneered by the long-established Gibson art company (today Gibson Greeting Cards, Inc.) and the Hall Brothers company, founded in 1910 (today, Hallmark Cards, Inc.). Even the Great Depression didn't slow down the cardboard communication industry, and there was a new blossoming with the prosperity and mobility following the World War II.

Today, the greeting card industry is a 300-plus collection of companies, a 2.4-billion-dollar-a-year giant and still growing. How do we know this? Because Simon says. That would be William Simon, former secretary of the treasury and currently board chairman of Gibson Greeting Cards, Inc., the oldest card company in America. "Greeting cards are a recession-proof business," he says.

Cynics have on occasion suggested that, instead of making cards for holidays, the industry makes holidays for cards. "We never do that," Kathi Felix, communications manager for the national association of greeting card publishers, says. "The greeting card industry has never created a holiday."

They don't have to. Determined Americans have, over the years, added to the roster of traditional holidays. Anna Jarvis of West Virginia started her crusade for Mother's day in 1907, and there were Mother's day cards by 1912. The holiday was officially established in 1914. Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of Spokane, WA, got the idea for Father's day in 1910, and there were cards by 1920. Not such a lag, when you consider that Father's day was not made an official holiday until 1972.

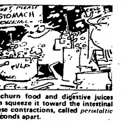
Secret of success in the surrogate sentiment business seems to be not in creating holidays but in knowing the customer. According to the national association of greeting card publishers, the average greeting card buyer is a 46-year-old woman — whatever her income. An astonishing 93 per cent of all greeting card buyers are women, they say. Through sophisticated marketing research by computer print-out and consumer panel and an added pinch of educated guesswork, the greeting card companies know what cards their customers have bought in the past, are buying right now and are likely to buy in the future.

Rumors are strong that, in this electronic age, sound is in the not-so-distant future of greeting cards. Your birthday card won't simply say, "Happy Birthday;" it will sing it. Trends come and go, but the greeting card industry knows that hearts and flowers are perennials. Even on the computer, everything comes up roses for anniversary, birthday and Mother's day cards.

And after 100 years, the postmaster general is still advising Americans to "mail early" — except that today it's Christmas cards. However, mechanization has made the postmaster more sanguine. "We are so confident of our increased processing capacity that this past year we actually urged people to remember old friends by writing at Christmas, in addition to asking them to shop and mail early," Postmaster General William Bolger is pleased to report.

Ernest Dudley Chase, a pioneer of the greeting card industry offered another kind of advice in 1946. He urged would-be verse writers to make their greetings friendly, cheerful, plain-spoken and appealing to thousands of people. Every greeting card verse worth its sentiment, he maintained, should contain at least one of three things: a wish, a compliment or an expression of appreciation; preferably all three. So, greetings, America! we wish you good cheer. We wish it, dear readers Each day of the year. Thanks to you patient ones Who did persevere, This story is finished. Best end it right here.

Your Stomach: What You Should Know



Your stomach muscles churn food and digestive juices into a pulpy liquid then squeeze it toward the intestinal end of the stomach. These contractions, called peristaltic waves, occur about 20 seconds apart.

Few Americans realize it, but the shape of your stomach has to do with how you yourself are shaped. Tall, thin persons usually have long, narrow stomachs. Short, stocky persons usually have short, wide stomachs.

The average adult stomach can hold a little more than a quart, and it's shaped much like a "J." It serves as a storage place for food, so that a large meal may be eaten at one time. Your stomach also helps digest food.

Cells in the stomach wall secrete mucus to lubricate the food. Other cells give off hydrochloric acid and the enzyme pepsin to partially digest the food. The stomach muscles churn the food and digestive juices into a pulpy liquid. Then the muscles squeeze the liquid toward the intestinal end of the stomach.

This churning action of the stomach tends to begin at our usual mealtimes. Surprising many Americans is that the theory of small, frequent, bland meals as a treatment for ulcers, has been disproved by research showing patients on normal diets healed as well or faster. Frequent eating also stimulates acid secretion leading eventually to an overall increase in gastric acidity.

Research also has discovered that duodenal ulcers occur more frequently among smokers and heavy aspirin takers. Day-to-day stress and diet also play a part but not the major role once suspected. A convincing case against alcohol and coffee has not been made.

The number of women suffering from ulcers has been increasing. Initially, experts believed that the growing incidence was due to women entering the job market where they were subject to greater stress. Because stress has been ruled out as a major causative factor, many doctors are placing the principal blame on smoking.

Duodenal ulcer is a serious problem. If you have chronic stomach pain, see your doctor.

Seatmate Voting Wrong

Following editorial is from the Fargo Forum:

Apparently it is a common practice in the Minnesota House of Representatives for some members to cast multiple votes on recorded roll calls. They cast their own votes and also press the button for an absent neighbor or neighbors.

Such action is a fraud on the public. The voters expect their representatives to cast their own votes, or to show that they are absent on a roll call if they are not in their seats to press the "yes" or "no" button when a vote is taken.

Two Independent Republican members of the House, Reps. Dwaine Hoberg of Moorhead and Tony Stadum of Ada, unwittingly exposed this practice Monday when they were recorded as voting in favor of a bill providing some measure of relief to farm and homeowners, even though they said they were opposed to the bill and intended to vote against it. They explained that they were away from their seats when the vote was taken. They told the Forum Legislative reporter that their seatmates, who voted for them, erred in pressing the wrong button.

The two representatives should stand up in the House and ask the record to be corrected, stating that they were absent for the vote, and condemn the practice of anybody voting for anybody else on any measure in the House at any time.

The only lasting record that the public has of a legislator's performance is the official journal of House proceedings. If a legislator is able to claim that the record is wrong because somebody else pushed his button when he was absent, he has his political feet based on both sides of the issue. He is against the matter publicly, but the record shows he voted for it, even though he was absent from the House — or at least not at his desk — at the time of the vote.

If this absentee voting is an accepted practice within the Minnesota House of Representatives, it should be terminated immediately.

A similar issue developed several years ago in the North Dakota House of Representatives when it clearly established that the one vote necessary to pass a measure was cast by a friendly seatmate when the legislator who was supposed to cast the vote was out of the chamber. Since that time the North Dakota House has been rigorous in requiring that only the member who is physically present can cast a vote on the voting machine.

It may seem like a simple deal to some Minnesota representatives to leave word with neighbors to cast a vote one way or the other on any issue which may rise during the member's absence, but that creates a faulty record. In the case of the foreclosure relief bill, for instance, what would have happened if the measure had passed by the bare required majority instead of being approved 97 to 34. If the two absentees had been recorded for the bill, as against their expressed opposition, their record would still show that they were the votes which made passage possible.

Voters do not elect representatives to the Minnesota legislature in order to have their seatmates vote for them. Let the Minnesota House clean up its act.

Public Shouldn't Pay

Following editorial is from the St. Paul Pioneer Press:

Should the taxpayers bear the expense of legal fees incurred in defending a public official charged with violating the Open Meeting Law?

State Attorney General Hubert Humphrey III said "no" in an opinion issued this week. It is a fair and logical answer.

State law requires a municipality to provide its officers and employees with legal defense against certain lawsuits. Without such protection, many public officials and employees would be reluctant to act on controversial issues for fear of a lawsuit. The attorney general interprets this as applying to tort claims or demands arising out of an alleged act or omission occurring within the scope of public employment. This obviously does not include illegal closed-door meetings.

The Open Meeting Law was designed specificially to assure Minnesota citizens that public business would not be conducted in secret. To force the citizens to pay defense costs of a public official accused of violating this law would be incongruous.

All public officials need do to avoid the cost of defending such a lawsuit is to keep their meetings open. That's the cheapest and easiest solution to the problem.

Imperial Ex-Presidency

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Our former presidents should retain a certain dignity in their later years.

Thomas Jefferson had to sell his library in order to pay his debts after he left the White House and almost lost Monticello to his creditors.

Ulysses S. Grant lost all his money in a bank failure and had to turn to writing magazine articles about his war experiences to support his family. Mark Twain, the famous author, became the publisher of Grant's memoirs, which rescued the former president from financial hardship.

We don't want our former presidents to have to scrape out a living or feel, as Mexican presidents seem to, that they must leave office rich.

However, the public cost of ex-presidential dignity is getting to be almost imperial. This year it is expected to top $27 million.

An article in the current U.S. News and World Report discusses the three former presidents — Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter — and lists some of the bills they submit to taxpayers.

Take telephones, for instance. Nixon's phone calls last year $31,000, Ford's $34,549 and Carter's $24,800. Secret Service protection for the three former presidents and their families also mounts up. It totaled $12,074,720 last year.

Each of the former presidents receives a $70,000 a year annual pension, but there are additions. Ford gets another $30,000 for his congressional and military service and Carter gets another $80,000 for his full-time staff members. This will drop to $26,000 in July as Carter's 30-month transition period ends.

Office expenses for the three also are billed to the taxpayer. Carter's office expenses last year were $292,800, and Nixon's $236,902. Ford's office budget for this year is $249,200.

The presidential commemorative libraries — there are seven of them — cost another $14 million a year, ranging from $806,000 for the Herbert Hoover Library in West Branch, Iowa, to $2,073,800 for the Lyndon Johnson Library in Austin, Texas.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., says all this presidential aid has got out of hand. He has introduced legislation that would gradually diminish presidential allowances for staff and office expenses and end Secret Service protection eight years after a president leaves office.

Positive action of Chiles' bill would be a real break for the nation's taxpayers. Ex-presidents should not be left in penury; neither should they be cared for like potentates.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A man who was watching a downtown building under construction noticed that another man nearby was chain-smoking cigars.

"How many cigars do you smoke a day?" he finally asked.

"Probably about 10," the man replied.

"What do they cost you?"

"Twenty-five cents each."

"That's $2.50 a day! How long have you been smoking?"

"About 30 years."

"Two-fifty a day for 30 years is a lot of money."

"Yes, it is."

"If you had never smoked in your life you might have afforded this building going up here."

The man took the cigar out of his mouth, looked the other in the eye and asked, "Do you smoke?"

"No, I never have."

"Do you own this building?"

"No, I don't."

"Well," said the man, putting the cigar back in his mouth, "I do."

Mother: "So how did your fishing trip go?"

New Bride: "Terrible, Mama. I made too much noise, I rocked the boat, I used the wrong bait, I reeled too fast, I tangled my line, and I caught the first, most and biggest fish."

Interesting Opinions:

"One of these years there's going to be an average crop in the Soviet Union, or a little better than average, and they're going to import only 20 million tons (compared to a projected 34 million tons) of wheat. And none of it will be from us. They could easily cut us out of the picture, given the growth in export potential of some other producers like Argentina, Canada and the Europeans."

A Consumer Service from the Office of the Minnesota Attorney General

THINK THE INTEREST RATE YOU PAY IS TOO HIGH? THEN LISTEN UP

The Attorney General's Office is frequently asked, "What's the highest interest rate a person can be charged?"

The answer, unfortunately, must be, "It all depends."

The fact is, in Minnesota, there is no such thing as a "maximum" interest rate. What kind of interest you or anyone pays in this state depends on what kind of loan or indebtedness you're considering. Loans and indebtedness are defined by state statutes and there are more than a dozen of them, each allowing a different rate limit. In some cases, there is no rate limit at all.

It can get very complicated, so it's important for both lenders and debtors to know what rates apply to what kind of indebtedness.

If you are a lender or would-be-lender, you should be very careful in choosing an interest rate, because if that rate exceeds the statutory ceiling, the debt can become invalidated, or you may have to pay a penalty fine many times the amount you overcharged. In most cases, the usury statutes give a debtor who has been charged too much interest the right to sue his or her creditor and to ask for the appropriate penalties in court.

If you're a lender who wishes to charge a certain rate of interest — perhaps on a contract for deed in a real estate transaction — you should get an attorney's advice about the appropriate rate. So, too, should you seek an attorney if you are a debtor or borrower and you have a question about the rate of interest you've been charged.

Such details can be important in unexpected ways. For example, interest on loans may have certain tax implications. The Internal Revenue Service, for instance, may regard a loan with a below-market interest rate as equivalent to a gift to the debtor. That's something to remember if you're thinking about making a low-interest or no-interest loan to a friend or relative.

The following is a list of the most common types of loan or debt transactions and the highest rates the statutes allow for each:

- Open-ended consumer credit (typically a retail revolving charge account): 1½ percent per month of the average daily balance in the account (a 50 cent per month minimum finance charge is permitted), or 1 1/3 percent per month if the lender's Minnesota annual gross sales exceed $25 million.
- Bank-issued credit cards or bank-extended, open-ended loan accounts including overdraft checking plans: 1½ percent per month or 1 percent per month plus a $15 annual fee. Exceptions to this are national banks located in other states. They may charge the maximum rate allowed by those states' laws.
- Conventional mortgages and contracts for deed not covered by federal pre-emptions (e.g., federal savings and loan rate ceilings are set by federal not state law): This rate is established each month by the Commissioner of Banks. For current rates, phone (612) 297-2751.
- Graduated payment mortgages (loans whose interest rates change as the principal is paid off): These are variable.
- Late payment fees on conventional mortgages: The rate must be provided for in writing. No specific limit is set by law but typically it is 4 to 5 percent of the monthly payment if 15 or more days late.
- Regulated lenders (finance companies or small loan companies making loans of $35,000 or less): 33 percent per year on the first $350 plus 19 percent per year on amounts above $350 or 21¾ percent per year on the entire balance. Under federal law, federally insured financial institutions can also use these rates on similar loans.
- Conventional installment bank loans of under $35,000: 12 percent per year or 4½ percent over the Federal Reserve discount rate. For the current discount rate call the Fed at (612) 297-2751.
- Business and agricultural loans: 4½ percent over the Federal Reserve discount rate.
- Car and mobile home loans: Various time and rate arrangements are allowed (generally keyed to the age of the car or mobile home) or 12 percent per year or 4½ percent over the Federal Reserve discount rate for mobile homes.
- Loans secured by savings accounts at financial institutions: 2 percent over the rate payable on the savings accounts.
- Overdue state taxes: 20 percent per year or the prime rate, depending on the taxable year, plus penalties.
- Court judgments (e.g., breach of contract, personal injury, etc.): 8 percent minimum. The maximum is established annually by the state court administrator. Interest runs from the time the judgment is signed.
- Most all other legal indebtedness: 6 percent per year of the amount owed if no rate has been specified in writing; otherwise 8 percent per year.

Elderhostels Offered Older People At MSU

Moorhead State University (MSU) will host two separate elderhostels this summer, offering people over 60 years old a chance to live on campus for a week and take classes on subjects ranging from politics and the American film to evolution and World War I.

MSU is one of 23 Minnesota campuses that will offer elderhostel programs this summer. Sessions at MSU are scheduled July 3 to 9 and July 31 to August 6.

Inspired by the youth hostels and folk schools of Europe, the program offers people over 60 a chance to live in campus dormitories along with other summer students, enroll in one to three week-long classes and take part in a schedule of field trips, cultural events and other special activities.

People don't have to be college or even high school graduates to enroll. Age is the only requirement. Spouses may register together and both are eligible even if only one is over 60. There are no exams and no grades.

Cost is $180 and includes food, lodging, classes and special activities. Otto Bremer Foundation has donated elderhostel scholarships for people who live in surrounding Bremer Bank communities. Also, MSU alumni association is offering two $180 scholarships to alumni who attend Elderhostel at its campus. State Elderhostel office also holds a pool of donated scholarships.

Elderhostel classes scheduled at MSU the week of July 3-9 include:

—"Politics, Power and the American Film", which will trace Hollywood's view of the American political system as reflected in the films of the 1930s through the 1970s. Feature movies will be screened and discussed; —"The Hand that Rocks the Cradle," which uses literature to examine the roles women have played in influencing American life; and —"Four Freedoms," which explores the freedoms in America, with a special look at the rights of speech and press, religion, fair trials and equal treatment.

Classes offered the week of July 31-Aug. 6 include:

—"World War I," taught by MSU president Dr. Roland Dille, who will look at the origin of the war and the struggle on the Western front. Special attention will be given to the home front following entry into the war;

—"We're Just Folks," which will explore the stories, jokes, games, foods, customs and festivities that make up America's folklore; and —"Evolution: Theories and Current Issues," which will look at the process and theories of evolution and contrast them with the rising interest in creationism and other theories.

Hostelers will arrive on campus on a Sunday, returning home the following Saturday morning. Classes last one or two hours each day and hostelers may take one or all three courses offered that week.

Most dormitory rooms are double occupancy without private baths. Private rooms, however, will be available on request.

For further information about Elderhostel at MSU, contact the university's continuing education office at (218) 236-2181.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

One of the problems we seem to face each day is that news is defined, in practice, as the bad or the unusual. Reading a daily newspaper, listening to the radio or watching TV, we get an outpouring of information on crime, perversion and the supposed unethical and immoral actions of people. Listening and viewing the evening TV news this past week, I didn't find even one positive story reported, though there had many such events. That's why I can understand President Reagan's request for the news media to search out and report "good" news as well as "bad" news.

An "ET" visiting our planet for a limited period, and getting his exposure to earth people from the media, would have to report back to his galaxy that the earth is "messed up."

If, on the other hand, ET had a chance to spend some time with our people, he would discover that for every upsetting or "nutty" action, there are an overwhelming number of "good" things that would flood out the "bad" news.

The treatment of our so-called "news" (sometimes very carelessly done, particularly by TV reporters with deadlines and biases) may even contribute to our problems. If all you hear emphasized is "bad times," it will certainly effect whether you buy that new house, new car or something else that you want and need.

The decision not to buy has a "chain effect" . . . a store doesn't make a sale . . . a wholesale distributor doesn't make a sale. . . a manufacturer doesn't make a sale . . . freight companies do not ship what hasn't been sold. . . subcontractors don't sell parts for something that isn't produced. . . container manufacturers and suppliers don't sell packaging for products that don't get made. . . and a lot of people do not work and have all of the spendable income they normally would have.

I am sure that Dan Rather and his CBS news buddies, along with cohorts at ABC news and NBC news much prefer the story that is unique, even if that emphasis distorts the picture of our society or economy and contributes to a demoralization that can multiply into massive unemployment and pain. . . that's show business, not responsible news reporting.

In truth, based on the latest data, we have more people working today than ever before in our history, earning more money than ever before in our history, with a phenomenally low inflation rate, and needing more of the products that we manufacture than ever before in our history. If we keep these simple truths in our minds, in spite of the distorted picture we get from the showmen who parade as objective news reporters and the politicians who have an axe to grind (and are hoping that economic recovery will not come speedily, for their political advantage), we can contribute to the continuing growth and development of our businesses and economy, so that we can attain real security.

If we sit around bemoaning our situation because we emphasize the negative (partially due to "Rather-Reynolds-Brokaw-Mudd-negativities", an epidemic circulated each weekday evening from coast-to-coast), we will distend our problems not progress. The "down" attitude of a good many of our people may be a real opportunity for those who have experienced a dose of "positivitis" and who believe, "I can and will!"

That's Straight Talk!

INFLATION-FIGHTING FOOD IDEAS

ECONOMY DISH FOR SUMMER PARTIES

Late spring is the traditional time to open the season for outdoor parties and gatherings featuring festive foods.

Many smart homemakers are aware of rice as an economical basis for budget-stretching meals. Some may not be aware that this nutritious food makes a marvelous base for cold salads as well as hot dishes.

This recipe for Golden Rice Salad teams cooked rice (simmer it in chicken broth for extra flavor!) with crunchy celery and chopped pickles, ripe olives and colorful pimientos. Hard-cooked eggs add extra protein and texture interest.

Golden Rice Salad: Rice, cooked in flavorful chicken broth, spiked with ripe olives, celery, pickles and hard-cooked eggs for color and appetite appeal, makes this a perfect dish for an outdoor party.

GOLDEN RICE SALAD

4-1/2	cups hot cooked rice (cooked in chicken broth)
1/4	cup vegetable oil
2	tablespoons vinegar
1-1/2	teaspoons salt
1/8	teaspoon ground black pepper
1/2	cup mayonnaise
2	tablespoons prepared mustard
1-1/2	cups sliced celery
1	cup sliced, pitted ripe olives
1/4	cup chopped dill pickles
1/4	cup chopped pimientos
1	small onion, minced
2	hard-cooked eggs, diced

Spoon rice into a large mixing bowl. Blend oil, vinegar, salt and pepper; pour over hot rice. Mix well; set aside to cool. Combine mayonnaise and mustard. Stir into rice mixture. Add celery, olives, pickles, pimientos, and onion. Mix well. Gently stir in eggs. Chill or serve at room temperature. Makes 8 servings.

Another dish that's big with crowds is Classic Rice Salad. It is made with rice, onions, sweet pickles, pimientos and hard cooked eggs in a mayonnaise and mustard sauce.

Both Golden Rice Salad and Classic Rice Salad can be made to serve 25 people very economically. The recipes for these—and for a nicely ricey assortment of six other cool and clever salads from around the world—can be found in a free booklet, ideal to tuck away in your "party" file.

For a copy, send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to: Rice Council, Dept. RS, Post Office Box 740121, Houston, Texas 77274. Ask for Rice Salads.

Manufactured Houses Eligible For Financing

HUD Under-Secretary, Donald I. Hovde, announced that new "mobile-manufactured houses" will soon be eligible for FHA Title II, Section 203.B financing. This will increase mortgage loan limits to $90,000, 100 per cent insured, and maturities up to 30 years which, Hovde pointed out, will enable manufactured housing "to make the dream of home ownership a reality for many thousands of Americans".

"Manufactured homes will play an important role in the administration's housing policy," he added, "especially because they constitute a free enterprise solution to the acute problem of housing affordability."

Even before this breakthrough, the trend was apparent, according to the International organization of real estate appraisers (IREA). After years of being viewed as the "stepchild" of the housing field, manufactured houses accounted for nearly 30 per cent of all new single-family home sales in 1980, at whatever price. In 1981, this reached the 35 per cent mark as industry sales increased nearly 10 per cent despite economic conditions that virtually demolished site-built house construction.

Ironically, in compiling figures on new home starts, the government excludes manufactured housing entirely. Side effect of HUD's newly announced financing policy, combined with other improvements in financing conditions, will be pressure from all sides to include factory-made "starts" in the data compiling and reporting process, according to housing experts.

"The time may not be too far away," one manufacturer said, "when site-built statistics will be excluded. It may not be too far off in fact, when manufactured homes amount to half of the national total. Maybe by then, people will realize that a house is what it is, and not how it was made or where it came from."

Special significance of Under-Secretary Hovde's announcement, says Fred Farley, executive director of the IREA, will be the increased use of manufactured houses on dweller-owned land, both individual lots and subdivisions where they are titled and taxed as real property. This, Farley feels, will accelerate the demand for larger models — those comparable to and compatible with site-built houses — by the middle-income families who cannot afford houses that now average $80,000 nationwide and that exceed $100,000 in those urbanized areas where the housing crisis is most acute.

By way of comparison, the typical multiple-section manufactured home ("double-wide") offers 1,200 to 1,500 or more square feet with three bedrooms and den, two baths, a separate utility room, dining room, 24 to 28 foot living room, and convenient, fully-equipped kitchen. Prices for this kind of house, with shingled roof and natural siding — oftentimes cathedral ceilings and wood-burning fireplace — run between $30,000 and $40,000, produced to a national code of construction and safety, transported (hence "mobile") to the site, and affixed on a permanent foundation system.

Upgraded FHA Title I program increases maximum limits on "home only" loans to $22,500 and 20 years for single-section models, and $35,000 and 23 years for multiple-section models. "Home and land" loans have been boosted to $35,000 and 20 years for single-section models on developed lots, and $47,500 and 25 years for multiple-section models on developed lots. Limits for lot only have been raised to $12,500.

Definition of a "developed lot" under FHA Title I, and, now Title II, include an interest in a condominium project or a share on a cooperative, both concepts receiving special attention by developers who see manufactured housing as a solution to their mounting problems.

Further provisions of this new HUD policy include:

—Authorization to refinance and extend FHA-insured loans within statutory limits.

—Permission for owners of lots bought with FHA assistance to refinance the purchase of the lots in connection with the purchase of a manufactured house, provided the borrower certifies that the home and lot will be his or her principal residence.

—An amendment to the Section 234 program of mortgage insurance for condominiums to include "mobile - manufactured homes" and home-and-lot combinations.

—Further extension of the Section 8 mortgage subsidy program to include manufactured housing.

In 1902, a 2-month strike of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union (AFL) was settled by providing preferential union hiring, a board of grievances and a board of arbitration. This laid the foundation for the "impartial chairman" method of settling labor disputes, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Beef Council Promotes Sale Of Products

Until April 1, the Minnesota beef council administered the beef checkoff program receiving 15 cents per head on cattle marketed by Minnesota producers. On February 22 beef producers determined, through a state-wide referendum, to increase the checkoff rate of 50 cents per head.

Governed by 16 active ranchers and feeders, the council develops a yearly scheme of activities, promotions and programs to fit annual revenue generated through producer support. From the 50 cents per head checkoff rate beginning this April, one-third will automatically be remitted to the beef industry council of the meat board in Chicago, IL.

With the meat board receiving one-third of all net checkoff receipts, three basic foundation services are provided for the industry in Minnesota: To develop fundamental human nutrition data and facts through scientific investigation and information gathering; develop fundamental meat handling facts for both home and food service through science and practice experience in the meat board's own kitchens; and develop and execute a national consumer marketing program designed to maintain and increase consumer demand for the beef product through advertising and promotion.

The entire industry benefits from the activities conducted by the meat board through market development, nutrition research, recipe development, food service program development and consumer services, the Minnesota beef council said. Most of the informational brochures and materials distributed through the council are developed by the meat board.

Above and beyond the one-third checkoff receipts committed to the meat board, the Minnesota beef council each year participates in a state and national beef advertising campaign with some 30 other state beef councils and cattlemen's groups.

The council conducts a variety of activities in the state, beginning with their largest during the Minnesota state fair. They reach some 40,000 consumers with nutrition, buying and cooking information, plus recipes.

All county extension services have received film-strip teaching kits on basic nutrition and beef cookery. Product cooking and cutting demonstrations are conducted around the state in conjunction with the Minnesota CowBelles during county fairs, civic functions and local beef promotions.

Thousands of recipe requests are received by the council from around the country through publicity in cookery publications for preparing beef in the microwave oven, storage of beef in the freezer and ways to save money and wisely purchase beef.

Minnesota beef council provides additional services to the beef industry by editing and printing the state newsletter for the Minnesota state cattlemen's association and coordinating their annual convention.

When you're considering fruit and cheese combinations, a handy way to remember what to serve, is this: with sweet fruits (honeydew or grapes) serve a mild-flavored cheese such as Brick; with tart fruits (apples), a strong-flavored cheese such as Cheddar.

Health Officials Issue Warning On Eating Fish

Periodically since 1970, the state Health Department has issued warnings about eating fish from certain lakes and rivers in Minnesota, in an effort to minimize human exposure to two types of potentially toxic substances — mercury and polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs). Recent studies have yielded new evidence that fish in some parts of the state are contaminated with these substances. The PCB contamination is largely confined to Lake Zumbro, and to certain stretches of the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers.

Mercury is naturally present, at low levels, in the environment. But certain forms of the metal, such as methylmercury, tend to accumulate over time in the tissue of fish, eventually reaching higher concentrations than those found in the surrounding soil and water. In some parts of Minnesota, the fish contain enough methylmercury to be potentially toxic, when eaten in large amounts.

Exposure to mercury at high levels, or for long periods of time, can produce a number of symptoms, including tingling and numbness of the hands, feet, nose and lips; loss of coordination; slurred speech; impaired hearing; drowsiness; narrowing of the visual field; irritability; and psychological problems like depression, anxiety and loss of self confidence.

Pregnant women are more sensitive to methylmercury poisoning than the general adult population, according to Department authorities, and they tend to exhibit mild, short-lived symptoms at lower levels of exposure. The fetus is believed to be about twice as sensitive to methylmercury as the average adult. Department has recommended that pregnant women and young children eat no more than half the maximum amount of fish normally allowed under its general consumption guidelines.

Department authorities also caution that, because methylmercury tends to accumulate in the human body, the amount of fish that can safely be eaten will depend on the length of time over which they're eaten. Department's guidelines generally apply to people who will be eating fish from the affected waters over a period of one month or longer. People who will be eating the fish over a shorter period of time — a week, for instance — can safely eat the maximum allowable amount for an entire month during that time. That assumes, however, that they will not be exposed to mercury — or PCBs — from some other source during the rest of the month.

PCBs are toxic industrial chemicals. Although their use was curtailed in 1971, they are still sometimes found in waste water and river bottom sediment. They tend to accumulate in the fatty tissue of fish living in contaminated waters.

PCBs can affect the human liver and nervous system, and cause a serious skin disease called chloracne. Other toxic effects have been seen in animals, including a severe effect on reproduction in some species.

PCBs have been found in the milk of nursing mothers exposed to significant sources of contamination.

PCBs were also found, in one long term study, to cause liver cancer in rats. That finding has led many observers to conclude that PCBs may also be carcinogenic for humans. U.S. Food and Drug Administration has proposed lowering the permissible concentration of PCBs in commercially sold fish from five parts per million to two parts per million. Although the new standard has yet to be formally adopted, it was taken into account in formulating the new Minnesota fish consumption guidelines.

Computers Help Handicapped Children Learn

Advances in computer technology are making it possible for handicapped children to take charge of their own learning, reports an article in the April issue of PTA Today", the magazine of the National PTA.

Computers enable all human beings to fully realize their learning potential, a fact which has far-reaching implications for the education of children with special physical, intellectual, or emotional problems, according to Adeline Naiman, author of the article.

"With the aid of computers, we may stop thinking of some fraction of children as 'special' and instead think of all children as a continuum in which each child has a particular place and need not be set apart," she says.

Because children naturally enjoy working with computers, can quickly learn how to use them, and find them highly motivating, even students previously considered slow learners have blossomed with computers, Naiman reports. "Their lack of verbal facility doesn't seem to matter. They can go at their own rate until they get something to their satisfaction. Sometimes they can even teach others what they have learned," she says.

Innovations in educational computer software are providing many of the greatest benefits for special children, according to Naiman. For example, computers afford dyslexic children a means of expression that they can learn from and control without their usual anxieties. Ingenious arithmetic programs which use graphics help children understand abstract concepts they have previously failed to grasp.

Computers provide instant feedback, report mistakes immediately and put the student in charge — factors which maximize the student's chances for success. "This is heady stuff, especially for children whose academic experience has been disheartening. It also gives their heads a chance to work, and then work some more. Their minds stretch — nothing is more exciting," Naiman says.

Naiman also discusses equipment designed for specific physical handicaps, such as graphics tablets for children who cannot control their hand movements. Tablets will convert crude or wobbly drawings into crisp letters or numbers.

Copies of the April issue of "PTA Today" are available for $1 each by sending a check or money order (made payable to National PTA) to National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611 (312) 787-0977.

Aphid Poses Damage Threat To Honeysuckle

A new pest, the honeysuckle aphid has been identified in northwestern Minnesota. The aphid is about one-sixteenth inch long, light tan or gray in color with six legs. It is usually found inside folds of infested leaves. The aphid is considered a moderately severe threat to ornamental and windbreak honeysuckle plantings, according to Ralph Rundell of the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

Sap feeding by the insect causes a stunting of plant terminals and a lengthwise folding of the new plant leaves with the upperside in. This is the location where the aphid typically feeds. Another symptom is the formation of witches' brooms on the shoots. Witches' brooms form by the development of a large number of shoots clustered on a shortened twig. The clusters of dead twigs and leaves remain attached to the plant throughout the winter. Reinfestation takes place the next spring below the old witches' broom.

There appears to be a variation in the susceptibility within honeysuckle varieties (cultivars) to attack and for damage. Virtually all tatarica (tartarian) cultivars as well as Canadian White and Zavel's Honeysuckle are susceptible to the aphid. Amur, Clavey's Dwarf, "Arnold Red" and Emerald Mound offer some resistance. Very little if any damage has been noted on these cultivars. More research is being conducted to get a better understanding of the potential for cultural control of the pest. There are a number of alternatives to be considered to minimize the damage caused by the aphid.

(1) Pruning and destroying the witches' broom from the plants is highly recommended if practical. They are easily identified because the leaves remain attached to the clusters throughout the winter. Only the deformed terminals need to be removed. It is not necessary to prune the whole bush to the ground. Heavy pruning should be avoided until the plants become dormant. Pruning can be done in the fall and throughout the winter. It is best to have the witches' brooms removed before the plants leaf out in the spring. The aphid lays it's eggs on the leaves and they overwinter there until warmer weather.

(2) If pruning is not practical and you are not too concerned with the appearance of the hockeysuckle, you can wait until spring to evaluate the damage, if any. At this time, if there is little die-back and the plants appear to be healthy and vigorous, you may choose not to do anything. The aphid may indirectly cause the plant to die after several years of infestation. The plants become weak and unhealthy if heavily infested, resulting in the death of the plant in some instances.

(3) If pruning is not practical and you want to control the insect damage, you can apply a foliar systemic insecticide. This type of insecticide is absorbed into the plants within a matter of a few minutes to kill sap feeding insects. They also kill on contact. Because of the way the aphid feeds inside the folded leaves, this is a more effective insecticide than malathion, for example.

The aphids probably hatch around the middle or late April. The first spray is applied when the insect is first noticed, again when the plants have leafed out. A follow-up spraying is needed sometime from the middle to last of June. The insecticides will last from four to six weeks. At the present time, Isotox and Orthene are labled for use on honeysuckle. Both contain the same active ingredient, acephate. In the future more systemic insecticides may be legal to use. When using chemicals always read and follow the label for proper rates and directions.

How they are raised

Who says dogs and cats don't get along. It's all in how they are raised.

The same is true in our emerging relationships with one another. Given the right influences in the early years we learn respect and tolerance, friendliness and forgiveness.

The Church is especially important in this aspect of raising a family. As part of his religious education a child learns that his relationship with others is a practical expression of his relationship with God. The youngster's reverence and growing faith begin to be reflected in his treatment of others at home, at school and in his community.

This vital area of every child's growth depends on his parents awareness of his spiritual needs. Next week—every week—provide for your youngster's religious education. Your place of worship is eager to help.

Senior Citizens News

Eleven registered at our center Thursday, May 12. We were happy to have Sally Weiler and Ruth Anderson back with us. This is the first time for them at the center this year. Hope you will be able to be with us every Thursday from now on, and hope all the other ladies who are unable to come will be soon ready to come and join us too.

Thursday Polly and Anna Rud sewed around the bonded crazy quilt, what is left to sew, Mildred will do on Friday to finish it.

Polly also priced and put on display some good rummage. Most of the other ladies fluffed up Arctic scraps for stuffing bed pillows.

Ruth Harper read the treasurers report; later she and Mildred wrapped up three seven piece dish towel sets to send to Elsie's friend who lives in Florida. She visited us a few years ago and bought two sets at that time, now she wants three more sets.

We have sold quilts from our center to people in different states and now our dish towels are being sent to other states also. That gives us a good feeling and I think you will allow us to be a bit proud.

We signed and sent three cheer and get well cards to Elsie K., Ella Thun and Sara Wikstrom.

We prayed the table grace before eating our lunch.

Sally was our hostess, paying for the food that Polly and Mildred prepared.

WORD FROM WASHINGTON

Congress May Protect Bank Depositors Against Tax Withholding On Interest And Dividends

*By William H. Kennedy, Jr.
President Of The American Bankers Association*

At a time when most Americans feel pinched by "the weak" economy and squeezed by taxes at every turn, millions of citizens have written to Congress to protest a new law that will require ten percent of interest and dividends be withheld for taxes.

The withholding law, part of a major tax bill passed by Congress last summer, requires that beginning July 1, banks and other financial institutions withhold taxes on interest and dividend payments which are normally not paid until the end of the year.

Kennedy

Many experts on finance believe withholding represents a loss of control over their financial affairs and strongly prefer to pay the taxes themselves at the end of the year.

Some citizens suspect that ten percent will increase to twenty percent or higher, as have other taxes, and that states and even cities will soon be in line with additional withholdings. One state legislature has already approved a three percent add-on withholding.

The IRS already matches the 1099 interest report forms they receive against individual tax returns, to identify delinquent taxpayers. Refinements in that system can be made if needed that would not penalize nine out of ten taxpayers who report all their interest and dividends. Those intent on cheating will be able to get around withholding by other ways, most believe.

Substantial congressional support for repeal of this law exists, but repeal is more likely to be successful if congressmen continue to hear from voters on this issue. You can reach congressmen at the U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515 and senators at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

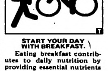
FEELIN'GREAT!

Good Health Equation = Exercise + Nutrition



A growing number of health-conscious people are learning that regular planned exercise coupled with a well-balanced diet is the winning combination for both a healthy mind and body.

A regular, moderate exercise program not only increases muscle strength and endurance, but improves the functioning of the heart and lungs. Exercise also is beneficial in releasing mental and physical tension and in maintaining ideal body weight.

It is especially important that people of all ages acknowledge the role nutrition plays in physical fitness. The secret of a balanced diet is to eat a wide variety of foods in moderation. Follow these five steps to good nutrition and health:

SELECT FOODS FROM EACH OF THE FOUR BASIC FOOD GROUPS.

The greater the variety of foods eaten, the better chance your body has to get all the nutrients it needs. Remember, no single food alone supplies all the essential nutrients in the proper amounts.

DO NOT SKIP MEALS.

Skipping meals does not "save" calories. Studies indicate that by eating only one or two large meals a day, the body tends to accumulate more fat than when the same number of total calories for the day are eaten as smaller, more frequent meals.

START YOUR DAY WITH BREAKFAST.

Eating breakfast contributes to daily nutrition by providing essential nutrients and energy. A morning which begins with breakfast may result in greater efficiency and a better frame of mind. Kellogg offers great-tasting cereals which can get you started on eating a nutritious breakfast.

INCLUDE FIBER-RICH FOODS IN YOUR DIET.

All plant foods contain fiber. Foods rich in dietary fiber include fruits, vegetables, whole-grain breads and cereals, bran cereals, nuts, and legumes. Adding more dietary fiber to your diet can be as easy and delicious as eating a bowl of Kellogg's bran cereal with milk for breakfast or adding bran cereal to your favorite recipes.

BALANCE CALORIC INTAKE WITH ENERGY EXPENDITURE.

Maintaining desired weight can best be acheived by developing sound dietary habits coupled with a regular exercise program.

May is Physical Fitness Month, so follow the good health equation and stay healthy.

A Dessert To Win You Compliments

Miniature jelly-roll slices lend a jewel-like look to this impressive ice cream cake and a sprinkling of Amaretto di Saronno adds intriguing flavor. The popular Italian liqueur, the original amaretto, also gives a spirited touch to the luscious raspberry sauce that crowns all this goodness.

ICE CREAM CAKE MELBA

Cut two 7-ounce packages miniature jelly rolls into 1/2-inch slices and line bottom and sides of a 2-pound coffee can, reserving some slices for top. Sprinkle slices with 1/3 cup Amaretto di Saronno. Spoon 1-1/2 pints each of peach and vanilla ice cream into can. Top with reserved slices. Freeze for several hours. For sauce, mix 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/2 cup Amaretto di Saronno and juice drained from two thawed 10-ounce packages frozen raspberries. Stir over medium heat until sauce bubbles and thickens. Stir in raspberries. Cover and chill. To remove cake from can, cut bottom from can with can opener, leave in place and use to push out cake. Garnish cake with whipped cream, if desired. Cut into long wedges and serve with raspberry sauce. Makes 8 servings. (For 4 servings, just halve recipe and mold in a 1-pound can.)

How Can I Be Sure My Child's Shoes Are Fitted Properly?

By Ross Tennant, D.P.M.

To many parents, young children outgrow their shoes at an alarming rate. It's not uncommon to go through four pairs of shoes the first year your child is walking.

Tennant

Fitting children is much more difficult than fitting adults because children's feet are still growing and do not follow any consistent pattern. A good fitter will ensure that the shoe will not interfere with the natural function and development of the foot. Here are some steps that should be followed:

- Toe room of about 1/2 to 2/3 inch should be allowed for the healthy growth and normal functioning of the foot. An experienced fitter knows that too much room in a shoe is unnecessary and could cause foot irritation.
- Proper fit at the shoe's throat, which is at the base of the tongue, is very important but too often ignored. Since more than three-fourths of a foot's growth is between the ball and heel and less than one-fourth in the toes, a too tight fit at the instep not only prevents the foot from moving forward as it grows but is probably the most common cause of heel irritation.
- The fitter should check your child walking in the new shoes. When the heel is lifted in step-taking, there should be easy creasing across the toes in a lace-type shoe. There should be moderate creasing and some gaping at the sides, if it's a dress shoe open over the instep. These are important signs of a proper fit.
- Don't insist on a particular shoe size since one manufacturer's size 6 may be another's 6½ or 7. An experienced fitter measures to determine foot size and then selects the proper size shoe. It's the fit, not the size, that's important.

For free booklets about your baby's feet, write to: Your Baby, P.O. Box 815B, Quincy, Massachusetts 02269.

Dr. Tennant, consultant for the Stride Rite Corporation, spent the past 30 years in the study and improvement of shoes, their use and application.

Highway Work Means Caution When Driving

Increased highway improvement project work during the spring and summer months means motorists need to use extra caution and be especially alert for crews working along Minnesota's highway for both their own and the worker's safety.

Curt Christie, state maintenance engineer with the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT), said highway workers must rely on cooperation from motorists for safety because their ability to see and hear oncoming traffic is limited by flying dust, equipment noise and the attention their work demands.

Accidents have occurred, Christie said, when motorists failed to observe a warning sign or signal or failed to respond in time to a lane shift or other change in the normal traffic flow. .

To reduce the possibility of accidents, Christie urges that motorists take the following precautions: follow directions given by flagpersons in a work area; reduce speed in work areas; observe traffic lane changes in the project area; stay alert to sudden movements of equipment and-or workers in the area as well as to other traffic passing through the work site and move into another land on divided highways or use special caution on two-lane highways when passing trucks and other equipment.

Our trucks and other equipment will use flashing blue and yellow lights to alert motorists," Christie said, "and our crews will use cones and other barriers to separate themselves from the traffic flow. But safety really depends on the cooperation between the driving public and highway work crews."

Check Rental Car Operation Before Driving

If you rent a car and the agent doesn't show you how the accessories and components operate, don't just get in the car and drive off.

Take a few minutes to familiarize yourself with how everything works to avoid problems down the road, advises the Automotive Information council (AIC).

One renter tells the story about arriving at an airport at night with two other people, all of whom were in a hurry to reach a convention banquet.

A heavy rainstorm began after a few miles down the highway. The driver looked for the wiper knob but couldn't locate it. No one else in the car knew where it might be. The highway was too narrow to have a pull-off area so he proceeded slowly to get under an overpass and then was able to get off the road to check the owner's manual. The wiper switch on that car was on the turn-signal lever on the left side of the steering column, not on the instrument panel.

In retrospect, the driver realizes that he had jeopardized not only those in the car but others on the road who had to maneuver around his "blind" driving.

Unfamiliar rental cars also should be checked out for the location of the headlight switch, including the high-beam activator, plus operation of the cruise control, air conditioning, heater, horn, turn signals, windshield washer and everything else that might be needed.

Drivers also should familiarize themselves with the radio operation before starting out so they don't try to set station push-buttons while driving. Also set the seat position and the mirrors before driving away.

A few minutes spent asking the agent or skimming the owner's manual can help assure a safe trip, says AIC.

LAWN LORE

PROPER MOWING PROCEDURES

In the old days there was a saying—not based on fact—that "let the grass grow to strengthen the roots." Ignore this advice.

Turf experts explain, the strength of the roots depends on the species of grass, the permeability of the soil, moisture availability as well as the feeding and mowing programs.

All lawns should be mowed at a height and frequency that removes no more than the upper third of the green leaf each time the grass is cut. It is important never to strip the lawn of all green leaves. The green foliage not only contributes to lawn beauty, but is vital for the survival of the grass, since it is the green that transforms the sun's energy into new plant cells.

How often should you mow? During periods of rapid growth, most lawns need mowing at least once a week. When grass top growth slows down, the mowing schedule can be relaxed somewhat. Start mowing in the spring, at least once a week, more often during the wet spring months when grass grows rapidly. Continue mowing as late in fall as the grass is growing.

Avoid the temptation to mow too low. This can weaken the grass and encourage weeds and other problems. As a general rule, most lawns do best when cut at about 1 1/2 to 2 1/2" in height (usually one to two notches from the maximum setting on most mowers) in spring and fall. In summer, raise the height an additional notch.

The most common reason for an unkept, ragged lawn appearance is dull mower blades. They beat and tear the grass, rather than produce a good clean cut.

Some people believe that leaving grass clippings adds nutrients to your lawn. Although they do add small amounts of nutrients, the quantities are not enough to meet the continuing needs of the lawn. Heavy clippings should not be left on lawns because of the smothering effect which can cause yellowing and browning of turf in addition to causing an unsightly appearance.

If you have a question about your lawn, you can talk with an expert at Scotts by dialing, toll free, (800) 543-TURF. In Ohio, the number is (800) 762-4010. There is no charge or obligation for this service.

Says Renewable Energy Could Help Economy

Renewable energy sources and conservation can help solve Minnesota's economic problems. Renewable energy sources include solar, wind, bio-mass and hydropower. Renewable energy businesses in Minnesota are labor intensive providing jobs and tax revenues for our communities, according to Dr. Brett Smith, economist, speaking at a series of solar showcases in Minnesota.

Millions of dollars flow from Minnesota each day for imported coal and petroleum products. According to the Minnesota department of energy planning and development (MNEPD), this dollar drain amounted to losses of more than $3.6 billion for Minnesotans in 1980. By 1985, spending for coal, oil, natural gas and uranium will be over $4.5 billion. This represents $1,100 for every man, woman and child in the state. By 1985, projected fuel costs will amount to more than 10 per cent of the sum of all personal incomes in the state.

Most of the dollars spent on natural gas and oil products leave the state. This dollar drain means less local spending, smaller local income, fewer local jobs and a smaller tax base. In a document of the Minnesota department of energy planning and development, it is reported that this fuel dollar drain will cost Minnesotans $2.4 billion dollars in total state product and 87,000 jobs by 1985, Dr. Smith said.

The good news is that this path of imported fuel dependence and economic loss can be avoided. We can reduce this dollar drain and promote local economic development through renewable energy. Like all local investment projects, investments in conservation and renewable energy sources like solar, wind or bio-mass create jobs through direct employment in manufacturing, distribution, installation, design and marketing. More jobs are then created in providing raw materials, supplies, transportation, insurance, real estate, financial and legal services. The third way jobs and economic activity are created is when employed people spend their money locally for food, clothing and entertainment and support local businesses and their employees. This ripple created by a dollar as it winds its way through the economy is the multiplier effect.

According to the Minnesota department of energy planning and development, one dollar spent on solar energy has an economic multiplier of 2.34. That means that one dollar spent on solar energy generates $2.34 of total economic activity. Only 31 cents of that activity leaves the state so Minnesota retains $2.13 of that activity. One dollar spent on conservation has an economic multiplier of $2.55; $2.21 of which remains here in Minnesota creating new demand, more jobs and revenues for Minnesotans.

By comparison, every dollar spent on petroleum products generates $1.34 of total economic activity; 80 cents drain from the state, leaving only 55 cents to recirculate in our economy. For every dollar spent on natural gas, $1.40 of economic activity is generated but 81 cents leaves the state and only 59 cents remains. Minnesotans lose money, jobs and revenue every time they spend a dollar on petroleum products or natural gas, but gain money, jobs and revenue for every dollar spent locally on renewable energy and conservation.

Even though the homeowner and the business save directly through renewable energy and conservation investment, the real impact of the savings is the money that stays in Minnesota. In the 1982 biennial report of the MDEPD, it is stated that an aggressive renewable energy and conservation strategy could add $3 billion to the gross state product and create 84,000 additional jobs in the next seven years. Seventy per cent of this impact can be attributed to the re-spending effect.

From an economic point of view, renewables have a number of advantages over traditional fossil fuels in addition to their potential for money and job creation. Most renewables are environmentally safe and provide an alternative to strip mining, acid rain and the risks inherent to nuclear energy. Renewables can reduce our dependency on politically unstable oil suppliers. Renewable energy investment lends itself to small scale individual and local business operations that employ local people and expand the local tax base, Dr. Smith adds.

Minnesota Solar Resource Advisory Panel, a citizen organization working for the development of renewable energy resources in Minnesota, may be contacted by writing Nancy Fish, Summit Hill Mall, 41 South Oxford, St. Paul, Minnesota 55105 or calling (612) 292-8805.

In 1948, General Motors Corp. and the United Automobile Workers (CIO) signed the first major contract with an "escalator" clause, providing for wage increases based on the Consumer Price Index, according to "Important Events in American Labor History, 1778-1978," a U.S. Labor Department publication.

Multiple Winners Noted In North Country Show

Several exhibitors came up as multiple winners but the caliber of cars on display was considered outstanding when the fourth annual North Country Auto Showtime was conducted Saturday and Sunday in Thief River Falls. There were 101 cars entered, about 3,000 paid attendance and 4,000 total attendance including youngsters and senior citizens.

First place trophy in the people's choice division, voted by visitors to the show, went to Chuck Chaplinski of Middle River for his 1983 Ford "Tonner" custom truck. Chaplinski also won first place in the special interest category.

Second place in people's choice went to Dale Johnson of Keewatin with his 1963 Ford Fairlane. Johnson also won first place in the category for street machine 1955-66, plaque for best street machine paint, "wild" category in the best paint division and "mild" category in the best engine division.

Third place in the people's choice category was won by Russell Olson of Newfolden with a 1953 Chevrolet Belair. Olson was also a winner of third place in the 1928-35 antique class with a 1929 Ford Model A roadster, won first place in the convertible class with the 1953 Chevrolet and a plaque for best paint in the stock class.

Mayor's award, selected and announced by Mayor Bob Carlson who also welcomed the crowd and assisted in trophy presentations, was given to Kelly Bartley of Selkirk, Man., Canada, with a 1931 Essex. Bartley placed second in the Antique 1928-35 division with the Essex, won first place in the Collector 1936-1954 division and earned a plaque for best engine in the stock category.

Stacey Sandberg, Miss Thief River Falls, also assisted with the awards presentation and made her selection for a winner of the Miss Thief River Falls trophy. She selected a 1966 Continental convertible entered by Mike Douglas of Stephen.

Several other special awards were made during the awards ceremony which took place in the sports arena at 4 p.m. Sunday. Club participation award for the club outside of Thief River Falls contributing the most to success of the local show as presented by Loren Lendobeja of the sponsoring Prairie Schooners street rod club to the Mid-Range Machines club. Ag Agenda In Legislature Has New Priorities

Special To The Times from Northern Star News Service

Going into this year's legislative session it appeared Minnesota would be pursuing an ambitious agricultural agenda in 1983. In the final weeks of the session, some of that agenda has bogged down while a few new priorities have appeared.

A state minimum pricing scheme designed to help hike agricultural product prices and proposals to help troubled farmers with state-backed loans both appear to be dead this year.

The stock rose on one bill designed to assure milk quality by adopting federal inspection standards because a couple states threatened to stop accepting Minnesota dairy products.

A compromise farm foreclosure bill designed to help those farmers who can prove they've been hit hard because of bad economic times appears to have a good chance for passage.

Export promotion, designed to boost sales of farm products outside the state and country is under study in the committees working out the details for state spending over the next two years.

Although Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer said a loan program for farmers who need money to buy seeds and other materials for this season will not become a reality, he expects federal funds will help farmers.

There will be more money for farmers through the FMHA agencies, Stumpf said, and that will take up some of the slack.

Stumpf said he has severe reservations about the minimum pricing bill because it is a "huge subject that pertains to the United States and the international community. There are problems with the bill that have not been addressed thoroughly," he said.

The senator points to the grain buyers' act as an important bill. He feels it is one of several agriculture bills that have run into problems.

Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls supported the bill to upgrade milk quality standards for all Minnesota milk, and he wants a loan program to be a part of the bill, he said.

State-backed loans are needed, Sparby said, but he admits the state is having a problem with financing these loans.

Sparby agrees with the reasoning behind a farm foreclosure bill that would extend the time a farmer

MnDOT Lifts Spring Weight Restrictions

Springtime weight restrictions for state highways in zone six, north of trunk highway two, were lifted on May 13, according to district engineer Bob Wolfe of the Minnesota department of transportation. Weight restrictions in zone five, south of trunk highway two were lifted on May 6.

Some routes in this area will continue to be restricted until further notice however. These include: trunk highway 89 between trunk highway 219 and Roseau, trunk highway 38 between Effie and Grand Rapids and trunk highway one between Ely and trunk highway 61.

In addition, some routes south of trunk highway two remain restricted. These include: trunk highway 73 between Cromwell and Floodwood and trunk highway 210 between Carlton and Fond Du Lac.

Weight restrictions are still in effect in much of southern Minnesota due to the wet spring.

School Board Meets Tonight

Thief River Falls board of education will conduct its regular meeting tonight (Monday) at 8 p.m. in the school district service center board room. Discussion of equal opportunity compliance program concerns, report from the children and parents learning together program, transportation and personnel matters will be among agenda items.

Cab Fares Are Council Topic

Thief River Falls city council will hold its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers at city auditorium. Topics on the agenda will include a requested fare increase from $2.50 to $3 for Fred's Cab, with a possible subsidy of some type for senior citizens. Council is also expected to take final action on purchase of the Toreq building for use by utilities and parks departments.

Times To Print Monday Issue This Saturday

Because of the Memorial day holiday on Monday, the May 30 issue of the Times will be published on Saturday of this week. The earlier publication will require advanced deadlines for news and advertising copy for that edition.

Cooperation of advertisers and news sources in providing early copy is appreciated by the Times staff. The May 30 issue should be available on local newsstands early Saturday afternoon.

Reservations Needed For Reunion At St. Hilaire

Encouraged by the response to the all-school reunion planned for the St. Hilaire centennial celebration this summer, reunion chairman Woody Almquist is also concerned that those attending make their reservations in time for adequate preparations to be made.

"We have set a deadline of June 15 for reservations with the reunion banquet to be held at 6 p.m. on Saturday, July 2," Almquist said. "The ladies aid from the church in St. Hilaire will be serving the dinner, and they have to know how many people they will be expected to serve."

Almquist said that there were 315 graduates of the high school in St. Hilaire from 1920 to 1943 and that 76 of those are deceased. He has obtained addresses and contacted all the rest and provided them with information on the reunion. The response has been far beyond his expectations.

While only graduates of the St. Hilaire school have been contacted, other St. Hilaire students are also welcome to attend the reunion, Almquist said. The only restriction is that they get in contact with him and pay the $10 reunion fee by the June 15 deadline.

For those who attended the St. Hilaire school before high school classes were offered there, a special "Old Timers" table will be arranged for the banquet to be held in the national guard armory in Thief River Falls. Again, advance registration is necessary.

Graduates of the school in St. Hilaire between 1920 and 1943 will be seated at tables according to their classes. Two of the three graduates of the class of 1920 are still living and at least one is expected to attend, Almquist noted. Daughters and granddaughters of graduates will serve as waitresses for the banquet.

Others who attended the St. Hilaire school but are not graduates will be served buffet style at the armory. The same will apply to friends or relatives of graduates who would like to attend.

"We wanted to have an open invitation for anyone who would like to attend the reunion," Almquist said, "but we want to emphasize the importance of everyone who plans to attend to make an advance reservation. Letters for registration, including the $10 registration fee, should be sent to the Reunion Committee, St. Hilaire, MN 56754."

In addition to the July 2 evening banquet, a gathering will be held beginning at 12 noon that same day at the St. Hilaire school building. Registration will be taken at the south door of the gymnasium portion of the building. Pictures and historical items will be displayed at the kindergarten room of the school and those attending the reunion are encouraged to visit the building and spend the afternoon renewing

To Retain Knox In Reserve Role

Discision to retain Knox elementary school with sufficient heat and custodial services for at least one more year was made by the Thief River Falls board of education at its regular meeting Tuesday evening in the board room of the school district service center.

The board also approved placement of 22 certified staff members on unrequested leave effective the end of the 1982-83 school year, purchased a computer for the AVTI drafting program and sold the 1982-83 AVTI carpentry program house for $65,135.

Placed on unrequested leave were Helen Anderson, Janet Anton, Margaret Faye Bolin, Joyce Brandt, Jean Buhl, Katherine Campbell, Jessie Comstock, Douglas Engstrom, Randy Johnson, Rodney Johnson, Janet Kemper, Diane Marshall, Glenna Moen, Marilyn Nelson, Dean Ornquist, Danie Packard, David C. Peterson, Judith Schmit, Rita Soine, Greg Stauss, Wilton Swenson and Jean Turtle.

Scott Bentson was awarded purchase of the AVTI carpentry project house on the basis of his high bid. Computer for the drafting department was purchased at a cost of $13,500. Ed Turenne and the Rex cafe were awarded the bid to provide food services for the AVTI and NCC cafeteria-commons for the 1983-84 and 1984-85 school years.

Upon recommendation by Supt. Robert Block, the following were reinstated in the 1983-84 school budget:

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Carl Burrells Honored On 50th Anniversary

Approximately 200 relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Burrell on Sunday, May 8, to help them celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. They were married May 31, 1933.

Hosting the open house were the couple's three children and their spouses: Conrad and Marge Burrell of Middle River; Juanita and Merton Hutchinson of Thief River Falls, and Ronald and Beverly Burrell of Salem, Ore.

For the occasion, the house and yard were decorated in lavender and white by grandson, Randy Burrell and daughter-in-law, Bev Burrell. Burrell. Cutting and serving the cake were Alma Wagner, their bridesmaid, and Mrs. Emmett Wagner, a sister-in-law. Granddaughters: Julie Ellis poured the coffee, and Susan Burrell and Michele Hutchinson served the punch and presided at the gold covered guest book a gift from Michele and Paul Hutchinson. Relatives and friends were in charge of providing the food and serving.

Corsages worn by the couple were gifts from a granddaughter, Mrs. Daniel Anderson. Mrs. Scott Brandon, another granddaughter, made the centerpieces.

Relatives and friends attending were from Fargo, N.D., Chicago, Ill.; Portland, and Salem, Ore.; Kent, Wash.; Karlstad, Strathcona, Middle River, Holt, Newfolden, Goodridge, Gatzke, Warren, St. Hilaire, Brooks, Bloomington, Virginia and the Thief River Falls area.

WCTU District Convention Held At Newfolden

Woman's Christian Temperance Union District Seven North 50th annual convention was held Thursday, May 12, at the Evangelical Free church in Newfolden. The theme, based on the year's study "Challenging Pathways," featured the Bible verses "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart. . . and He shall direct thy paths," Prov. 3:5-6.

The convention was hosted by the Newfolden Union, with Rev. Earl Eveland, pastor of the church, reading Gal. 5:16-24 for devotions. The flag ceremony was led by the Warren Union. Marge Olson of Newfolden gave the welcome and Evelyn Lillo of Roseau responded by reading Psalm 118:24, and Psalm 145:18.

District President Pearl Loe presided at the meeting. She displayed the program of the district's 25th convention. Of the officers presiding at that meeting, only Mrs. Martin Mosbeck was present at the Newfolden convention. It was noted that Mrs. Eber Conklin is a resident at Valley Home, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Mildred Westacott is residing at Valley Home in Grand Forks, N.D.

As a special feature at the morning session, the state officers presented the skit "What WCTU Means to Me." They held the sign "Abstinence" and gave information on the affects of alcoholic beverages, beginning with the letters in the word. Participating in the skit were Ruth Njaa, Mrs. Alida Brekke, Mrs. Emma Reko and Mrs. Evelyn Lillo.

The afternoon session began with a White Ribbon ceremony led by Mrs. Eleanor Scherling of Bemidji tying the white ribbon of abstinence on the wrist of Jennifer Hogberg, presented by her grandmother Donna Mae Hogberg. Dorothy Brinkman led the memorial service for WCTU members who had died during the year. Listed were Olga Austin and Luelle Bjorkman, who were members of Roseau union, and Olga Peterson, a member of the Warren union.

In the Martron's speech contest, there were four contestants. Winning the Gold Medal was Ruth Hanson of Newfolden for her presentation of Psalm I and 19. Others participating were Clara Stotts and Mrs. B. Davey of Wannaska and Mrs. Scherling.

In the poster contest, Janell Williamson of Thief River Falls placed first with her poster, "Let Go and Let God." Mrs. Laverna Grand presented the resolutions, which were adopted, and Mrs. Ward Field, Alvarado, reported on the success in defeating the liquor bill in Alvarado.

Members were urged to write their legislators voicing their opinion on House bill 119, regarding homosexuals.

All district officers were re-elected. They are Mrs. Gilbert Loe, Wannaska, president; Mrs. Robert McWaters, Crookston, vice-president; Mrs. Olive Olson, Roseau, promotion secretary; Mrs. Clifford Skime, Roseau, treasurer; Mrs. Gunda Gelder, Crookston, recording secretary; Mrs. Eleanor Scherling, Bemidji, LTL director, and Mrs. Robert McWaters, Crookston, Youth Temperance camp director. Mrs. Elaine Ose will continue as projection, methods director and Mrs. Valborg Hanson will remain in charge of social service. Both are Thief River Falls residents.

Unions represented at the convention were from Bemidji, Crookston, Wannaska, Roseau, Warren, Newfolden and Thief River Falls.

Announcement was made that the National and International WCTU convention will be held July 12-20 at Itasca, Ill., and the Minnesota state convention will be held September 27-29 at Wannaska.

Presenting vocal selections at the convention were Myrtle Espe and Mrs. Inez Gjovik with Donna Mae Hogberg accompanist.

The convention concluded with the group joining hands and singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." During the followship hour that followed, refreshments were homemade doughnuts, a decorated anniversary cake, coffee and fruit juice.

DID YOU KNOW?

WCTU MESSAGE

ALCOHOLISM IS A DISEASE.

ANSWER: FALSE. Alcoholism is not a disease; it is a sin. God calls it "drunkenness."[1]

By calling drunkenness a disease rather than a sin, we treat it as a physical problem rather than what it is in reality — a spiritual problem. In so doing, we eliminate the potential for the real and lasting solution.

Sin is only removed as we confess it and claim the desire and power of God's grace to forsake it. If one sin, such as drunkenness, cannot be forsaken, it indicates that there is a deeper sin which is not being dealt with.

"I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings."[2]

Ag Agenda In Legislature Has New Priorities

would have before foreclosure proceedings will begin. "It may help some people who are depending on the economy to turn around," he said.

Many legislators look to the federal government for much of the work to be done to help farmers. They point to the PIK or payment-in-kind program as an action that can do more than any state program.

The early evidence appears to support that because Minnesota farmers are planting less acres of corn this season than at any time in more than 30 years.

One bill designed to help dairy farmers indirectly goes beyond federal law and may be headed for passage. It would require prominent labeling of all artificial dairy products.

The bill passed the Senate without opposition and is waiting for action on the House floor.

If passed, all artificial cheeses, creams and powdered milks would indicate their nutritional value on the label while noting they are not real milk or milk-derived products.

Non-liquid toppings, dry coffee whiteners, dips, dressings and margarine-type products would be exempt from these requirements.

A bill raising Minnesota's milk quality standards to the level recommended by the USDA differs in the House and Senate because of a controversial loan program.

The House version includes state-backed loans requiring a $330,000 appropriation. The money would help grade B milk producers meet the new requirements.

The Senate bill passed 57-0 without the loan provision while the House version is waiting for floor action.

In a farm crisis report issued earlier this year, a task force proposed two state-guaranteed loan programs. One would allocate money so struggling farmers could buy seeds and chemicals helping them through this planting season.

The other would set aside funds for farmers who are near default on their mortgages and facing foreclosure.

The loan programs would be guaranteed by the state, requiring some money to be set aside out of state coffers.

Lack of action in the House appears to have killed the loan programs, although a Senate committee okayed a crop planting loan program and sent it to the finance committee for further consideration.

The alternative to state-backed loans is a change in foreclosure laws allowing strapped borrowers more time on their paybacks. A borrower who proves that depressed economic conditions led to his inability to make payments can seek relief in a bill passed in the House 97-34. That bill also provides for a 60-day notice of pending foreclosure.

The senate has passed a bill containing only the 60-day notice provision, but is also expected to take action on the House-backed bill.

A large portion of Gov. Rudy Perpich's ambitious export marketing proposal has survived early committee action. Whether that holds up or not remains unknown as the money committees work right up to deadline putting together an omnibus appropriations bill.

acquaintances and friendships. The school building is now in private ownership but permission has been given for the reunion activities there.

Almquist pointed out that since the last graduating class at St. Hilaire received diplomas in 1943, the youngest graduates attending the reunion will be about 58 years of age. The first year's graduates would be about 81 years old.

"With the tremendous response we have received already, we are looking forward to a very interesting and enjoyable reunion," Almquist said. "I have had terrific help from members of the committee. All we need now is for those who want to attend to let us know by June 15 so we can be ready to accommodate them."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence and our nation's third president stated that "If we can prevent the government from wasting the labors of the people under the pretense of caring for them, they will be happy."

This, in one sentence was the battle cry of the American Revolution. Thomas Jefferson, George Washington and Thomas Paine argued, and finally fought, not for better government, but for less government. Unlike other revolutions which simply exchanged one set of bureaucrats and tax collectors for another, ours was a revolution against government — and for the people. A revolution against higher taxes. Against a bureaucracy growing in numbers and authority. A revolution against the idea that the people exist to serve — and finance — the government.

And when Britain's King George III responded to the colonists' demands for lower taxes and less government with bullets and bayonets, America declared her independence and July 4th marked our determination to live free of the excessive taxes and centralized government of the old world.

Throughout the years, however, the spiritual heirs of King George III succeeded in expanding the size, power and cost of our federal government. Each new department and agency was created in the name of "compassion," of caring for people. And the Constitution was increasingly invoked not to limit the power of the government, but to require its expansion.

These new politicians believed in running other people's lives for them and that included spending their money. And like King George, they found that before you can spend the people's money — always, of course, under the pretense of caring for them — you first have to take it from them. And so new taxes were imposed. And increased. And increased again.

Each well-meaning spending program brought higher taxes to pay for it until Tax Freedom Day — the day when American taxpayers cease to work to pay federal, state and local taxes and begin to work for themselves — moved from February 14 in 1930 to May 7 in 1981 — an increase of almost three months. Three more months of each year taken from the people and given to the government.

But as the British found out on the night of the Boston Tea Party, taxpayers have a breaking point and a second American Revolution was begun: A revolution heralded by the overwhelming victory of Proposition 13 in California and confirmed in the election of Ronald Reagan in 1980.

As promised, President Reagan began to pare back the growth of the federal government and income tax rates were cut. And Tax Freedom Day began to come earlier each year. In 1982, Tax Freedom Day moved back to May 3. This year, Tax Freedom Day fell on May 2 — five days earlier than in 1981. Five days of each year taken back from the government and given to the people. Five days of freedom.

This second American Revolution is known as the "Reagan Revolution." Like the original American Revolution it is based on the simple belief that the American people can be trusted with their lives, their time and their earnings. (And conversely, that the government cannot.) It is not, as its critics charge, a radical departure from American tradition but rather a return to the original principles of our nation's founding: a movement to achieve Jefferson's vision outlined in his first inaugural address, of ". . . a wise and frugal government which shall restrain men from injuring one another, which shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned."

Dear Readers,

Social Security survivors insurance can provide cash benefits to the young children of a worker who dies and, in some cases, to the widow or widower. Also, a divorced wife, grandchildren, or parents of the deceased worker may qualify for payments. In addition, a lump-sum payment of $255 can be made after the death of a person who worked long enough under Social Security. We can assist you in contacting the local Social Security office.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

USDA To Study Crop Acreage And Livestock

Heavy enrollment in the regular acreage reduction and payment-in-kind (PIK) programs means large cutbacks in 1983 crops. Feed grain production will likely fall to the lowest levels since the mid-1970's and U.S. wheat output could reach a four-year low, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Cattle numbers on January declined about 400,000 head from a year earlier in the U.S., abruptly halting the rise in the cattle cycle. Hog producers had expanded their inventories faster than expected but higher grain prices because of PIK may slow or halt production increases in 1984, the service report notes.

Just how many Minnesota acres actually went into production this season and how many livestock are on hand? Minnesota is part of a nationwide survey slated for late May and early June which will develop estimates to guide farmers in their future marketings and inform commodity buyers, traders and policymakers on what to expect from agriculture this year.

Carroll Rock of the agricultural statistics service notes that concerns about weak crop prices, surplus stocks and sluggish overseas markets are weighing heavily on farmers' plans this year. These uncertainties highlight the need for acreage and livestock information producers can rely on, Rock said. Farmer cooperation, he adds, is the key to developing dependable estimates.

Representatives from Rock's staff will interview a cross-section of farmers and mail questionnaires to others to gather data for the estimates. Similar surveys will be carried on in all states.

Final national and Minnesota estimates will be published by USDA's crop reporting board. A report on 1983 spring planted acres will be available on June 29, followed later by estimates of yield and production. Estimates of hog and pig numbers will be reported on June 22, and national cattle numbers on July 21.

Bond Issue Cuts Cost At 'U'M Hospital

Falling interest rates can save the University of Minnesota up to $40 million on its hospital renewal project, a university vice president told the board of regents recently.

Regents voted unanimously to refinance $156 million worth of hospital revenue bonds issued last December in order to save $35 million to $40 million on the 30-year bond issue. Board's action should decrease by $7 the $83 daily rate for a room in the 432-bed university hospitals replacement building, which is scheduled to be completed in early 1986.

"I don't think there's any question that what we're doing is improving the bottom-line impact on hospital operations," said Frederick M. Bohen, vice president for finance and operations, who recommended the board's action. "We're putting in place a brand-new, first-class medical facility and doing it at a lower net charge per patient.

"Since December the long, deep national and regional recession has apparently bottomed out and signs of economic recovery have generated continued improvement in the stock market and bond markets," he said. He said he hopes the university can enter the bond market within two weeks.

Refinancing is basically a substitution of a new, lower-interest bond for an existing bond issue. After the new bonds are issued and all refinancing costs have been paid, the proceeds will be placed in an escrow account and invested until the bonds are redeemed by purchasers. Interest on the existing issue ranged from 6.75 per cent to 11 per cent; rates on the new issue will range from 6.5 per cent to 9.25 per cent.

Construction on the first floor of the building began late last year and is expected to be occupied by the therapeutic radiology department early next year.

Smith Named New President At Oak Hills

Oak Hills Fellowship, Inc. of Bemidji has a new president. David Smith, presently pastor of the Evangelical Free church of Zimmerman, has assumed his duties as head of the Bible Institute and mission organization on a part-time basis until July, when he will begin serving full time.

Smith was an OHBI instructor and administrator from 1964 to 1974. During that time he ministered in churches at Pinewood, Guthrie and Chapel in the Pines. Since leaving, he has pastored churches in International Falls and Zimmerman. For five of those years he has served on the Oak Hills board of trustees.

Smith received a bachelor of science degree in English and social studies at the University of Minnesota at Duluth and a master's degree in counseling from Bemidji state university. He and his wife Barbara have three daughters, Patti Lofgren of Rogers, Jennifer of Zimmerman and Joan of Minnetonka.

Tree Varieties Available At Grygla Office

Trees are in now for our spring planting, according to the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD at Grygla. Those who would like some for yard or farmstead may call the office at 294-6144.

"We will be selling surplus trees as soon as we know what trees we have for surplus," states district conservationist Ralph Rundell. "It looks like we may have some silver maple, American arbor vitae, yellow chokecherry, Amur maple, mountain ash, Black Hills spruce, dropmore elm, cottonwood, caragana and golden willow available.

"The stock this year looks very good and the trees are a little larger than we have had in the past. If you have had to remove an elm tree or two because of disease, why not plant a silver maple or hybrid cottonwood or mountain ash to replace it? We are losing more of our elm trees so should be looking for replacements and planting them so we will have them to look forward to in the future.

"A few well placed trees can really help to beautify your farmstead or home," Rundell said. "I would like to see more of the flowering crab seedlings planted around the area, especially in the city, so we can have more color and beauty as time goes on. Stop in or call to see if we have some trees for you!"

Fiber Fuel Conference Set At UMC

Speakers and conference leaders from across Minnesota and from Oregon, Michigan and Wisconsin are scheduled for presentations at the fiber fuel conference at the University of Minnesota, Crookston, June 13 to 15.

Featuring all aspects of the fiber fuel industry, the conference will provide an update for practical utilization of pelleted forest and agricultural residue for heating homes, institutions and commercial buildings; provide the industry and the consumer with specific conversion information; provide facts, figures and equipment information which may result in large fuel savings; and bring together potential and active producers, processors, distributors, manufacturers and users of this form of renewable energy.

Tom Miles of Portland, OR, will present three periods of "The Oregon Experience." His presentations will include logistics of biomass fuels such as wood, straw and refuse; systems for using and processing fiber materials, and relationship to the environment; and case histories from Oregon.

John Sturos, of the forest engineering laboratory (USFS) in Houghton, MI, will address the topic, "Forest Resources: Can They Provide Fuel for a World Market?"

Topic for Richard Wright, engineer for Aqua-Chem in Milwaukee, WI, is "Suspension Burners: Retrofiting Scotch Marine and Other Boilers."

Sessions throughout Monday will focus on the current fiber fuels — types, costs and availability, including resources available.

Tuesday will focus on school systems and commercial buildings which have converted to pelleted fiber fuels, wood briquets, green fuelwood chips and underfired stoker units. Another focal point will be financing, including traditional sources of financing, tax credits and savings possibilities. Sessions will be offered on state programs which affect financing, projections from the Minnesota department of energy and shared savings.

Tuesday afternoon will begin with suspension burning sessions, converting of large boilers to suspension burning and retrofiting other boilers. Gasification principles and prospects and agro-forestry research on marginal lands will also be discussed.

Final sessions will look at forest resources, production for a world market and technical engineering aspects of small types of furnaces typical for the home or small business.

Throughout the conference displays and demonstrations will be available both inside and outside. Demonstrations include a suspension burner demonstration on the mall, pelleting and hammer mill application.

Conference is open to everyone interested in fiber fuel. Sponsors for the conference are UMC, northwest experiment station and the fiber and fuel institute in cooperation with Crookston area chamber of commerce, Governor's council on rural development, Minnesota department of economic security, northwest economic development, inc., northwest regional development commission, and agricultural extension service.

Conference begins with registration at 9:30 a.m. on Monday, June 13, and continues through noon on Wednesday, June 15. Fee for the three-day conference is $55. Registration deadline is May 20. For more information or for registration forms contact Gene Miller, conference chairman, Northwest Experiment Station, Crookston, MN 56716 or phone 281-6510, extension 470, or contact the Crookston Area Chamber of Commerce at (218) 281-4320.

Nursing Home Held Week Of Special Events

National nursing home week was observed by the residents and staff of Oakland Park nursing home from May 8 to 14, with special events each day.

Sunday was Mothers' Day, with many of the residents having special visits from their families.

Staff appreciation day was observed on Monday, with a potluck dinner served. Drawings for free door prizes were held, with Elinor Luhe, Vickie Hunt and Marcie Merrill winning complimentary meals at local restaurants, and Rose Nygaard winning a silk centerpiece donated by the resident council.

Tuesday was resident appreciation day, with more complimentary meals awarded as drawing prizes. Winners included Kathryn Duis, Greta Scheuneman and Percy Nabben. Residents also wrote short messages which were placed in helium balloons and released outside. Although rain began to sprinkle down just before the scheduled release of the balloons, enthusiasm wasn't dampened and the event proceeded as scheduled. The balloons disappeared quickly in the brisk wind, and hopes were high that some of the messages would be found and receive a response.

Several people also brought pets to visit on Tuesday. Betty Rantanen of Middle River brought several animals from her farm, including a lamb, some chicks and a baby goat. Other visitors included several dogs, a turtle, and a horse which stuck his head in through the patio doors to take sugar lumps from the residents.

On Wednesday, a mother-daughter tea was held with about 130 people attending. Refreshments were served by the staff members. Hostess was Lynnae Halvorson, guest book was maintained by Sue Owens, Deloris Olson poured punch, Elinor Baker served salad and Margie Rutz poured coffee. Special entertainment was provided by Joe Valet with a selection of piano music.

Thursday was observed as a day for rest, with worship services conducted by Reverend Galland from Our Saviour's Lutheran Church.

Friday was observed as "Pioneer Day" with many visitors arriving for an open house. Dinner was served "chuckwagon" style, and staff members dressed in pioneer attire. Kathy Erickson of Newfolden provided accordion music in the lobby, with some of the residents and staff using the opportunity to dance, while others preferred to just listen.

It Shouldn't Have Happened

In his campaign for reelection to the Thief River Falls board of education, Larry McDowell was 100 per cent right — as he usually has been in the past nine years on the board. He said during the campaign that experience in handling school district matters is especially important in today's conditions.

Now the people of School District 564 will be denied that valuable — perhaps crucial — experience because they didn't expend the effort to go out and support it. Larry McDowell, the man who topped all vote-getters in the three times he faced election prior to this year, was defeated Tuesday in his bid for a fourth term.

How can such a situation happen? Is the mood of the voters that changeable? Did McDowell fall out of favor with the electorate during his last term? Not likely. There have been few public officials who can claim a more consistent attitude and voting record over nearly a decade of service. He has been a stabilizing force on a board that has had nearly a complete member change-over since he was first elected.

Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire will now be the only board member with any appreciable experience, having served for 11 years. Reelected candidates Myrle Carlson and Greg Pribula each have three years of board service, Arnt Aune two, Archie Cameron and Hank Hallstrom one year each and Paul Bortnem, the newly elected member Tuesday, will be embarking on his first term. He will have an opportunity to prove his abilities in a relatively short span of time.

McDowell has long been an educational realist who has insisted on fiscal responsibility in the local school system. That posture is not at all out of tune with the mood of today's taxpayers. If anything, it is more deeply rooted than ever. If so, why didn't McDowell get reelected?

One can only speculate in assessment of the reasons. The major one seems to be that voter apathy resulted in a generally poor turn-out of people at the polls, and members of the voting public have only themselves to blame for that. When a voting turn-out is small, it is much easier for organized special interest groups to have an affect on the outcome of the election.

The next question to be logically asked is what group or organization would expect to benefit from McDowell's defeat. Perhaps a clue can be obtained from this letter on a Thief River Falls Education association letterhead which McDowell received November 15, 1981, immediately following settlement of the 22-day Thief River Falls teachers' strike:

"Dear Larry,

With our warmest regards we offer this list of teachers wishing to ally themselves with any of your future political endeavers (sic).

Love,
"T.R.F.E.A."

Second page of the letter was blank.

There was no individual signature (not surprisingly), and the letter may not have been the work of more than one person with access to TRFEA letterheads. But the writer presumed to speak for the association and perhaps Tuesday's election results spoke even louder.

Tuesday's election was a democratic process in which the majority of those voting made a decision on who they want to serve as their representatives. It was entirely legal and in accordance with the rules. But in our opinion, the result was something which — for the overall good of School District 564 — simply shouldn't have happened.

Most Serious Issue

Following was written by Ottis Pike for the Newhouse News Service:

A man on a TV news show posed a riddle the other night: "What has the number 13 and 11 zeros?" Since 99 out of 100 citizens treat this particular issue with massive indifference, we won't dally with the answer. It's the national debt — $1.3 trillion.

The men on the evening news treated it light heartedly, like a happy little joke. This is fine for the man on the evening news. The trouble is, the Congress does, too.

It is an issue far more threatening to the survival of our nation as we know it than Soviet missiles, Lebanon, or Nicaragua. And we, the Congress and the media, make jokes about it.

Congress has been asked to increase the ceiling on the national debt, and a grand lot of posturing there will be. There are a few people in both political parties who care enough to do something about it, but only a few. One in five is about the right proportion, for this is the proportion of members in both political parties who will vote for real measures to control it.

The national debt is merely the sum of all the annual deficits that have been allowed to accumulate over the years. They are accumulating under the presidency of Ronald Reagan faster than ever before. He is not trying to stop them.

With the exception, the cast of Democrats who would like to replace Reagan offer no program that would stop them. While Reagan produces deficits and debt with monstrous defense spending and massive tax cuts, the stable Democratic candidates offer tiny cuts in defense spending and greater increases in social spending.

As far as taxes are concerned, they tiptoe around the edge of the issue, orating loudly about "fairness" and other nice generalties, then mumble inaudibly about specifics.

The single exception among the Democratic presidential contenders is Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina, who wants to freeze federal spending. He is so far behind in the race for the presidency that he is hardly visible. He is that far behind for the same reason the annual deficits are there and we have that debt with the 13 and the 11 zeros. Doing something about it is unpopular.

When the bill to raise the debt ceiling comes up in congress the Democrats will make speeches about how awful it is, and blame Ronald Reagan. The Republicans will make speeches about how awful it is, and blame the Democrats.

The posturing will continue through the vote. Republicans who have voted for all of the tax cuts and all of the defense increases will vote against increasing the debt ceiling. Democrats who have voted for all of the increases in domestic spending and aren't about to raise the taxes will vote against uincreasing the debt ceiling.

If the posturing is bad enough, the increase will fail the first time around. Then we will get those old, familiar speeches about how the government won't be able to pay its bills, the mail won't get delivered, the defense contractors won't get paid and federal employees will be told to go home. Adding another $300 billion or so to the debt ceiling will then be praised as the ultimate fiscal responsibility.

After the man on the TV gave the answer to his little riddle, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., came on. He is the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and he knows why Congress doesn't even think about balancing budgets anymore. Dole said he didn't see any people marching around the capitol carrying signs demanding, "Balance the budget."

Dole cares, and has gotten burned for caring. What have the people carrying signs, writing letters and screaming about this year was a rational attempt to reduce the annual deficit by $4 billion by withholding the tax dueon dividend and interest income. This was not a new tax, merely a more efficient method of collecting an existing tax, although some banks tried to scare their depositors into thinking it was a new tax. Dole fought hard to retain the provision, and got whipped.

Making people pay what they owe is unpopular, so Congress won't do it. Rasing taxes enough to pay the bills is unpopular, so Congress won't do it. The Democrats have a new health care plan, a new farm loan plan, a new mortgage payment plan, a new housing plan. They all increase the debt, but they will be popular.

When Congress votes to increase the number 13 on the debt to a 14 or 16 or 18, there won't be one-tenth the outcry there was when Congress tried to reduce it a little.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"I'll bet you make a play for all your models," the girl said to the artist.

"No, you're the very first," the artist insisted.

"How many models have you worked with?" the young lady persisted.

"Four," the artist replied. "An onion, a banana, a vase of flowers — and you."

The very careful driver approaching a railroad crossing stopped to look and listen. All he heard was the car behind crashing into him.

A friend appeared at the office last week wearing one overshoe. He had heard the weather bureau was predicting a 50 per cent chance of snow.

REV. RICHARD LARSON (right) of Zion Lutheran church, Thief River Falls, accepted State Representative Wally Sparby's invitation to take part in the "Chaplain of the Day" program in the Minnesota House. Rev. Larson's prayer noted the stresses and long hours legislators endure and asked for guidance for legislators in their deliberations during the last days of the 1983 session." Rev. Larson and his wife Elaine are shown with Representative Sparby in the House chamber.

State Humane Society Gets New Director

Barbara Raye has officially assumed duties as executive director of the Minnesota Humane society. Raye was selected from 300 applicants by the board of directors during a five-month search to fill a position vacated by Les Zegart in November of 1982.

Raye has extensive experience in administration of non-for-profit corporations with specific program expertise in services to battered women and their children. Her work included the development of two shelters for victims of family violence and the Indiana coalition against domestic violence.

Raye most recently worked as a management consultant to non-profit and public organizations and specialized in financial management, fund raising, board training, and public relations. Additionally, she provides training workshops in the areas of assertion, children's non-violent response to conflict, women in management, supervision, changing roles of women and men, goal setting, and financial management for new administrators.

A native of Indiana, Raye has vacationed in the Twin Cities for three years and sought the move to Minnesota with an agency whose work was "consistent with her own convictions and performed on a state-wide level."

Kay Zwernik, president of the society board of directors, says Raye was selected for her outstanding abilities in organizational and board development and fundraising. "Although she has no specific work with animal welfare agencies, she shows a knowledge of the field and a sensitivity to the issues relevant to the Minnesota Humane society and other animal welfare groups," Zwernik said.

1984 Federal Employees Pay Soc. Security

Beginning in 1984 all newly hired federal employees will be covered by social security and will pay social security taxes. William Phalen, district manager at Grand Forks, N.D., said recently that this provision is part of the legislation recently enacted to help strengthen social security financially.

New law also provides social security coverage for certain current federal employees, including all members of Congress, the President, the Vice President and sitting federal judges. Most political appointees and employees of the legislative branch will also be paying social security taxes.

New law requires mandatory coverage next year for all employees of non-profit organizations and prohibits those organizations already covered from terminating their coverage. Older employees of these organizations whose coverage will begin next year will also qualify for benefits with fewer work credits than would normally be required.

Phalen also pointed out that employees of state and local governments may no longer withdraw from social security, and those groups which had withdrawn may now voluntarily elect to come under social security again.

Any employers or workers who need more information about these changes may call the Grand Forks office at 701-772-5517.

CCC Plans Cloquet Valley Camp Reunion

Civilian conservation corps (CCC), a government agency created by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933 to provide meaningful jobs for young men during the depression of the 30's, is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year.

Former members of the camps, now in their 70's, will be returning after 50 years to their old campsites throughout the country to celebrate the occasion.

Veterans of one camp in Minnesota, CCC company 719 (state camp S-51), located in the Cloquet valley state forest, will hold a two-day reunion on June 18 and 19. Program includes registration Saturday afternoon at the Harbor Inn in Duluth and a banquet in the evening with special guests from the forest service and the St. Louis county historical society.

On Sunday a family picnic will be held at the original campsite near Brimson. A special flag raising ceremony is planned honoring J.C. "Buzz" Ryan, retired forest ranger, who provided the work program for the camp from 1933 to 1941. After lunch, Ranger Ryan will lead a guided tour of the old campsite to include the barracks, mess hall, recreation building, bath house and other service buildings.

John Ek, Duluth, president of the alumni group, expects several hundred former members of the camp, their families and special guests to attend the event.

REPORT

From The Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby District 1B

Things are moving so fast in the House during this last week of the 1983 session that I hestiate to write about bills we're working on, because they may be passed, defeated or altered drastically by the time you read this.

I would like to mention two issues, though. First, I want to remind college and vocational students and their parents that they may be eligible for financial aid even if they have already applied and been turned down.

Because of the unstable economy and high level of unemployment, many students and their families have experienced changes in their expected income, which in turn affects eligibility for financial aid. My suggestion is that students contact the financial aid officer at the school they attend or plan to attend.

The federal Pell Grant program allows students to adjust their financial information if the person who earned income died, became disabled, became unemployed, or was divorced or separated. Other federal and state campus-based grant programs allow adjustments for similar reasons.

Furthermore, if the combined income of students and their families is less than $30,000, students may borrow from the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) program without demonstrating financial need.

Students can apply for a GSL through a private lender or to the state program administered by the Minnesota higher education coordinating board.

Students and their families can also apply for loans under the PLUS program — Parents Loans for Undergraduate Students — available through commercial lenders.

The second issue may not seem important now, but a blizzard at the end of February could change our focus. The length of election campaigns will officially be three weeks shorter, too, if a bill passed by the House and Senate becomes law.

This bill would alter current statutes so that precinct caucuses would take place on the third Tuesday in March each state election year instead of the fourth Tuesday in February.

I believe holding precinct caucuses later in the year will encourage greater attendance because potential participants are not as likely to be kept away by bad weather. And the more people who participate in these grass roots meetings, the better the process will work.

Louise Mandrell July 4 Show Set In Hallock

Harvey Diamond, president of the Kittson county agricultural society, announced that arrangements have been completed for the Louise Mandrell show to be in Hallock on July 4. Two shows that evening will be presented at 7 and 9 p.m.

This will be the final night of the Hallock centennial and at the conclusion of the second show the Hallock centennial committee will present its "State Fair Fireworks show."

Louise Mandrell has one of the top hits on the "Billboard" country music chart and recently her record, "Save Me" was listed number six. She was a guest on the Johnny Carson show and is also working on a TV special that will be aired in a few weeks.

Advance tickets can be purchased throughout the area and specific ticket sales locations will be announced soon.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

I believe in freedom. I think that the right to say, do, write, vote, work, pray and believe as we wish, without hurting others, is an important feature of life. To me, the alternative to freedom is a barnyard animal existence.

I know that our freedom isn't free. That's why I have volunteered and served in our armed forces three times. That service, taxes and participation in government are my dues. Since I have only lost time, not limbs or a life, I believe that the price has been cheap. I know that freedom carries risks and imposes responsibilities. I am willing to take on those risks and responsibilities.

When the principles of freedom are abused and there is injustice, I get angry because freedom can not survive without fair treatment. A couple of years ago, concerned about future freedom and a feeling that some of our young people were not aware of the value and cost of freedom, and might even sacrifice freedom for a guaranteed barnyard animal existence, I gave up a great job contract, a newly completed home and more to become a teacher.

The opportunity to head a department in a four-year college was turned down by me because the administrative chores would have consumed my time. I took on a free enterprise chair, which is a regular teaching assignment plus so very much more.

There were those who oppose the concept of a "free enterprise" chair. They were upset about a "free or private enterprise viewpoint" on their campus (forgetting that "their" campus was really the "people's" campus). They did not object to other viewpoints on the campus.

Once the chair was filled and the chair holder was there and working, the opposition did not stop. There was objection to the chair holder's views expressed in publications, broadcasts and off-campus forums. The objectors saw nothing wrong with their having the freedom to say and write whatever they wished, or even to participate in politics.

The objections were never expressed openly, which bothered me. I did not have the chance to know who the objectors were or what they objected to. Someone objecting to my opinions, in our free society, has that right. But to object in a "gutless" undercover manner, so that I could not respond, was wrong. To object with an intent of lynching me for my views, I believe, was also wrong.

The objections extended themselves to everything and anything. On one occasion, based on 25 years of parenting and the observation that few parents showed up for school open houses, youth activities and the like, I suggested that the most useful and long lasting gift parents could give their kids was a loving and interested parent, a truly great Christmas gift. I was shocked when some of my objectors apparently complained about this recommendation, while hundreds of readers, nationally, felt this was a darn good idea, and requests for reprints poured in.

I don't object to anyone saying anything at any time that doesn't do injury to others. I don't care what views anyone has to express, even if I am not in agreement with those views. I don't classify people as to their political party or with labels like "conservative" or "liberal."

I do object to those who would restrict my freedom of expression or anyone else's freedom of expression. When people can not "speak up," we have lost something very precious. One of the ground rules in our country that everyone should understand is the tolerance of freedom, including the freedom to disagree.

I didn't like attempts at having my freedom of expression constricted. A big price has been paid to attain freedom. A big price is being paid to maintain freedom. Those who attempt to "fool" with my freedom, and apply penalties and pain because I exercise my freedom and our opinions may not agree, are taking a big risk.

That's Straight Talk!

Fiber Fuels To Be Topic For June 15 Meet

One-day conference to provide information on heating with wood and farm fuels will be conducted Wednesday, June 15, at the University of Minnesota at Crookston. Sessions will be at the technical college and Northwest experiment station.

"For the fee of $15, which includes lunch, you can participate in the selected program subjects designed to acquaint you with the key elements of the rapidly growing fiber fuel industry," states E. C. (Gene) Miller, conference chairman.

"You will be able to view state of the art equipment and talk to manufacturers, dealers and suppliers." Registration after June 10 increases to $20.

Registration from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. will be in the foyer of the college food service center. General announcements and arrangements will be made at 9 a.m. Overview of availability, equipment needed and national trends in fiber fuel production will be presented from 9 to 11 a.m. in the main dining room of the food service center.

Other topics for the morning will be availability and current cost of fiber fuels, equipment available for burning fiber fuels in many shapes, sizes and availability of agricultural residue for fuel and firing boilers with stokers and green fuels.

Workshops will continue in the afternoon with a seminar on major heating at 2:30 p.m. and discussion on conversion of a large boiler to suspension burning at St. Scholastica in Duluth. Question and answer session will conclude the conference.

Registration materials are available from Fiber Fuels Conference, Northwest Experiment Station, Crookston, MN 56716.

The Times — A Great Gift!

GOVERNOR RUDY PERPICH congratulated State Representative Wally Sparby, District 1B, and State Senator Charles R. Davis, District 18, for their work in passing a bill to transfer the state soil and water conservation board to the department of agriculture permanently. Present at the bill signing ceremony were (left to right) Dorothy Walz, executive director, Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts; Sparby; Jim Nichols, commissioner of agriculture; Governor Perpich; and Davis. The transfer was supported by farmers, conservationists and related organizations, Sparby said.

Deadline Near To Apply For Cost-Sharing

May is the last month for farmers to apply for 1982-83 state cost-share funds, according to Ralph Rundell, district conservationist for the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

State cost-share requests must be submitted for board action at the board meeting May 24. All unencumbered funds will then be returned to the soil and water conservation board in St. Paul to be redistributed to other parts of the state where additional funding is needed. The Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district still has $1,000 available for the following cost-share practices:

(1) Erosion Control Structures — Structures such as grade stabilization structures, floodwater retarding structures and multi-purpose dams.

(2) Stripcropping — A cropping system which provides for planting row crops with the countour where practicable and using alternative strips of row crops, close sown, and sod crops.

(3) Diversions — A channel with supporting ridge on the lower side constructed across the slope.

(4) Stormwater Control Systems — A system of components such as waterways, diversions, sediment control structures, stabilization structures, culverts, channels and floodways to convey storm runoff to a constructed or natural outlet in a non-erosive manner.

(5) Field Windbreaks — A strip or belt of trees, shrubs or grass barriers established within or adjacent to a field.

(6) Animal Waste Control System — A planned agricultural waste management system to contain and manage liquid and solid wastes including run-off from concentrated animal waste areas with ultimate disposal in a manner which does not degrade air, soil or water resources.

(7) Critical Area Stabilization — Planting vegetation such as trees, shrubs, vines, grasses and legumes on sites subject to severe erosion.

The district will pay up to 75 per cent cost-share assistance to help get long term conservation practices on the land to control erosion and protect water quality. Applications are handled on a first-come, first-served basis. If state cost-share and A.S.C.S. cost-share are both applied for on the same practice, the total payments received cannot exceed 75 per cent of the total cost of the practice.

For more information, stop by at the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district office in Grygla or call 294-6144.

Senator Pays Tribute To Sr. Citizens

As a tribute to United States senior citizens, Senator Rudy Boschwitz has joined some of his senate colleagues in observing May 1983 as "Older Americans Month."

"While we should honor thse special Americans daily, we have traditionally set aside the month of May to pay additional tribute to them for their contributions," Boschwitz said.

One out of nine Americans is currently over age 65. In 50 years the number of Americans over that age will double to 55 million. This demographic shift will be caused by the aging of the post World War II "baby boom" and medical developments that increase life expectancy.

"We should prepare for this dramatic change in demographics by insuring that our retirement, health, employment and housing programs are flexible enough to adapt to our changing population. We owe this to them," Boschwitz said.

Boschwitz added, "The contributions of the elderly from all walks of life are reflected in their participation in such programs as ACTION, VISTA, SCORE, Foster Grandparents program and Congressional Senior interns. Their ability and willingness to work and contribute to the quality of American life is encouraging. Our nations seniors should be regarded as the vast natural resources they are."

Boschwitz added that May 8-14 has been designated "National Nursing Home Week." He said it should be ovserved by "going out of our way to share time and thoughts with those valuable citizens who live in nursing homes. A visit from a friend or relative can add to the lives of those who live in nursing homes," Boschwitz said. "It can also add a lot of meaning to the lives of those who do the visiting."

Banvel® herbicide is your best choice to stamp out wild buckwheat on Set-Aside/PIK acres

Maintain weed control now for better cropland next season.

Banvel® herbicide gives you more control of wild buckwheat on your Set-Aside/PIK acres than any other mechanical or chemical choice you can make. And that means better cropland when you put those acres back into production.

Banvel eliminates annual broadleaf weeds like sunflower or kochia that could leave more seeds in your fields to germinate next season. And an early application of Banvel suppresses stubborn perennials like Canada thistle or bindweed.

Banvel gives you maximum control because it penetrates weed leaves. Is absorbed by the roots. Moves throughout the entire plant for a complete weed kill ...leaf-tip to root-tip.

See your ag-chem supplier for the full Banvel Set-Aside/PIK story.

TRF, Crookston Try It Again

For the fourth time this season the Lincoln high school baseball team will try to play Crookston when the Prowlers visit the Pirates Tuesday for a 3:45 p.m. doubleheader.

Thief River Falls went to Crookston Thursday for a twinbill — actually make-up games from single contests that were rained out April 28 at Crookston and May 10 at Thief River Falls — but got rained out before the first pitch was thrown.

Only other Thief River Falls game affected by weather this spring was a May 12 contest here against Roseau when the Prowlers saw a 12-2 fourth inning lead washed away in a rain storm. That game will not be made up.

This is the final week of regular season games for the Prowlers, who were scheduled to be in Ada today (Monday) for a 4:30 p.m. game. They'll host Middle River-Marshall County Central Wednesday at 4 p.m. to close it out.

North Half Region 8AA baseball tournament games are scheduled Tuesday, May 31, and Thursday, June 2, at Crookston.

Moorhead looks more and more like the favorite in that one. In the second game of the season Moorhead lost a 4-0 one-hit shutout to Breckenridge to stand 1-1. But in a rematch last Wednesday the Spuds routed the Cowboys 11-1 as they stretched their winning streak to nine games for a 10-1 record. Tom Christensen pitched a four-hitter for the winners, who own a pair of wins over Thief River Falls this spring, a 7-1 regularly scheduled meeting May 3 and an 11-5 decision in the finals of the four-team Moorhead invitational tournament May 14.

Thief River Falls is just 1-4 in North Half Region 8AA-counting games this season, 6-5 overall.

Neumann Headed For Northland

Northland community college basketball team will apparently be gaining the services of former Middle River high school standout Jon Neumann for the 1983-84 season.

Neumann was sought by Northland coach Chet Engelman when he finished his high school career a year ago with the Skippers as a member of the 1,000-point club. But he elected to enroll at Lake Region in Devils Lake, N.D. before it was announced by Lake Region officials last week that he was transferring to Northland.

Lake Region also announced that basketball-baseball standout Brent Viger had signed a letter-of-intent at Mayville State. Viger impressed those on hand for the recent Region 13 baseball tournament played at Northland when he hit four home runs in two games, including three consecutive homers in the finals against Normandale.

Viger, though, told Dennis Doeden of the Fargo Forum that he hasn't made a final decision yet. If he stays in North Dakota and plays in the NDCAC conference, he'll be at Mayville, but he may go elsewhere.

"I'm still waiting to hear from a few baseball contacts," Viger told the Forum. "If I get the right offer from a larger school for baseball, I'll consider it."

Viger led his Edmore high school baseball team to a North Dakota Class A championship and was a member of a runner-up Class B state basketball tournament team. He then pitched and batted Edmore to the Class A American Legion baseball tournament last summer.

"I'd sooner play only baseball," he said, "but if I stay in North Dakota I'll play both sports."

Miscellaneous

+Del Schiffler, head basketball coach at Class AA state champion Woodbury high school and former coach at Melrose when Mark Olberding was the star attraction, said he feels that Olberding "is the best high school basketball player to come out of Minnesota. At the University of Minnesota he was the most valuable player as a freshman and at the end of his freshman year he signed a contract for $1 million for five years," Schiffler told Mike Bialka of the Brainerd Dispatch while speaking at the Aitkin high school athletic banquet. Olberding, who started his NBA career with San Antonio, is currently making about $400,000 per year with the Chicago Bulls. Schiffler also spoke of the importance of dedication, and said that factor was a primary reason why his Woodbury team won the 1983 Class AA state title. "From June 6 to the start of football season, for two hours every day, I opened the gym and my starting five was there every day of the week," he said. "We probably wouldn't have been in the state if we hadn't worked all summer long."

+ Mark Bagaason of Clearbrook and Kristi Becker of Cavalier, N.D. were named the top student-athletes at the annual University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) athletic awards banquet.

SILHOUETTED AGAINST the sky, Lincoln high school golfer Karin Wennberg watched her fairway shot as it neared the No. 3 green during Thursday's Thief River Falls vs. East Grand Forks girls dual golf meet at the Thief River Country Club. Wennberg finished as medalist for the day with a 53, one shot ahead of teammate Michelle Olson. The Prowlers and Green Wave played to a 225-225 tie.

TRF Golf Invitational Is Scheduled Tuesday

Lone home appearance of the 1983 season is scheduled Tuesday for the Lincoln high school golf team when the Prowlers close out their regular season schedule with their annual Thief River Falls invitational. The ten-team event will get underway at 9:30 a.m. on the Thief River Country Club course.

A week later the Prowlers will compete in the Region 8AA golf meet at Little Falls. A planned Thursday appearance on the Little Falls course by the Prowlers was erased from the schedule because that'll be graduation day here.

Thief River Falls golfers have found themselves floating in the middle of the pack in most of their eight invitational meet appearances this spring, although the Prowlers did open the year with a victory in a 19-team field at the Bagley-Fosston invitational back on April 26, and won a 12-team event at Roseau on May 7.

"We're doing better than what we were supposed to do," explained veteran Thief River Falls coach Jack Boyer. "We weren't supposed to win any, and we've won two already."

Biggest problem facing the Prowlers is lack of depth, pointed out Boyer. They have two excellent golfers in senior Bob Evans and junior Jim Geatz, who are consistently among the finalists in the medal standings at each meet, but they don't have the consistently strong performances from the other three or four meet-counting scores.

"If we could count just three, we'd be tough to beat," quipped Boyer. "Evans and Geatz are as good as anybody in the region. They're both playing well."

Fergus Falls, expected to be here tomorrow along with the likes of Moorhead, Bemidji and Detroit Lakes, has emerged as the strongest team among the northern schools in Region 8AA, according to Boyer. But at the tournament the southern schools may show well on the more familiar Little Falls course. "Little Falls wouldn't beat us up here, but they'll probably be pretty tough at home," he noted.

Thief River Falls was a third place finisher at the Crookston Rotary invitational Friday.

Host Crookston won it with a 312 team score, followed by Moorhead at 321, Thief River Falls 325, Fosston 331, East Grand Forks 332, Grand Forks Red River 340, Red Lake Falls 358, Crookston junior varsity 365 and Grand Forks Central 386.

Mark Lycewski of Crookston was meet medalist with a 70. Dave Erickson of Moorhead was runner-up with a 77.

Prowlers Beat Bagley By 11-1

A partial new cast of characters was in the line-up Friday as Thief River Falls handled Bagley 11-1 in a high school baseball game played at Bagley.

With regulars Tim Bottem, Brian Johnston and Kerry Wollin stayed home to catch up on school work, Thief River Falls still won easily as junior righthander Todd Ortloff pitched a one-hitter.

Only base hit the Flyers managed was a third inning smash off Ortloff's knee by Jeff Quam. A pair of fourth inning errors led to a Bagley run.

Thief River Falls, meanwhile, had three-run innings in the second and third to build a 6-0 lead that was never challenged.

There were two out in the second before the runs crossed the plate as Jim Hallamek, a catcher-turned-shortstop for the day, had an RBI single and the second Bagley error of the inning allowed two other runs to score.

Another Bagley error — the Flyers had eight of them — made it 4-0 in the third, and Steve Wiskow broke it open with a two-run triple as part of a 2-for-3 day at the plate that included a pair of runs scored and two RBI's.

"It was a good game for us," reported Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "They did a good job," he said about the new wrinkle in the line-up."

Regional Champion . . .

Armstrong Wins In Racquetball

Troy Armstrong, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Armstrong of Thief River Falls capped a busy and successful racquetball season recently with a pair of trophy finishes at the Junior Regional racquetball tournament held May 13-15 at Rapid City, S.D.

Troy won nine of ten matches in a tournament covering Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and parts of Colorado to win championship honors in the 14-and-under category while finishing second in the 16-and-under division.

His 5-0 record in the 14-and-under category included a 15-8, 15-10 championship match victory over Keith White of Rapid City. He won four matches to reach the finals in the 16-and-under competition before losing to talented Todd Stead of Minneapolis 15-3, 15-3.

Some 70 junior-aged players took part in the regional competition, including 16 in the 14-and-under division and 18 in the 16-and-under class.

Regional championship and runner-up finish highlighted a busy winter and spring season for Troy, who has been playing racquetball for only 2½ years. He won titles at invitational tournaments in Grand Forks, Winnipeg, Bemidji and Thief River Falls and was a third place finisher in the 14-and-under division at the Minnesota state meet earlier this month, where Mike Purdy of Thief River Falls, a frequent partner for Armstrong in doubles competition, was a runner-up finisher in the 16-and-under class. Purdy did not compete at the regional level.

Although summer doesn't necessarily mean the end of the racquetball season, the tournament schedule slacks off considerably, and with weekends filled with racquetball trips throughout the winter and spring months, Evan and Elaine Armstrong welcome the break.

Troy, a freshman at Lincoln high school, will continue honing his skills at the Thief River Falls Racquetball & Exercise Club while making an occasional tournament appearance this summer.

His dream would be to compete at the Junior National tournament beginning June 28, at Fishkill, N.Y. He is eligible for the event, but the cost without company sponsorship is prohibitive.

Past that, he has his sights set on competing at the men's level where prize money would be a key incentive.

LHS Golf Fund Raising Meet Slated Tonight

A planning meeting is scheduled tonight (Monday) at 7:30 p.m. at Franklin middle school for a fund-raising shortstop golf tournament that would aid the Lincoln high school golf program.

Thief River Falls golfers are invited to take part in the meeting that will set up plans for a Sunday, June 26, fund-raising tournament at the Thief River Country Club. Proceeds would go toward retaining the Lincoln golf program, scheduled to be eliminated as a budget move by school officials unless funded by the community.

MICHELLE OLSON of Thief River Falls chipped on to the No. 2 green Thursday during the Prowlers' dual golf meet against East Grand Forks on the Thief River Country Club course. Olson shot a 54 for the day to finish one stroke behind teammate Karin Wennberg in the medalist standings. The Prowlers and Green Wave girls played in the rain at times as they finished in a 225-225 tie.

Lincoln Boys, Girls End Track Seasons This Week

Boys and girls track teams at Lincoln high school close out their 1983 regular season schedules tonight (Monday) by participating in the Roseau twilight invitational meet beginning at 5 p.m.

North Half Region 8AA meet for both boys and girls will be held Saturday at Moorhead beginning at 11 a.m.

Thief River Falls competed Friday in the East Grand Forks Lions invitational.

Crookston won the girls' portion of the meet with 161 points, followed by Thief River Falls with 88, East Grand Forks 73, Roseau 56, Hallock 37, Marshall County Central 30, Mahnomen 15, Stephen 4 and Fisher 2.

Host East Grand Forks won the boys' portion of the meet with 117 points, followed by Crookston with 89½, Marshall County Central 76, Thief River Falls 72½, Hallock 55, Fisher 52, Mahnomen 47, Stephen 17 and Roseau 1.

Tom Schafer, coach of the Thief River Falls girls, was satisfied with the Prowlers' showing on probably the nicest day the team has had for a meet all spring. "We had some pretty good performances," he reported, giving special mention to hurdler Stacie Kruta, miler Paula Wilkens, half-miler Georgia Howard and seventh graders Jackie Smith and Cindy Kruta.

Smith won the 3200-meter run in 13:06 while Cindy Kruta ran the second leg on the Prowlers' winning 800-meter relay team. Tricia Armstrong, Kruta, Hildegunn Nyland and Renae Berg ran a 1:55.2 in that one.

Tim Olson, coach of the Thief River Falls boys, was also pretty pleased with the Prowlers' point production. "We got a lot of points; I was really happy," he explained. "Our times are coming down."

Thief River Falls' points included a double victory by Lon Aune with a 4:45 in the 1600-meter run and a 10:12 in the 3200-meter run. Olson was impressed with Aune's continued time drop in both races, and was pleasantly surprised with a 1-2 finish in the 800-meter run where Kevin Kezar ran a 2:10 and Rob Raymond 2:14.

The Prowlers also added a victory in the sprint medley relay where Tim Kruse, Scott Fowler, Randy Swenson and Kezar ran a 3:53.5.

Prowlers Lose To Jacks 7-4

Bemidji made it 13 straight regular season high school baseball wins over Thief River Falls Wednesday with a 7-4 victory on the Bemidji State University diamond.

Thief River Falls hasn't beaten Bemidji in a regular season game since their first meeting of the 1977 season. The Prowlers lost to the Lumberjacks 8-6 earlier this spring, completing six straight years in which Bemidji has swept the regularly scheduled two-game series.

A four-run Bemidji fifth inning did it this time. "Same old thing. One bad inning kills us," reflected Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "We hit the ball hard — but right at someone."

Thief River Falls came back from a 2-0 deficit in the fourth inning when Jim Hallamek singled, Tim Bottem doubled and Todd Ortloff came through with a two-run single.

The Prowlers also struck for a pair of runs in the sixth on Brian Johnston's long two-out, two-run home run over the 400-foot sign in center field.

But before that blow the Lumberjacks had opened up a 7-2 gap with their fifth inning burst that began with a two-strike triple by John Tesar. Harry Snodgrass followed with an RBI single. Two walks loaded the bases. Thief River Falls might have gotten out of the inning without any more damage, but what should have been a force out at the plate went instead as a run-scoring fielder's choice when catcher Al Ness missed the plate with his foot. And with the bases still loaded, the third walk of the inning forced in the fourth run.

Bemidji finished with an 11-5 base hit edge, but the Prowlers deserved better fate, indicated Cornell, who recalled a string of hard-hit balls by Kerry Wollin, Ryan Bakke, Hallamek and Bottem that just didn't find the holes.

Sub-Section Tennis Is Played On TRF Courts

Phil Burke and his East Grand Forks team were the favorites going into the 1983 Section 8 Sub-Section 4 high school tennis tournament being played in Thief River Falls. Burke finished the regular season unbeaten, and the Green Wave were also unbeaten before dropping a 3-2 decision to Crookston in the regular season finale last week.

That could make for an interesting championship match as the Green Wave and Pirates enter the tournament at the No. 1 and No. 2 seeded teams.

Team portion of the tournament was scheduled to begin this morning (Monday). Individual matches in singles and doubles play will be held here Wednesday.

In the team competition, 10 a.m. matches today were to have No. 3-seeded Thief River Falls playing No. 6 Mahnomen and No. 4-seeded Bemidji meeting No. 5 Waubun. At 12-noon, No. 1-seeded East Grand Forks was to face the Bemidji-Waubun winner and No. 2-seeded Crookston was to meet the Thief River Falls - Mahnomen winner.

Finals will be held at 2 p.m., with the winner joining three other sub-section champions in the Section 8 tournament team semifinals Tuesday, May 31, at Brainerd.

Courts at Lincoln high school, Northland community college, Franklin middle school and East Side will be used for the matches in Thief River Falls. Finals will be played at Northland.

Pairings were set up for the singles players in Wednesday's individual portion of the Sub-Section 4 tournament, but coaches were unable to come up with position spots for the doubles players at their recent seeding meeting and those pairings will be made this week.

In singles, No. 1-seeded Burke heads the top bracket and receives a first round bye while No. 8 Kyle Bucher (Bemidji) plays No. 9 Chad Svenby (Mahnomen); No. 12 Joel Sluticky (Waubun) meets No. 5 Al Erickson (TRF) with No. 13 Shawn Benson (Crookston) going against No. 4 Barry Furuseth (Northome).

Meanwhile, No. 2-seeded Del Nelson of East Grand Forks tops the bottom bracket and receives a first round bye while No. 7 Rick Stock (Waubun) plays No. 10 Will Jarpey (Bemidji); No. 6 Dan Imgrund (TRF) meets No. 11 Dave Christianson (Mahnomen) and No. 3 Kevin Lindstrom (Crookston) also receives a first round bye.

Thief River Falls' doubles partners will include Chad Broadwell and Steve Bendickson, plus Thane Mundell and Bob Vanyo.

Top two singles players and top two doubles teams will move on to the Section 8 individual tournament.

TRF Men's Golf League To Open Play This Week

Wednesday will mark the start of the 1983 men's golf league at the Thief River Country Club. League play continues throughout the summer, leading to the playoffs August 31.

Matches are played once a week. The five golfers per team compete under medal play format with handicap. Best four scores are counted each week. Anyone interested in participating in the men's league program can contact the Pro Shop, telephone 681-2955.

Dinners will be served every Wednesday evening, with weekly drawings for golf merchandise.

A Coke-sponsored men's golf league warm-up was held last Wednesday, with some 70 golfers taking part in the "fun-night" event.

Special winners were Bill Moreau, most stroke on blind hole; Stan Sjoberg, least strokes on blind hole; Steve Hagenah, least number of putts per round; Jim Olson, closest to the pin on No. 4; and Marv Olson, longest putt on No. 9.

Curt Charlson, Arnie Johnson, Dave Kildahl and Wally Krueger were winners of special drawings, receiving prizes donated by Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

VOLLEYBALL PLAYERS earning honors at the Newfolden Lions Club-sponsored Marshall County Central athletic awards and recognition luncheon were Brenda Dahl (left), named the team's most improved player, and Sue Olson, most valuable player and winner of the Hustle Award. (Submitted photos).

BASKETBALL AWARD winners at the recent Marshall County Central high school athletic awards and recognition luncheon in Newfolden went to Kevin Boe (left), most improved player, and Jamie Sagstuen, most valuable defensive player. Also earning an award, but not present at the time of the picture, was Larry Larson, most valuable player award winner.

EARNING SPECIAL recognition in girls basketball at the 1983 Marshall County Central athletic awards and recognition luncheon were Barb Garthus (left), the most improved player, and Sue Olson, most valuable player and most valuable offensive player. Not present at the time of the picture was Debbie Peterson, most valuable defensive player.

SCHOLAR ATHLETE awards from the national army reserve were presented to two Marshall County Central high school students in recognition of outstanding achievement in athletics and scholarship. Staff Sergeant Garland Montgomery Sr. (left) made the presentation to Alan Melvie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Melvie and Stacey Gonshorowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gervase Gonshorowski, with the assistance of Ron Ueland, athletic director at MCC.

Summer Baseball Registration Set

Registration for the Thief River Falls summer baseball program for 7-12-year-olds will be held at the sports arena from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Thursday, June 2, and from 10 a.m. to 12-noon Friday, June 3, it was announced by program director Ron Novak.

A $5 fee will be charged each participant this summer, and that fee must be paid at the time of the registration June 2 or June 3.

Thief River Falls summer baseball program will be divided into four divisions or leagues in 1983, including the Major League, Minor League East, Minor League West and 7-8-year-olds.

Major League will be for 10-11-12-year-olds born after August 1, 1970 and before July 31, 1973. Same four teams that have operated in the past — Blue Jays, A's, Twins, Yankees — will be used this summer.

Minor League East will be for 10-11-12-year-olds who do not make the teams in the Major League, and will follow the same four-team format.

Minor League West will be for 9-year-olds and those 10-year-olds who do not play in the Minor League East Division. Nine-year-olds will be those born after August 1, 1973 and before July 31, 1974. The Minor League West will meet every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 3 p.m. at the fairgrounds diamond.

All those born after August 1, 1974 and before July 31, 1976 will be eligible to participate in the 7-8-year-old program. These dates will be strictly enforced, according to program officials. The 7-8-year-olds will meet every Monday and Wednesday at 1 p.m. at the fairgrounds diamond.

First practices for each group will be held Monday, June 6. Each participant will be notified at the time of their registration what time to report to their first practice sessions.

For additional information contact one of the program coaches: Ron Novak, 681-3959; Bill Blankenfeld, 681-2882; Myron Peterson, 681-2798; and Charlie Cornell, 681-3449.

Card of Thanks
We would like to publicly express our heartfelt thanks for the benefit dinner held Feb. 13, 1983, sponsored by the Plummer Community Club, to raise money to help defray medical expenses for our daughter Amy. Amy underwent hospitalization and surgery five times within the first six months of her life.

Thanks to the caring friends, neighbors and individuals from surrounding communities who sent cash donations to the bank and helped sell raffle and dinner tickets. A special thanks to the Plummer community we live in, all the churches, clubs, organizations and citizens who worked so hard together to raise over $3,000.00.

We live in a community that cares. Our family, neighbors, and friends are willing to go the extra mile for us. We love you all and thank you sincerely.

Political Winds Change On Tax Of Property

Special To The Times
by Jim Robins
Northern Star News Service

The political winds have changed on the property tax issue. Ten years ago DFLers throughout the state rode to victory decrying the property tax system that made Minnesota one of the heaviest taxed states in that category.

After implementing a complicated system of credits and local aids, Minnesota has dropped to the middle of the pack in property taxes while the income and sales taxes picked up the slack.

This year DFLers have changed their tune and bills in both houses of the Legislature make big cuts in credits to property tax payers, allowing $35 million to stay in state coffers to help balance the budget.

Local aids to all countries, townships and suburban cities have been cut drastically. That is likely to translate into heavier taxes for those communities.

Both bills hit low valued residential units hard. The House hikes agricultural credit aid by $15 million, but changes the formula so that areas with low mill rates get less aid while high tax agricultural areas receive a windfall of relief.

The Senate bill doesn't tamper with the agricultural credit formula and funds it at last year's level.

There are some problems likely to come out of the property tax provisions now under consideration, according to Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer.

Local aids is source of "the most confusion right now," he said. Stumpf has mixed feelings about cuts to cities and townships. "I want to hold the budgets down," Stumpf said.

He also notes that farm valuations are down. "That should help us," Stumpf said.

He is also "pretty comfortable" with funding schools at $1,475 per pupil. Overall, Stumpf admits, "the shift will be back to property taxes."

Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls gave a scenario on how the House property tax plan will affect his district. The package will be "beneficial" to farmers with a higher mill allowance for the agriculture credit. Commercial property taxes will see a "minor decrease" and homeowners will "possibly be getting an increase."

"I don't think anyone likes to increase taxes. . . but we need revenues for the budget we retained," Sparby said.

Sparby would like to see less reliance on property taxes in raising state revenue, much of which goes to education, and more dependence on the income and sales taxes. "We're taking too much revenue from property tax for education," he said, more income and sales taxes could go toward that.

IR legislators generally agree that property tax provisions in both bills are designed to hurt suburban and agricultural properties while continuing to cater heavy relief to Minneapolis, St. Paul and northeastern Minnesota.

They chide Gov. Rudy Perpich, who campaigned statewide in 1970 to eliminate the property tax in Minnesota. Perpich, along with many DFLers, is calling for a better balance among the state's three main revenue raisers — property, income and sales taxes.

When economic recovery comes to Minnesota, Perpich will be pushing for some relief from income tax burdens. Whether he gets backing from DFLers on that proposal remains to be seen.

Area Couples Accepted For State Program

Three couples from the Thief River Falls and Goodridge areas have been accepted as recipients for the 1983 beginning farmer scholarship program, according to Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Solberg and Mr. and Mrs. Danny Johnsrud of Goodridge and Mr. and Mrs. David Helt of Thief River Falls.

The one-year tuition assistance scholarships were among 196 awarded to farm couples and individuals in 58 counties throughout the state for participation in the three-year adult farm business management programs. The programs, which are offered in approximately 100 locations, are cooperatively managed by the Minnesota state department of education, University of Minnesota's division of agricultural education, area vocational technical institutes and local school districts.

"Funds for the scholarship program come from the state's rural rehabilitation trust fund which originates from loans made by the federal government to assist Minnesota farmers during the 1930's," states Lt. Gov. Johnson, chairman of the governor's council on rural development. The scholarship program is in its second year.

Get-Acquainted Day Set At Florian Park

Florian Park has scheduled a get-acquainted day Saturday, June 4 which has been designed to familiarize area people with the park facilities. Visitors will be allowed to enter the park free and one free night of camping is also offered.

Park is located 11 and one-half miles east of Stephen on county road six and one mile south. Boats with electric motors are allowed on the lake.

Rates for services will remain the same as last year with the camping fee set at $4.50, the tent fee at $2.50, daily pass at $2 and yearly pass at $6. Monthly rate for those who would like to leave their campers is also available.

Twenty-five electrical hookups, dumping station and showers are offered. In addition to swimming, fishing and camping facilities, the park has a snack shack, playground and picnic areas. Live bait is sold at the office.

FIRST FLEA MARKET of the 1983 summer was conducted at Floyd B. Olson park in dowtown Thief River Falls Saturday. Despite strong winds and occasional brief rain showers, the market attracted a large number of people selling their wares and a good crowd of lookers and buyers as well. The flea market was coordinated with North Country Auto Showtime also held during the weekend. Other flea markets here this summer are scheduled for June 18, July 16, August 20 and September 17. Seller fee is $5 with no charge for any individual or group with six or fewer items to sell.

Memorial Day Traffic Safety Is Stressed

Upcoming Memorial day weekend, starting at 6 p.m. Thursday, May 26, to midnight, Monday, May 30, is one of the longest of the year and often one of the most dangerous on Minnesota highways, according to public safety commissioner Paul Tschida.

Tschida reminds motorists that the state patrol will have a full staff of troopers on duty the entire weekend. "In addition to the regularly scheduled state troopers, there will be off-duty troopers, supervisors and special assignment troopers patrolling the state highways under the federally funded project 55 during this weekend," said Col. Roger Ledding, patrol chief. Ledding said troopers will stress speed enforcement, drunk driving violations and general highway courtesy.

Ledding adds that the Memorial day weekend will be the first big holiday weekend of the summer, causing a heavy traffic volume with many trailers, boats and mobile homes traveling the highways of Minnesota.

"There could be minor delays in construction zones so patience is important when using the highways," the chief advised.

On Memorial day weekend in 1982, six people lost their lives in state traffic accidents. The 1981 Memorial day toll was 10.

State motorists are reminded that a number of radio emergency associated citizen teams (REACT) will volunteer services at highway rest stops. Under the REACT program nationally, more than one million free cups of coffee have been served to motorists on holiday weekends.

BSU Opens Elderhostel Registration

Registration is now open for the Bemidji state university elderhostel, a summer program which combines the best traditions of education and hostelery for individuals over the age of 60.

Program offers five, one-week classroom experiences and campus living. Participants attend one, two or three courses but do not take tests on the material covered.

Classes offered during elderhostel are: "Music of, by and for the People"; "A Journey to Germany"; "Science Stew"; and "Lutefisk and Lefse, Red Barns and Cream, Scandinavians and the American Dream."

Dr. Fulton Gallagher teaches the music course, which is devoted to music primarily consumed by average, non-professionals interested in music. It covers topics such as the development and importance of folk music and significant music trends, including folk and high art, that are widely enjoyed by people in all walks of life.

"Science Stew," taught by Dr. Duane Sea, is a potpourri of topics in science. Class members will look at the history of surgery, earthquakes, astronomy for beginners as well as solving crimes with science and many other subjects.

"Journey to Germany" is an armchair excursion through the history, geography, folklore, customs and related topics of both East and West Germany. Instructor Nancy Erickson will use filmstrips and slides to generate discussion during the course, which will also expose students to enough of the German language to enable them to get about in actual German speaking settings. Greetings, asking information and speaking various German dialects will be stressed in this class. It is intended to give hostelers a good feeling for what Germany and being in Germany is like.

Dr. Arthur Lee's course, "Lutefisk and Lefse, Red Barns and Cream, Scandinavians and the American Dream," takes a look at Scandinavians who came to this country in the 19th century. He will give special emphasis to Norwegians who immigrated during the Gilded age, the latter part of that century.

Three of the courses will be available to hostelers each five day period. All the courses are recommended for any person over 60 who has not finished learning. The classes meet for one to two hours each day.

Class schedule is: week I (June 5-11) "Lutefisk and Lefse," "Science Stew," "Music of, by and for the People"; week II (June 12-18) "Lutefisk and Lefse," "A Journey to Germany," "Music of, by and for the People"; week III (June 19-25) "Lutefisk and Lefse," "Science Stew", "A Journey to Germany"; week IV (June 26-July 2) same as week III; week V (July 3-9) same as week III.

Subsidy Given Cab Users; Toreq Purchase Delayed

Thief River Falls city council approved a rate increase and subsidy program for Fred's Cab service, and heard of a $5,800 snag in its plans to purchase the Toreq building during their regular meeting held last night in city auditorium.

Rate increase was requested by Fred Cloutier, owner of Fred's Cab, who noted that the company was "in very deep trouble, financially." At a previous council meeting, Aldermen Don Goodrich and Milan Borsheim had been appointed to study the problem and bring a recommendation back to council.

That recommendation, which was approved in two separate actions, included: (1) a standard fare increase from $2.50 to $3 for calls within the city, effective June 1; and (2) three month trial of a subsidy program for senior citizens, under which persons age 60 and over would pay a reduced fare of $1.50, and the city would pay an additional dollar to the cab company for each passenger using the reduced fare.

Control over the subsidy would be maintained by issuing "cab cards" to senior citizens through the city clerk's office. Each time the card was used, the cab company would be required to record the number of the card on a daily log sheet, and the customer would be required to sign the log.

Cloutier blamed competition from the Tri-Valley bus service for the cab company's poor financial condition, noting that the subsidy which the buses receive from the federal government was higher than his cab fare. Passengers currently ride the bus for 45 cents, but Cloutier noted that the federal government pays the bus service an additional $2.45 for expenses, plus providing funds for purchase of equipment. Note was made that the government was considering discontinuation of the subsidy for operating expenses, which could change force the bus company to raise fares.

Cloutier said there was no way of telling what the senior citizen subsidies would cost the city, since he had no record of what percentage of his passengers were senior citizens. He also said he had no idea what effect the new fares would have on his business adding, "We'll just have to wait and see." Mayor Bob Carlson emphasized that the council had shown its willingness to help the cab company because its problems were primarily due to the depressed business economy of the area, and it offered a valuable service to the community.

Alderman James Womack reported that Toreq Inc., of which he is treasurer, had run into problems in transferring the title to the property which it had agreed to sell to the city at a cost of $256,800. (Because of his involvement with the company, Womack had previously abstained from voting or involving himself in council discussion on the matter.) Although negotiators for Toreq had agreed to pay approximately $27,000 in back taxes owed on the property for 1981-82, Womack reported that there was an additional $5,800 owed the county in penalties and interest on those taxes.

Womack said that he and Toreq President Hank Hallstrom had gone before the county board yesterday in an attempt to obtain an abatement on the additional $5,800. Womack reported that although they had stressed the importance of the sale in keeping Northern Outerwear as an industry in Thief River Falls, the county board had "lacked enthusiasm" for their request. Womack added that the board had not reached a decision on the request at the time he had left to attend the council meeting. (County Auditor Ken Olson reported this morning that the board voted unanimously to deny the abatement request.)

City utilities and park and recreation department personnel have already begun making preparations to move into the Toreq building, with Northern Outerwear in the process of final negotiations on a lease-purchase agreement for the city service

'83 Crop Wheat Can Be Used In PIK Exchange

Farmers in Pennington and Marshall counties now have the opportunity to make an exchange of the wheat PIK which they will be receiving on Aug. 15, 1983, according to ASCS office managers in those counties.

If a farmer had wheat under loan, he was required to use this grain for his payment in kind. If he has no wheat under loan, the PIK bushels would be provided by the Commodity Credit corporation, and available at one of the local elevators. In most cases, it is expected that the farmer will sell this wheat back to the same elevator, and the grade and protein content will determine the market price on the day he decided to sell.

Concern has been expressed that if the CCC cannot provide a good quality wheat with a high protein content, the market price will be lower than expected. To avoid this potential problem, the CCC now offers farmers the use of their own harvest of 1983 wheat for their PIK bushels instead of receiving them from a local elevator. By doing so, the producer knows he is getting his own wheat back, and if the grade, quality and protein are better than average, it will be to his advantage.

Farmers who request this exchange will be eligible for a loan on the 1983 wheat as soon as harvest has been completed. The loan to replace the CCC PIK bushels will be interest free, and storage will be paid on the wheat for up to five months, starting on Aug. 15, 1983. At any time during that same five-month period, the farmer can request that his loan be cancelled, and he is free to sell the grain on the open market for the best price available.

If any farmer wants to make this exchange, he sould contact his ASCS office no later than this Friday (May 27). This is the day that records will be updated, and CCC will determine how much wheat must be available at the local elevators, and how much will be taken from the 1983 harvest. Questions will be answered at 681-1612 in Thief River Falls and at 745-4251 in Warren.

Wiebolt Appointed Northland Provost

Ken Wiebolt, a member of the Northland community college administrative staff for the past 15 years, has been appointed provost of the Northland campus under the reorganization which combines the local school with community colleges in Brainerd and Fergus Falls.

Appointment was made by Dr. Alex Easton, formerly president at Northland, who has been named president of the three-campus college arrangements. No name has yet been selected for the combined schools. Dr. Easton earlier appointed Sally Ihne, dean of instruction at Northland, to the provost position at Brainerd and Dan True of Fergus Falls to the position of provost there.

Wiebolt is presently dean of students at Northland where he has held positions of counselor, financial aids officer, administrative assistant and acting president prior to Dr. Easton's appointment as president here.

Dr. Easton said he was "extremely pleased to be able to complete the chief executive officer appointments on all the campuses and especially pleased with the quality and potential of the administrators at all three sites." He said the vice provost position will be filled here as soon as possible, pending applications from administrators within the community college system.

Wiebolt said he is looking forward to the challenge of maintaining the quality of instruction at Northland with the decrease in administrative staff. "We have a good institution going here at Northland now," he said, "with a high quality instructional and support staff committed to the success of the school. I see no noticeable change in the educational opportunity for students in the northwestern Minnesota area served by our campus."

He said he is pleased by the selection as provost and the opportunity to continue making his home in a community which he has enjoyed a great deal.

Wiebolt has been a very active resident of this community. He served on the Thief River Falls board of education for three years, including two as chairman, has been on the parks and recreation board of the city for 11 years and currently serves as chairman. He is also a past president of the Thief River Falls amateur hockey association (TRFAHA) and has been treasurer and president of the Thief River Falls sports boosters club. He is also a member of the Elks lodge.

Wiebolt serves as treasurer of the Minnesota community college fine arts association and is a member of the state, regional and national financial aid administrators association.

A native of Ogema and graduate of Waubun high school, Wiebolt holds BS and MS degrees from Moorhead state university and has additional study at the University of Minnesota. He

Women More Susceptible To Phobias

An estimated 64 to 95 per cent more women than men fall prey to agoraphobia (an abnormal fear of leaving one's home or other safe environment), according to Dr. Barry Wolfe, assistant chief, psychosocial treatment branch, National Institute of mental health division of extramural programs. Dr. Wolfe has written extensively on the subject. Part of the explanation for women being more susceptible to phobia (fears), he believes, may have to do with the way society views women.

Phobias may be defined as an extreme and persistent fear of an object, event or situation which to others present no real danger, says Wolfe. A person may fear the situation so intensely that he or she will avoid it at all costs, even to the point of changing one's routine or lifestyle.

An individual who fears heights, for example, might turn down a good-pay job offer on the upper floor of an office building.

These attacks can be crippling, Wolfe notes: man individuals report shortness of breath, palpitations, feelings of loss of personality, dizziness, and weakness in the limbs, or possible loss of bladder and bowel control.

As to the more frequent occurrence of agoraphobia among women, one must look at how our culture raises and views them, Wolfe explains. Society expects men and women to act differently, ranging from the way they walk, talk, think and dress, to norms for personality traits, erratic behavior, recreational activities, and the assignment of adult responsibilities.

"Typically," says Wolfe, "Women are raised to be dependent, submissive and passive; to rely on the male for support and status; to concentrate on marriage, home and children as their primary concern; and to refrain from asserting themselves or hungering after any kind of power.

"Women are encouraged to be more fearful, are discouraged from displaying independent behaviors, and are, in fact, rewarded for being dependent, passive and submissive rather than assertive or challenging."

Wolfe went on to say that these characteristics can lead to a sense of being unable to do things on their own.

All this adds up to a poor self-concept, which may make it difficult for a woman to face unfamiliar settings or situations away from the comfort and protection of her home, and this sometimes leads to agoraphobia.

Wolfe reports that agoraphobia attacks a woman's life in cases such as pregnancy, marriage or a move. On the one hand, the woman is delighted with a new opportunity, but on the other hand, she is frightened by the new responsibilities.

For instance, he says, a woman who wishes to leave an unhappy marriage feels herself pulled in two directions: on the one hand the safety and financial stability of her marriage, and on the other hand the greater freedom and happiness, but also the isolation of living alone.

Intensity of such a conflict can send her into a panic which could be the beginning of an agoraphobic attack.

Wolfe admits that, as with any theory, there are bound to be some flaws. Other researchers hold that phobias are a response to some traumatic event in one's life, or result from observing another person's fear.

Conceding that these theories have some truth, Wolfe nevertheless argues that such explanations still can't fully account for more women than men becoming agoraphobic.

Wolfe remarks that the rise of feminism might decrease phobias among those women who are raised in a less dependent way. But there still remains a sizeable number of women who were raised according to the strict "feminine ideal," he points out, and they may be susceptible to agroraphobia.

Approximately 65 per cent of both women and men lose their phobic symptoms or improve substantially with help of others.

"Interestingly enough," says Wolfe, "Some studies have shown that the mates of individuals who recover from agoraphobia — and in most cases, this means husbands — feel very threatened." They may fall into a depression over their spouses' recovery, believing that their wives no longer need them.

Some even experience an intense bout of jealousy when their wives improve, Wolfe reports. As long as his wife was housebound, the jealous husband need not wonder about her faithfulness. But, with her recovery, the husband fears she may seek the company of other men.

"One wonders," Wolfe says wryly, "If some married men's emotional security depends upon their wives' emotional insecurity."

Drug, Alcohol Programs Will Be Aired On TV

On November 1, 1983, people throughout Minnesota will gather together with family, friends and others in their communities to watch the first night of a public television series designed to help them prevent alcohol and drug problems.

"The Chemical People: Minnesota" is a unique effort to prevent the problems of alcohol and drug abuse among our young people. Specifically, the project will:

+ Present the results of the most extensive student survey regarding alcohol and drug use ever conducted in Minnesota.

+ Educate Minnesotans about the impact of chemical use problems upon the lives of young people and their families.

+ Motivate people through the use of public television to initiate local efforts to prevent chemical use problems.

+ Organize people in communities throughout Minnesota to hold town meetings on the evening of November 1, 1983, directed toward the specific goals of preventing chemical use problems among youth.

+ Provide ongoing support to community-based task forces through the Minnesota Prevention Resource Center (MPRC) field consultants in the months following the program.

"The Chemical People: Minnesota" project is made possible by a partnership involving the Search Institute, which is conducting the survey; the Minnesota Institute and its MPRC, which will be responsible for the outreach, publicity and followup support; KTCA-TV and the State Public Television Network, which will produce and air the four-hour series scheduled for November, 1983; and the State Departments of Education and Public Welfare, which are providing technical assistance and financial support. Additional major funding is provided through grants from several Minnesota corporations and foundations.

First television program will present the survey results of a random sample of over 10,000 eighth, tenth and twelfth grade public and nonpublic school students. This program will present the most comprehensive profile available concerning alcohol and drug use attitudes and behavior among our youth today. The following three hours will present additional information about alcohol and drug use problems and explore specific prevention resources and strategies for individuals, families, and communities.

A viewer's guide prepared by Minnesota Institute will be available to those attending town meetings the first night, and will be made available to others who request them. The guide will assist people in following the series, assessing problem areas, identifying prevention strategies and putting together a local plan of action.

These action plans will become the focus of local Chemical People efforts in the months that follow. MPRC field consultant network will continue assisting individuals and groups in communities throughout the state who request additional information or technical assistance. These efforts will lead to a better understanding of chemical use problems and changes in the way alcohol and drugs affect our lives.

Project Review Committee Hears Report

Mayor Lawrence Sunsdahl of Stephen, a temporary member of the Minnesota waste management board, reviewed the Pope-Reid report on above-ground disposal of hazardous waste when the local project review committee met Thursday at the Newfolden community center.

The report is a theoretical concept since there are presently no such systems in operation. Projected initial cost of such a facility was estimated at $10 million, exclusive of roads to provide access to such a site. A 10-year operating and maintenance cost was projected at $38 million.

Concern was also expressed at the meeting that existing area fire and ambulance departments were inadequately equipped and trained to cope with potential emergencies and that communities could not afford to finance such emergency services.

At the next meeting of the project review committee at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 2, in Strandquist, a report will be given on a conference entitled "Searching for Solutions" and sponsored by the University of Minnesota and waste management board May 23 in St. Paul. Members of the project review committee had been invited to participate in the conference.

Meetings of the project review committee are open to the public and local people are encouraged to attend and express their opinions and ideas.

Host Families Sought For Farm Trainees

Farm and ranch families interested in hosting an international agricultural trainee in 1983 can still participate in MAST international, a program sponsored by the agricultural extension service.

Agriculture trainees from five countries are available for placements in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and the other Western states. Families are needed as host-trainers for five months of practical, on-the-farm or ranch experience, starting in late June.

Young farmers in their twenties with agricultural education and farm experience learn American agriculture by living and working with farm or ranch families. All of these young farmers bring a working knowledge of English and farm backgrounds.

If you would like to share your life and work with one or more of these well-trained and motivated agriculturists, and can afford about $475 per month plus room and board for experienced farm help, inquire or apply to host by writing or calling: Fred Hoefer, Agricultural Extension Service-OSP, 405E Coffey Hall, U of M, 1420 Eckles Ave, St. Paul, MN 55108, phone (612) 373-0725.

New color-coded map and a booklet that illustrate Minnesota trunk highways, county roads and city streets allowing 10-ton loads on a permanent or seasonal basis are now available without charge from the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

Map and booklet contain 10-ton route information compiled by Mn-DOT and provide the public and truckers with advance notice of the routes on which it is legal to operate trucks having 80,000-pound loads throughout Minnesota.

Publication of the map and booklet reflects a new Mn-DOT policy to simplify 10-ton route changes which occur throughout the year for truckers. They list permanent 10-ton routes and provide advance notice of specific dates when seasonal 10-ton routes become legal each year, said Darrell Schierman, manager of emergency operations, permits and road condition information.

Those who receive the map and booklet also will receive bulletins advising them of changes in 10-ton routes as they occur. The bulletins can be inserted into the booklet which is a convenient size for truck drivers to carry in their vehicles, said Schierman.

Information about changes in 10-ton routes also is available on a 24-hour basis by calling (612) 297-2093.

Mn-DOT is able to provide the map and booklet without charge because their cost is included in the truckers' operating permit fees, he said.

Copies of the map and booklet are available at Mn-DOT district offices throughout the state or by writing the Emergency Operations, Permits and Road Condition Information Section, G-17 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 or calling (612) 296-3072.

Mrs. B. Mostue Earns Degree In Research

Mrs. Brooks (Patricia) Mostue, daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. George Mostue of Thief River Falls, has received a doctorate degree in educational research at graduation exercises Monday from Boston University in Boston, MA.

She has received a masters degree from Boston college and was awarded a certificate of advanced graduate studies in education from Harvard university graduate school. Brooks and Patricia have two daughters, two-year-old Anne and five-month-old Margaret.

MN Registry Has Alcoholism Follow-Up

Two-year mark for follow-up on treatment of alcoholism has been reached by a Minnesota registry which includes 1,000 inpatients from 15 programs in three states.

CATOR (chemical abuse-addiction treatment outcome registry) is the only program in the nation for evaluation of the effectiveness of alcoholism treatment. Former patients' substance use, employment, medical care utilization and arrests have been monitored at six month intervals for two years following treatment.

New CATOR data shows a significant decrease in hospitalization after treatment. Prior to treatment, these patients were hospitalized about four times more than the average population and after treatment hospitalization dropped to below average. Decreases totaled about 74 per cent for medical care, 97 per cent for psychiatric treatment and 97 per cent for detoxification. Post-treatment results show that only five per cent of these patients required hospitalization during the first six months.

CATOR participants also reported improved employment functioning after treatment. Prior to treatment 32 per cent were unemployed and 12 months after treatment that number decreased to 19 per cent. Job absenteeism was reduced from 39 to four per cent 12 months after treatment as well as job performance problems and dependency upon welfare.

Criminal arrests also decreased substantially after treatment. In a 12 month post-treatment period, chemically-related arrests decreased about 85 per cent.

According to Norm Hoffmann, Ph.D., CATOR director, the study adds validity to the cost effectiveness and efficacy of chemical abuse treatment. "Substance abuse costs to society are enormous. CATOR is showing a 50 per cent payback of those costs in the first six months, and over 50 per cent of all of the inpatients reported total abstinence for the first full year after treatment. CATOR will significantly affect many policies and will change the thinking of those who make the policies: insurance companies, lawmakers, employers and health care providers."

Hoffmann is currently working to expand CATOR to other states and is also developing a similar registry for adolescents.

New report coincides with an editorial endorsement for the concept of an alcoholism registry by the "Journal of the American Medical Association" (JAMA) May 13 issue. "To determine which therapy is best under which circumstances, longitudinal follow-up of thousands of patients must be undertaken, critically evaluated and documented in the peer review literature. Alcoholism registries . . . would promote such comparative follow-up and would allow us to take the next giant step toward handling this ancient plague in the best possible ways."

Memorial Day Litterbugs Are Cautioned

As the Memorial day weekend approaches, Minnesota department of transportation state maintenance engineer Curtis Christie reminds motorists of the stiff penalties for littering.

Anyone convicted of littering is subject to a fine and-or jail sentence, or the judge may order the offender to pick up litter along public roads.

Motorists are urged to carry litter bags in their cars and to dispose of them at service stations, designated areas or at home at the end of their trips, Christie said.

Although Minnesota's highway rest areas do provide trash disposal containers, he said they should be used only for small amounts of litter, not for large amounts of trash. Dumping large amounts of trash at rest areas is illegal and greatly increases the cost of maintenance.

Christie said keeping the state's highways and rest areas free of litter enhances the enjoyment of travel by both Minnesota residents and visitors during the summer months as well as reducing the cost of highway maintenance.

Motorists paid nearly $1.5 million in 1982 for collecting more than 7,500 truck loads of litter along state highways.

Tax Refunds Up; Partially Due To IRAs

Individual federal income tax refunds averaged a record $740 for 1982, up from $712 for 1981, according to the Internal revenue service.

Tax-deductible contributions to individual retirement accounts (IRAs) were part of the reason.

At the beginning of 1982, everyone who works for a living became eligible to invest up to $2,000 a year in an IRA, and the IRS says about 11 per cent of taxpayers cut their 1982 tax liability by doing just that.

Eventually, of course, taxes are paid on IRAs, but not until withdrawals begin — usually after retirement, when most people are in a lower tax bracket. Until then, contributions and earnings can grow untaxed, which can make quite a difference in the size of a retirement nestegg. (If you didn't put another penny in, a $740 tax refund check paying 10 per cent a year for 30 years would grow to $12,913. The same amount placed in a taxable investment paying the same rate would grow, over the same period, to $5,633, for someone in the 30 per cent tax bracket.)

Labor-Memorial Day School Year Proposed

Minnesota's tourism industry, through a grassroots program, has made considerable progress in what is fast becoming a nationwide campaign to coordinate school calendars with the tourism-vacation season.

Minnesota resort association's Labor day to Memorial day school calendar year proposal is now being adopted by many Minnesota schools and similar campaigns have been initiated in Wisconsin, Arkansas, Missouri, North Carolina and Connecticut.

Proposed school calendar year does not change the number of school days, but compacts the school year by shortening mid-year breaks. A more compact school calendar year would directly benefit a number of Minnesota's major industries, particularly agriculture and tourism, which rank first and second in providing jobs and taxes to the state.

Number of school districts, including Brainerd, Ely, Walker, and Mankato have adopted a more compact calendar for the coming year, according to Sue Leagjeld, Driftwood Resort, Pine River, chairperson for the Labor day to Memorial day school calendar committee. Leagjeld noted that Prior Lake passed a policy mandating that future school years fall between Labor day and Memorial day.

"We're aware of 23 districts with over 40,000 students that have changed their calendars, but we will not know until possibly this fall how many schools have implemented the new schedule," Leagjeld stated. "We feel that we have made a great start this year in getting school districts across the entire state to change their calendars," she added. April 1 was the deadline for finalizing most school calendars for the coming year.

"We knew the length of the school year was hurting our industry (resorts) but we found that we were far from alone." Leagjeld pointed out the importance that support from the Minnesota farm bureau federation, Minnesota association of commerce and industry and Governor Rudy Perpich has played in making this a statewide campaign.

Perpich has contacted school superintendents throughout the state asking them to voluntarily comply with the more compact school year. "Even many teachers favor the change because it means they can get a summer job with us," Leagjeld said, referring to the support of the Minnesota federation of teachers.

"School aids is the largest segment to which Minnesota tax revenues are distributed," Leagjeld said. She pointed to the state's present financial problems, which have resulted in cutbacks in school aids and have helped emphasize the need for the tax revenues tourism produces to continue to maintain Minnesota's quality of education. The number of districts with approval for a referendum levy has grown from 74 in 1978-79 to 170 in 1982-83 and many districts are spending reserve funds accumulated in past years.

"We had planned to work with Minnesota schools first before approaching other states on this issue, but we're very pleased to see other states have initiated similar campaigns," Leagjeld said.

Legislation has passed the Missouri Senate to begin school after Labor day and similar legislation has been introduced in the North Carolina general assembly. In Wisconsin, Assembly Bill 62 has been introduced in the House relating to the beginning of the fall semester of the University of Wisconsin system and vo-tech schools, and in Arkansas, a resolution concerning school calendar dates has been introduced.

"We are parents and we are concerned with the quality of education. We do not want to cut back the number of school days; we simply want to compact them between Labor day and Memorial day. This proposal makes sense and it is one way of benefiting not only the tourism and agricultural industries, but the education system and the state's economy as well," Leagjeld, a former teacher, said.

MN Employers Very Cautious About Hiring

Minnesota employers responding to a survey generally indicated they do not intend to expand their workforces during 1983.

Survey of employment needs was conducted by the Greater Minnesota Private Industry Council, Inc. in April and May.

Highlights of the survey findings:

— Four in five employers do not expect their workforces to grow in 1983.

— The same proportion of employers do not expect to lay off current workers in 1983.

— Those employers who do not intend to hire cited as reasons lack of business and the state of the economy.

— Total of 96 per cent of the respondents have heard of government incentives — tax credits or wage reimbursements — for training new workers, but only one in five has used them.

— Of those who have used the incentives, 70 per cent are satisfied with workers hired through the programs.

— When hiring new workers, employers are most likely to seek experience and a "willingness to work."

Survey was sent to 1300 employers in 51 counties in northwest, central and southern Minnesota. While the average respondent has six employees, the most frequent respondents were those who employed between one and three workers.

When asked what caused business stagnation, employers cited the cost of workers' and unemployment compensation, government deficit spending, and their inability to pay wages that compete with welfare benefits.

Twenty per cent of the respondents anticipated they will be hiring at least one new employee in the remainder of 1983. The types of workers to be hired vary from laborer and construction worker to pharmacist and attorney.

When looking for job applicants, employers say they are most likely to run an ad in the newspaper, ask other employers for recommendations or call the state Job Service. Most employers said they already have plenty of job applications on file.

Respondents said federal employment and training services should include a careful screening process, offer trained applicants and be fast and without fees.

Greater Minnesota Private Industry Council, Inc. surveyed employer hiring intentions and practices and current use of job training services in order to increase the usefulness of job training services to employers.

Employers interested in job training tax credits or wage reimbursements when hiring new workers may call the Thief River Falls job training office at 681-7350.

Farm Bureau Plans Anti-Tax Hike Campaign

Farm Bureau in Minnesota has launched an intensive grassroots campaign in opposition to excessive spending and taxing inclinations of congress.

Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation President Merlyn Lokensgard, a St. Peter area cash crop and livestock farmer, recently urged local lenders and members as well as other citizens to write their U.S. senators and congressmen, asking that they oppose altering estate and gift tax provisions of the economic recovery tax act of 1981; eliminating the third year installment of the 1981 individual tax rate cuts; and the repeal of tax indexing.

Lokensgard said the organization's all-out effort to resist tax hikes is geared to a nationwide attempt in which all state Farm Bureaus are involved.

"Farm Bureau strongly supports less spending, lower taxes and movement toward a balanced federal budget," Lokensgard said. "Since historically tax increases have always meant more government spending, our more than three million member families want the federal deficit trimmed by reducing spending — not by increasing taxes," he said.

Charging that Congress "lacks the discipline" to cut spending, Lokensgard pointed to current budget recommendations calling for $33 billion in increased domestic spending and covering $30 billion of it with additional taxes.

With federal tax increases an estimated $300 billion between 1981 and 1988, Congress persists in "looking for new ways to tax," said Lokensgard. He noted Farm Bureau's concern is directed at several current revenue proposals that would:

+ Repeal the third year (10 per cent) tax cut scheduled for next July 1, returning $30 billion to the federal treasury by 1984 and netting some $117 billion in increased taxes over a five-year period.

+ Repeal income tax indexing, a protection for taxpayers against "bracket creep."

+ Freeze scheduled reforms in estate tax laws, raising the tax credit from the 1981 exemption level of $175,000 to $600,000 by 1987. Now it is proposed to lock the phase-in program at the 1983 level of $275,000.

Lokensgard noted also that "a number of other tax devices are under the congressional microscope." He mentioned a federal oil import tax, corporate and individual surtaxes and a hidden value-added tax.

'U'M Ranks Seventh In Private Donors

University of Minnesota ranked seventh among the nation's higher education institutions in the amount of private support given by alumni, corporations and other sources in 1981-82.

Donors gave the university $54.9 million in 1981-82, an increase of $5 million over 1980-81.

The ranking of the 20 institutions in the United States receiving the highest total of voluntary support is part of an annual survey conducted by the council for financial aid to education and was released recently.

Of the top 10 universities ranked, the University of Minnesota is one of the only two public institutions included. The University of California at Los Angeles was fourth in the rankings.

The University of Minnesota has been included in the top 10 each year since 1973-74 and in the top 20 for the past 10 years.

"Setting an institutional record for private gifts is cause for great joy — especially after the university suffered a record cutback in state appropriations last year," said university President C. Peter Magrath. "Naturally, the regents, faculty and I are grateful for such generosity. We are also honored by the continuing confidence that our many benefactors place in this outstanding institution."

Overall, the survey of 1,101 private and public colleges and universities found support for those institutions increased by almost 15 per cent in 1981-82, to reach an estimated $4.86 billion.

Part of the increase in overall support nationally was due to $77 million in bequests to Harvard university and $38 million to Washington university in St. Louis from the estate of Edward Mallinckrodt, Jr., an alumnus of both schools.

Voluntary support overall increased in every category, including 23.9 per cent among alumni. Support from corporations was up 23.4 per cent.

For the University of Minnesota, support from corporations, non-alumni and other sources in 1981-82 increased over the previous year. Corporate donations increased from $7 million to $9.2 million and non-alumni donations increased from $10.18 million to $13.14 million.

Donations from foundations and from alumni both declined in 1981-82, although the actual number of persons making annual gifts increased. In the past three years, the number of individual donors has grown from 16,500 to nearly 25,000.

About 14.5 per cent of the university's alumni made donations during 1981-82, compared to about 13.5 per cent nationally.

Gifts to the university last year included $5 million to the college of agriculture for a new crop management center from the estate of Redwood Falls farmer Parker Sanders and a $2.9 million gift from the estate of Eldon Siehl to establish a chair in nursing honoring his wife, Cora. Gifts also established chairs in the colleges of law, education and agriculture.

There were continued corporate support to the center for microelectronic and information sciences from 3M and Calma.

Among foundation gifts were $1 million from the McKnight foundation to the School of Management to foster faculty development and $400,000 from the Exxon educational foundation to faculty and graduate student assistance in the institute of technology.

Subsidy Given Cab Users But Toreq Delayed

Asked if he was saying that Toreq might not be able to sell the building to the city, Womack replied that it was "only the most remote possibility," adding "I'm just telling you we have a problem." Much discussion followed, regarding the need to keep jobs in the city by assisting Northern Outerwear industry to expand, as well as finding a home for the various city departments. Mayor Carlson suggested that it would be in the best interest of the city for the council to lobby the county board, adding, "personally, I'm not going to let this building go by the way for a lousy $5,800!"

Carlson further commented, "everybody thinks we have a good buy. . . Northern Outerwear thinks they have a good deal too." He suggested that if necessary, he would call a special council meeting to settle the issue. City Attorney Bob Wurst suggested that they wait until they had more information before taking any action. Womack noted that Toreq had a time problem as well, adding that some of the creditors were "getting antsy."

In other business the council:

— Noted that the state had blacktopped the outside lane on Third Street between First Street and the bridge;

— Heard that Gerald Mundt Architects, Golden Valley, had expressed an interest in the old library building, for purchase by a group of private inventors who would renovate it for use as an office building. Noting that the city currently pays between $450 and $500 a month for maintenance on the building, Alderman Womack was instructed to continue further discussion with Mundt;

— Discussed plans by the Minnesota department of transportation for resurfacing of Highway 32 between here and Marcoux Corner in 1984;

— Planned for the board of review on Thursday, noting that all members should attempt to be present at 3 p.m. to hear a request for a reduction in taxes from MinnStar, Inc.;

— Granted permission for Pepsi Cola bottling company employees to have 3.2 beer in Oakland Park on June 18, from a 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. with Alderman Ken Murphy and Don Goodrich voting against;

— Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Monday, June 14, due to conflicts with the regular June meeting date.

RR To Repay State Funds With Interest

First railroad track rehabilitation contract where the railroad will repay state funds with interest has been signed, Commissioner Richard Braun, Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT), announced recently.

Three-party agreement totals $3,900,500 and provides for the rehabilitation of 39.7 miles of track from Morris to Beardsley. Under the provisions, the state will loan Burlington Northern railroad (BN) $1.6 million, which the railroad will repay in 10 equal yearly installments with 5.5 per cent interest. In addition, the railroad will contribute $1,910,450 in labor and materials to the project.

West Central shippers association, composed of 12 shippers in Big Stone and Stevens counties, will provide $390,050. Shippers will be repaid by the railroad at the rate of $85 for each carload shipped and received on the rail line.

Work is expected to begin by June with completion in summer 1984. The rehabilitation project includes ties and ballast, renewal of railroad crossings, rebuilding of four railroad bridges, relaying of 4.38 miles of rail and replacement of hardware (spikes, anchors, tie plates, bolts and washers). The track will be rehabilitated to handle 50-car unit trains at 25 mph in accordance with federal railroad administration class II safety standards.

This rehabilitated line will serve an area of 1,300 square miles and the communities of Morris, Alberta, Chokio, Johnson, Graceville, Barry and Beardsley with rail service. This west central Minnesota area is a prime wheat producing region that also has crops of corn, barley, flax, sunflowers, soybeans, oats and rye.

SECOND PLACE TROPHY in the people's choice division at the North Country Auto Showtime last weekend in Thief River Falls was awarded to Russell Olson of Newfolden. He is shown receiving his trophy from Stacey Sandberg, Miss Thief River Falls. Olson's entry was a 1953 Chevrolet Belair convertible. Due to a transposition in information provided to the Times following the show, Olson was incorrectly listed as third place winner in Monday's edition of the Times. He also received several other awards at the fourth annual show.

Disabled Prove Abilities When Given The Chance

Whether a person lives in Pennington county or anywhere else in the U.S., it's almost impossible not to notice the quiet revolution going on among the nation's disabled population, according to Jim Norgard and Jan Hart of Courage Center in Golden Valley.

People with a variety of disabilities are proving that when given the opportunities, they can in many cases be productive, self-sufficient citizens, they said.

A case in point is the story of Kelly Syverson, an outspoken 31-year old former resident of Twin Valley, now living in St. Louis Park.

The whine of machine tools and the hissing of paint sprayers clamor for attention in Syverson's Minnetonka auto body shop. While visitors may find the noise distracting, it's music to his ears as he surveys the scene from his wheelchair.

"I've been able to stabilize this business after a brief downturn, and now I can work on improving it," he said. "I have substantial receivables and no payables. Things are going good."

Syverson's freedom to achieve his personal goals is something taken for granted by most able-bodied people, but it's a luxury that's only recently been available to those with disabilities. For over 50 years, Courage Center has worked to help people with handicaps overcome the barriers to a more independent life.

Courage Center is a nonprofit United Way organization serving people with physical disabilities and those with speech, hearing and vision impairments. From its Golden Valley headquarters, Courage Center operates a variety of programs available to Pennington county residents and others throughout the U.S.

Services include the center's camping programs at Camp Courage, near Maple Lake, and Courage North, on Lake George in northern Minnesota; the Courage Center Homecrafters craft training program for homebound disabled adults; Courage HANDI-HAM system of amateur radio; equipment loan; sports and recreation and much more.

Last year, 28 individuals from Pennington county took advantage of Courage Center services.

Syverson came to Courage Center's courage residence, a transitional living facility for disabled young adults, in the spring of 1977 after extensive rehabilitation in other facilities.

He had already put much of his life back together through his own stubborn determination, relearning how to drive and attending business classes at Normandale community college, but he was still frustrated at what he felt was his lack of physical recovery.

"I wanted to do something besides getting a job in a little room," Syverson said. "The whole point of courage residence is getting people out of institutions and living by themselves. That's what I wanted."

At courage residence, Syverson refined everyday living skills such as dressing and feeding himself and learned several helpful techniques to compensate for his limited arm and hand movement. When he felt he had accomplished as much as he could, he left the residence in 1978, found an accessible apartment and personal care attendant and continued his education at Normandale. He was graduated from Normandale in the summer of 1979. After working briefly as a sales person for an electric car dealership and an auto rebuilding business, Syverson saw an opportunity to buy a shop in an area that he had always liked.

"Working on cars is something I've enjoyed doing ever since I helped my dad out in his garage," he said. "While looking for business opportunities in the paper, I found a place for sale that was the type and location that I wanted. The place was called 'The Auto Painting Shop.' I am in the process of changing the name to 'Atonka Body Shop'."

His dream became a reality when he obtained a Small Business administration loan with the help of Russ Lindquist, an attorney referred by Wilko Schoenbohm, executive director of Courage Center. With the loan, Syverson purchased his present shop, retaining its equipment and employees.

Syverson stresses that he is not an "absentee" owner and is heavily involved in his business.

"This is one of the largest body shops in the western metro area," he said. "There is 10,000 square feet of space which gives us room for 30 cars. There are eight people working here now and it's a job keeping everyone busy.

"I oversee the books, order parts and work at 'selling' customers when they come in for estimates," he added. "I find my disability is neither a help nor a hindrance in those areas. Some people might be sold on my shop because I'm an independent disabled person."

And what does Syverson see for the future?

"My first goals are to stabilize the business and make a profit," he said. "Right now I am developing ways of increasing taffic. Before long I'd like to see twice as many people working here. I hope to do a million dollar a year business."

Information is available by contacting Courage Center, 3915 Golden Valley Road, Golden Valley, Minnesota 55422; 612-588-0811.

State Rest Areas Open For Tourists

Millions of tourists will be making their way along the highways and byways of Minnesota this summer and the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) is ready for them.

"We expect about four million travelers to visit our rest areas and travel information centers this year. Having these facilities available is a way to welcome tourists, provide travel and recreation information and keep our roads safe for the public," said Mn-DOT commissioner Richard P. Braun.

All travel information centers and rest areas throughout the state are open, and a listing of the 65 rest areas on the interstate and trunk highway system is now available from Mn-DOT.

Staffed travel information centers located at key entry points by the state's borders are near Albert Lea on I-35, Beaver Creek on I-90, Dresbach on I-90, Duluth on I-35, Eveleth on US 53, Fisher on US 2 and Moorhead on I-94.

Seven centers provide a network of information for travelers, including directions to the state's recreational, historical and cultural attractions, maps, brochures, weather and road conditions, traffic rules and safety tips.

Rest areas offer a place for travelers to get off the road, get a breath of fresh air, have a picnic, enjoy the scenery or catch a quick nap.

Information kiosks also are located at 14 rest areas along major highways or interstate routes to inform travelers of local public and private travel-recreation services available to them.

To serve the public better by allowing more travelers to use the rest areas, motorists are limited to a stop of six hours or less at all rest areas except at the Manitou rest area on TH 11, eight miles east of Birchdale, and at the Pomme-de-Terre rest area on US 12, 10 miles west of Danvers, where overnight camping is allowed.

For rest area listings, send request to: Rest Area Listing, Mn-DOT, 410 Transportation Building, St. Paul, MN 55155.

CLE Explains Garnishment, Exempt Money

If you can't pay your bills and you fear that your bank account or wages may be garnished, it is important to know your legal rights, according to Community legal education (CLE) officials of the legal aid society of Minneapolis.

This column is about sources of income which are exempt from garnishment. However, garnishment is a complicated issue and a column like this can't explain all the exceptions. If you antiticipate garnishment and have any questions about your rights, you should talk to an attorney, advise CLE officials.

You may have read in a previous "Your Rights and the Law" column that a creditor who obtains a judgment against you and wants to garnish your wages must send you a garnishment exemption notice ten days before any garnishment of your wages can occur. This notice states that the wages of certain persons are exempt from garnishment. If you receive such a notice, if you fit into any of the exempt categories it lists, and if your wages are more than $134 a week, fill it out, sign it, and return it within 10 days or the creditor will assume he or she has the right to garnish your wages.

If your wages are exempt on this basis, they technically remain exempt 60 days after being deposited in a bank. The column also explained that a certain portion of every person's wages is normally exempt from garnishment, and normally, that exempt portion of a regular worker's disposable wages (one who doesn't claim exemption of the basis described above) technically remains exempt 20 days after being deposited in a bank account.

However, there are sources of income other than wages which are also exempt. Once a creditor has a judgment against you, he or she can garnish your bank account without any prior notice to you, and you should take precautions to protect exempt money in your account. The public benefits AFDC, general assistance, medical assistance, and Minnesota supplemental assistance, technically remain exempt 60 days after deposit in the bank.

In addition, the following sources of income are exempt and technically remain exempt in the bank as long as you can show the money is from an exempt source: social security benefits; veterans' benefits; unemployment compensation; workers compensation; accident or disability insurance benefits; payments under a pension, profit-sharing, annuity or stock-bonus (if the debtor can show they are required for his or her support or for that of a dependent's); and up to $20,000 in life insurance proceeds received by a surviving spouse or a child from a deceased spouse or parent, with this amount increasing for each dependent. Exempt social security benefits include retirement, disability, widows or widowers, dependents, SSI, and railroad retirement benefits. However railroad retirement benefits could be taken to pay alimony or child support. Keep unemployment compensation separate from other funds. The law says it remains exempt in an account as long as it is not mingled with other funds.

If a creditor has started a lawsuit against you, and you have money in your bank account which is from any exempt source, take precautions if you wish to protect that money; keep check stubs and careful deposit records; avoid mixing exempt and non-exempt funds if you can; if you must do so, only the exempt money is safe technically, but you must be able to show it is exempt (to do this, a "first-in-first-out" method of accounting must be used — learn how it works); contact an attorney for advice on how to protect exempt money from being garnished.

If your only source of income is exempt, if you must keep it in the bank, and if you can't contact an attorney, it might be wise to send the creditor or creditor's attorney a letter limiting it to the following information: advising the creditor that you claim your sole source of income is exempt and name the exempt source; stating that any savings or checking account that you "may have" consists only of exempt funds. Finally, if exempt money has been garnished from your account, send the creditor's attorney or creditor a letter right away explaining the money was exempt and why, ask that it be returned to you immediately, and explain you will contact an attorney to get it back if it's not returned to you. Don't rely on what seems to be legal advice from a creditor. If your money is not returned, see an attorney about it.

Trees Are For . . . ?
by Debb Courneya
Grade 8

This sentence could be completed in many ways, as trees are among our most useful plants. Their common uses include: adding beauty to our homes and streets, shade for our living area, picnic grounds and homes, food and winter protection for many birds and wild animals, renewable sources of fiber and fuel, structural timbers for our homes and commercial buildings.

One of the most important uses, and the one I have chosen to write about, is their unchallenged value as windbreaks and shelter belts.

Trees are mother nature's outdoor air conditioners. If hot summer winds, raw wintry blasts or soil blowing are a problem on your farm, tree windbreaks can help you. Well-planned windbreaks for your fields and crops, buildings, livestock, orchard and garden and wildlife will benefit you and also increase the value of your farm.

Where natural protection is lacking tree windbreaks give this welcome shelter. Add to this the beauty and home like setting which trees bring to a home and community and the returns in comfort and economy far outweigh the cost. Along with reducing the amount of snow that gathers in the yard during winter, and the energy required to remove it, trees can lower heating costs for homes and livestock buildings, by as much as 20 per cent.

The farmstead windbreak should be located on the west and north sides of your farmstead to afford protection from the prevailing winds that blow from those directions. It should:

(1) Not be closer than 100 feet from the house, barn and feedlot. Trees any closer can cause snow to pile up around buildings and drives and obstruct air circulation during hot summer months. An interval of 100 feet or more allows room for gardens, orchards and picnic areas.

(2) Extend south and east at least 50 feet — preferably 100 feet — past the last main building. This distance avoids snow drifts which form around the ends of a tree belt and interfere with farm work.

(3) Contain eight rows of trees.

(4) Contain one or two rows of shrubs or small trees to the south and east of the farmstead if there is a need to control wind and snow blowing from these directions.

Never surround your farmstead with trees on all four sides, as a "dead air pocket" is created in the center. This dead air pocket tends to suck the snow blowing over the trees down into the farm yard. Trees on all four sides can also make hot summer days unbearable by slowing down air movement.

Field windbreaks act as a barrier to slow down winds, making soil less apt to blow and drift. Crop yields in some areas have been lowered for a long time as a result of a severe soil blowing. By reducing the force of the wind, you keep this valuable soil on your farm.

The trees and shrubs used for windbreaks make valuable cover and nesting areas for upland game and song birds. Pheasants, grouse, quail, partridge and doves use windbreaks for cover, food and nesting. Winter is a critical period for non-migratory birds and any protective shelter adds to their chances for survival. When all other food is blanketed with snow, tree and shrub seeds and fruits provide welcome food.

Certain kinds of shrubs and trees are better than others for wildlife. Low-branching evergreens are excellent. Other good species include Russian olive, buffaloberry, wild plum, honeysuckle, hawthorn, privet, chokecherry and flowering crab. Choose only those kinds which are best adapted to your climate and soil.

State game department officials, soil conservation service technicians, and others are available to help you plan your windbreak to make it better for wildlife.

Trees Are For . . . ?
by Michelle Turenne
Grade 8

Trees are the oldest living things people know of. They are very diverse and used for many, many things in this world. Trees are forever!

Do people know what trees provide for them? Some do, but many people don't realize it.

Well, trees are used in everyday work. There are many occupations in the tree field, such as lumberjacks, lumber mill workers and paper company employees. There are also many more.

Trees are first cut, then they are transported to mills either by some kind of waterway or by use of trucks. Second, in the mill the bark is stripped and used for different plywoods. When this process is done the main part of the tree is left, and sent to a different part of the mill where paper sheets are made. This paper is then used for many things, such as newspapers, magazines, notebook paper, typing paper, books, etc. Wood from trees is also used for making furniture and, most important, homes for shelter.

Trees can also be used for entertainment, such as having a tire chair hang from a branch. You could hide behind it or even climb it. Many people might just like trees because they add beauty to the world. Or maybe because in the summer if you sit under them they provide shade on hot days.

Trees provide food, too, such as citrus fruits which are mainly grown in orchards in the southern states. Berries, figs, apples and bananas grow on trees. Sap from different trees is also used for many things.

Going back in history a ways, the gums of such trees were used to produce frankincense and myrrh, which were very valuable resins. Medicines and dyes were also taken from trees, from the roots, stems and the bark. Early explorers depended on trees for almost everything — logs for homes, wood for their fires, bark for their dyes and drugs, fruits and berries for food, and Pine trees for their Christmas holidays.

Trees regulate water drainage which is important for the prevention of floods. The roots of the trees store most of the water.

A group of trees covering a large area, otherwise known as a forest, provides areas for recreation, camping, fishing, hunting and many homes for many, many animals and birds. Many trees today are killed by insects, diseases and man, which are causers of many forest fires.

People (man) shouldn't destroy the forests of today, because they are used for our needs and shelters of tomorrow!

Immigration Data Accuracy Is Questioned

Figures used in proposing the first ceiling on total U.S. immigration may be inaccurate by as much as 50 per cent because the government doesn't know how many legally admitted immigrants stay in this country, two University of Minnesota researchers contend.

Simpson-Mazzoli bill to combat illegal immigration, the first major overhaul of immigration law in 30 years, has already been approved by the Senate and is awaiting action by the full House. It would for the first time limit the total number of persons who can immigrate to the United States.

Under the proposed legislation, a maximum of 425,000 foreign-born persons could move to this country each year. But under present law 270,000 persons plus the immediate relatives of U.S. citizens can immigrate, making the actual ceiling almost unlimited.

Without knowing how many legal immigrants stay in the United States, how long they stay and how they fare economically and culturally, the government doesn't have a good basis for deciding how many persons to admit and from which countries they come, the researchers say.

Since 1957 the government has only estimated the number of persons (including citizens) who move away from the United States each year.

Sociologist Guillermina Jasso and economist Mark R. Rosenzweig, who recently published the only longitudinal study of a random sample of immigrants, found that those government figures may be underestimated by as much as 50 per cent.

"Common assumption in Washington is that the pre-1957 emigration rate of immigrants of one-third is an overestimate of current emigration," Jasso said. "But this study found that after eight years the rate is one-half."

Government's method of setting country ceilings disregards variations in emigration rates based on immigrants' country of origin, the researchers said. The findigs indicate that immigrants from certain countries are more likely to remain in the United States than are others. "Immigrants from China, Korea, Cuba, the Philippines and India have the lowest emigration rates, while those from this hemisphere, excluding Mexico and Canda, have the highest emigration rates."

"At most, only 15 per cent of persons from China who immigrated in 1971 had left the United States by 1979, while as much as 72 per cent of South American cohorts had left the United States by that time," they wrote. They also reported that legal immigrants from Canada and Mexico shared similar estimated emigration rates of 55.7 and 56.7 per cent, respectively.

Jasso and Rosenzweig reached their conclusions after following the progress of 3,758 of the 370,478 aliens granted permanent residence status in 1971. Their study relied on the government's alien address report program, which from 1951 to 1981 required annual registration of aliens in the United States. They also used information from naturalization records, mortality records and survey data.

Estimating the emigration rates by country of origin is necessary in order to assess how many immigrants to allow from particular countries, the researchers said. But government practices fail to consider what types of immigrants remain in the United States.

"Anything that you hear about how well Chinese do compared to Mexicans ignores emigration," Rosenzweig said. "If you were to operate on the assumption that the Mexicans who are successful in this country return to Mexico, but successful Chinese immigrants remain in this country, you get the idea that comparing the relative successes of those who remain in the country is misleading."

Jasso and Rosenzweig used two indicators of an immigrant's success in the United States: continued residence and naturalization.

Of the original 3,758 immigrants, 831 (22 per cent) had become naturalized citizens by the end of 1978 and another 956 (25 per cent) filed alien address reports in January 1979. Less than half of the original group was known to remain in the United States by early 1979.

Of the remaining half, some had died, some had failed to report their addresses and some had emigrated. Since government mortality figures are generally accurate, the researchers were able to make assumptions about rates of emigration and nonresponse.

Trucker Lingo Reviewed By Auto Council

Before your summer vacation by car, it might be fun to bone up on some truck lingo so you can converse with a driver over a cup of "hundred mile" (strong) coffee when you stop for food and rest or when using a CB radio.

Automotive Information council (AIC) lists a number of the more interesting expressions used by truckers and what they mean:

Bean Hauler — a driver transporting fruits and vegetables.

Coffee Pot — restaurant.

Goat and Shoat Man — a driver of livestock.

Kick the Donuts — check the tires.

Lay on Air — to apply brakes.

Milk Run — easy trip.

Pajama Wagon — a sleeper tractor.

Pedal to the Metal — to step on the gas.

Rags — worn tires.

Ride Shotgun — to ride on the right side of the cab.

Roll and Rest — stopping at regular intervals to sleep.

Set It Down — to stop quickly.

Sick Horse — a tractor in need of repairs.

Skins — tires.

Smoke Him — to pass another vehicle.

Tolling Down the Highway — drive a vehicle along at normal speeds.

— Truck Jockey — a truck driver.

AIC asks motorists to remember the vital role trucks and truckers play in our daily lives.

Trucks move almost all goods at least part of the way to their destinations and nearly 80 per cent of the country's fresh and frozen meat and fruits and vegetables are moved by trucks.

'U'M Study Explores Status Of Women

American's lawmakers are making public policy for a society that no longer exists when they ignore or overlook the changing economic role of women, a University of Minnesota researcher contends.

Despite the increasing numbers of women in the nation's work force, much of public policy still is based on the outdated "male-breadwinner-dependent-wife-and-children model," said Arvonne Fraser, a senior fellow at the Hubert H. Humphrey institute of public affairs.

Such a model — which overlooks the fact that nationally women now make up 43 per cent of all employed persons (up from 33 per cent in 1960) — "no longer fits our society, nor does it fit the diversity of women's lives," she said.

Changing status of women in the work force and in other areas of American economic life is summarized in "A Statistical Look at the Economic Status of Women in Minnesota and the United States," the first publication of the Humphrey institute's women, public policy and development project.

Fraser, who is project director, believes that working women and the implications of their participation in the labor force will create major public policy debates in the 1980s and 1990s.

But, she said, those debates will not be confined to one issue; they will involve a wide range of social, economic and employment policies.

"Pay equity and employment benefits such as social security, medical care and pensions are only the tip of the iceberg," she said. "Child care and child support are two other questions for which there are no easy or simple answers. And the economic problems of displaced homemakers and older women will also be an increasing concern."

"Our society has been changing rapidly over the last two decades," Fraser said, and the project's report reveals the extent of some of those changes.

More women are working: In Minnesota, women aged 16 to 64 account for more than 60 per cent of the labor force, Fraser said.

More than half the women in Minnesota with pre-school children and more than two-thirds of those with school age children are in the labor force, the report shows. In fact, Fraser said, Minnesota women have higher employment rates than the national average, although a lower percentage of Minnesota women work full time year-round.

The statistical publication also shows that more and more women are contributing to the family support or are supporting children alone. Increasingly, poor families in the state are headed by women. According to the 1980 census, nearly one-fourth of Minnesota households are headed by women; 47.5 per cent of those families with at least one child under six were below the poverty line.

Significant gap still exists, the publication also reports, between the earnings of Minnesota women and men. In 1982, women in the state earned 58.2 cents for every $1 earned by men. Nationally, figures showed that women earned less than men in 1981 in every vocational area. In 1980, the median income for full-time female workers with college degrees was less than the median income for male high school dropouts.

Status of older women in Minnesota also is examined in the publication. Between 1970 and 1980, the number of women 85 and older in Minnesota increased by 70 per cent, making the group the fastest growing age category in the state. Overall, the life expectancy for both men and women in Minnesota is higher than the national average.

Increasingly, Fraser said, women's organizations are shifting their attention to economic issues, in response to some of the trends shown in the report. And, she believes, as more and more women are "driven or drawn into the labor force, the debate over public policies affecting women and their families will escalate."

Copies of the report are available from the Humphrey Institute, 909 Social Science 267 19th Avenue S., University of Minnesotas, Minneapolis, MN 55455. The cost is $1, prepaid, for three copies. Bulk rates are available on request.

what is a Booster?

A booster is usually a dedicated, hard working Mom or Dad (often both) of a member of the school band or orchestra.

A Booster's work is all too often unpraised, unrecognized and unrewarded in terms of compensation for endless hours of work, countless telephone calls and sometime sleepless nights.

A band Booster is a truck driver (sometimes a van), a taxi driver, using the family car to chase down a lost piece of music or a music stand; a chaperon; a confidant and problem-solver who must listen to the seemingly endless problems related to the band and come up with solutions to those problems. A Booster serves on countless committes, but still takes on the really tough jobs that have to be done.

Most of a Booster's time is spent in fund raising activities.

Band directors look to their Booster organization to help raise the funds to finance that important trip to the state contest, to buy new uniforms, to feed literally hundreds of hungry band members, to keep that band director, to encourage younger children to join the band.

We at Larson Music understand and appreciate the important role Booster organizations play in keeping school music alive and well in our communities. We think it's about time someone stood up and shouted — THANKS BOOSTERS!

Communicative Disorders Are Handicapping

For one American out of ten the act of speaking or listening can present special problems. These people — nearly 23 million of them — suffer from "communicative disorders" — problems with speech or hearing.

Communicative disorders are the most common type of handicapping condition in this country. Some 15 million Americans suffer from some degree of hearing loss, over 11 million have speech and language problems, and about five million have both speech and hearing problems. Almost two million are deaf.

While these "invisible" handicaps can easily go unnoticed, their impact can be very serious — socially, psychologically, and economically. Hearing loss accounts for an estimated $1.25 billion in lost earning power annually. Losses attributable to speech and language problems have been estimated at $750 million.

Hearing loss is more common among the elderly, authorities say. About half of all persons with a hearing loss are over 65, and more than a fourth of all persons in that age group are affected. Loud noise can be a major cause of hearing loss, especially with repeated exposure over long periods of time, although a single exposure to a high intensity sound may also result in hearing loss. Sources of noise loud enough to cause problems can include rock music, lawn mowers, power tools, cap guns, factory machines, jet airplanes, and kitchen appliances.

Speech and language disorders include a more varied group of problems, like stuttering; aphasia — or loss of ability to speak — due to a stroke; and loss of the vocal cords to cancer.

Effect of a speech or hearing problem can be especially profound for a child, authorities note. A speech or hearing disorder can make it difficult to communicate with others, to learn, or to function socially. It can even lead to emotional problems. The hearing impaired child is likely to have trouble speaking, since children learn to talk by imitating others.

An estimated three out of every 100 American school children have impaired hearing. About a fourth of those Americans with speech and language problems are between the ages of five and 21, and half of the one million Americans who stutter are children.

Authorities emphasize that most people with speech or hearing disorders can be helped, whether through medical treatment, surgery, therapy, or the use of a hearing aid. It is also possible to detect a speech or hearing problem very early in life. In some cases, a hearing problem can be diagnosed before a child reaches three months of age. A speech problem will often become evident by the time a child is two and a half to three years old.

Nonetheless, these problems often go undiagnosed or untreated. Hearing disorders, in particular, often seem to be ignored — more than 11 million Americans have uncorrected hearing handicaps. Health authorities nationwide are making a special effort to encourage the diagnosis and treatment of communicative disorders right now, as they observe better speech and hearing month.

A number of options are available to people who know or suspect that they have speech or hearing problems. One possibility is to consult a physician — either your own doctor, or a specialist called an otolaryngologist, who deals with problems of the ear, nose and throat. Other professionals who can be of help include audiologists and speech pathologists, who are specially trained to evaluate hearing and speech problems.

Help may also be available from your local community health services agency or public health nursing service, or from a public school speech clinician. The choice will depend on your needs, and on what is available.

THIRD PLACE WINNER in the people's choice category Sunday at North Country Auto Showtime in Thief River Falls was Dale Johnson of Keewatin. He received his trophy from Stacey Sandberg, Miss Thief River Falls. Johnson's entry of a 1963 Ford Fairlane also won several other awards at the show held in the sports arena and curling club building at the Pennington county fairgrounds. Because of an error in recording by auto show officials, Johnson was incorrectly listed as second place winner in Monday's edition of the Times.

Prowlers Win Title At TRF Invitational Meet

Taking advantage of its lone home appearance of the 1983 season, the Lincoln high school golf team closed out its regular season schedule Tuesday with a championship performance in the annual Thief River Falls invitational golf meet on the Thief River Country Club course.

A stiff, cold wind didn't slow the Prowlers, who fashioned a five-man 400 for the day, five shots ahead of second place Fergus Falls, one of the favorites in the Region 8AA meet Tuesday at Little Falls.

Following the Otters' 405 was Bemidji at 406, Moorhead 410, Crookston 410, Bagley 453, East Grand Forks 459, Detroit Lakes 461, Clearbrook-Gonvick 471 and the Thief River Falls junior varsity 474.

There was a three-way first place tie in the medal standings as Jim Geatz and Bob Evans of Thief River Falls, along with Mark Lyczeski of Crookston came in at 76.

It was the third win in nine multiple-meet outings for the Prowlers, but their first victory since a title performance at Roseau May 7. They opened the season by winning the Bagley-Fosston invitational April 26.

Rest of the Prowlers' scores yesterday included Bob Geatz with a 78, Mark Gere 80, Eric Charlson 90 and Dan Upham 93.

For the Lincoln junior varsity, Dave Onkka shot an 89, Bob Breiland 91, Mike Sparby 93, Jim Reuter 94 and Jeff Rosetta 107.

Lincoln Track Team Has Strong Finish On Mon.

A strong season-ending finish Monday at the Roseau twilight invitational brought lots of satisfaction to Lincoln high school track coach Tim Olson.

East Grand Forks won it with 77 points, but the Prowlers were close behind with 65½ points, good for a second place tie with Crookston. Fisher had 54 points in the well-balanced nine-team field, followed by Marshall County Central 53, Tri-County 53, Climax 41, Red Lake Falls 34 and Hallock 34.

"We really ran well," pointed out Olson. "We really came on strong this year. I think we're where we should be at this time of the year. After getting blown out of the water at the start of the year, we've really improved."

Thief River Falls will take part in the 1983 North Half Region 8AA track meet Saturday at Moorhead beginning at 11 a.m. Top eight finishers in each event will move on to the Region 8AA meet Saturday, June 4, at Alexandria.

"I think a high percentage of those kids we take to sub-region will qualify for region," noted Olson.

Monday's meet featured another double by senior Lon Aune, who won the 1600-meter run in 4:36 and won the 3200-meter run in 10:00.24. The Prowers also won the sprint medley relay where Tim Kruse, Scott Fowler, Randy Swenson and Kevin Kezar ran a 3:50.76.

Prowlers Sweep Twinbill From Pirates 9-6, 12-0

Thief River Falls' offense had a productive afternoon Tuesday, pounding out 20 base hits and scoring 21 runs as the Prowlers over-powered Crookston 9-6 and 12-0 in a high school baseball doubleheader.

Winning coach Charlie Cornell described it as a "fun day" as the Prowlers improved their 1983 season record to 9-5 and ended a string of five straight losses to North Half Region 8AA opponents.

Thief River Falls closes out its regular season schedule today (Wednesday) with a 4 p.m. game against Middle River-Marshall County Central on the fairgrounds diamond.

Trailing 6-5 with two out in the top of the seventh, Thief River Falls erupted with a four-run outburst that produced a dramatic come-from-behind 9-6 first-game win over Crookston.

Crookston had snapped a 5-5 tie with a run in the bottom of the sixth when Tony Kuznik singled, and with two out, Derrick Bray came up with an RBI single.

It looked like the host Pirates would get by with a 6-5 win when the first two Prowlers were retired in the seventh. But back-to-back walks issued to Brian Johnston and Kerry Wollin, plus a single by Tim Bottem tied it. Rick Spong put Thief River Falls ahead 7-6 with an RBI single, and the Prowlers added insurance runs on an error on a ball hit by Gary Cornell and a bases-loaded walk given to Steve Wiskow.

Thief River Falls opened the game with a run in the first inning when lead-off batter Jim Hallamek reached third on a three-base error and scored on a ground-out by Johnston. That edge quickly disappeared, however, when two walks and an error in the bottom of the inning set up a grand slam home run by Crookston's Craig Stahlecker.

A pair of two-run innings in the third and sixth kept the Prowlers in the game. In the third, Johnston had an RBI double to the fence and Wollin added an RBI single. In the sixth, Johnston led off with a double, with Bottem and Cornell collecting run-scoring singles.

A six-run Thief River Falls second inning sparked the Prowlers to a 12-0 five-inning second game rout of the Pirates for the doubleheader sweep.

Thief River Falls scored twice in the first inning when Rick Spong had two-out, two-run bases-loaded double.

Big second inning featured five base hits, two walks and an error. Tim Bottem had a two-run single in there, with Jim Hallamek, Kerry Wollin and Gary Cornell also coming through with RBI singles. Hallamek had a 3-for-4 game at the plate, with Wollin and Kirk Jenson both getting two hits.

Todd Ortloff had to forgo an easy win on the mound when he developed a sore shoulder and left the game in the second inning.

MR-MCC Has 9-4 Record For Today's Game

Middle River-Marshall County Central cooperative high school baseball team, scheduled to be in Thief River Falls for a 4 p.m. game today (Wednesday), improved its record to 9-4 Monday with a 3-2 seventh inning victory over Lake of the Woods.

Coach Ron Rudd's ball club overcame a 2-1 deficit in the seventh when Alan Melvie and Dean Hjelle were both hit by pitches to start the inning and a bases-loaded walk issued to Brad Berg forced in the winning run to end it.

Freshman Tom Neumann had an RBI single to score Scottie Peterson, who had walked, in the second inning for the winners, who had a 3-2 base hit edge in the closely-played game. Lake of the Woods had two of the game's three errors.

Hjelle and Ted Thompson combined to strike out 13 Bears, with Thompson getting the win in relief as he pitched the final three innings. Jeff Solheim went the first six innings for the losers, giving way to Bill Stay in the seventh.

After a pair of tough 3-2 losses to Roseau and Greenbush last week, Middle River-Marshall County Central now owns three straight wins, beating Tri-County 16-6 and Strandquist 18-3 to finish last week's busy schedule.

LIFTING THE ball onto the green, Lincoln high school senior Bob Evans watched as his chip shot headed for the pin on the No. 3 green during Tuesday's Thief River Falls invitational high school golf meet. It was the final outing of the 1983 regular season schedule for the Prowlers, who will compete in the Region 8AA meet Tuesday at Little Falls.

Prowlers Win At Ada By 3-1

Brian Johnston and Kerry Wollin hit back-to-back solo home runs over the center field fence in the top of the sixth inning Monday as Thief River Falls edged Ada 3-1 in high school baseball action.

"It was a real good ball game," reported Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell as the two teams played to a 1-1 draw before the one-two Johnston-Wollin punch with one out in the sixth.

Host Ada scored in the first inning, but then was blanked the final six frames by the combined five-hit pitching of Tim Bottem and Ryan Drees, a sophomore making his first mound appearance and getting the win.

Thief River Falls scored in the third when Jeff Milender reached base on an error, stole second and scored on a two-out line drive single by Todd Ortloff.

With the win the Prowlers climbed to 5-0 against Class A competition this spring, with a season finale today (Wednesday) against Middle-River-Marshall County Central on the fairgrounds diamond at 4 p.m.

Green Wave Wins Tennis Title By Beating Pirates

Just the way it was expected to turn out, East Grand Forks and Crookston met in the 1983 Section 8 Sub-Section 4 high school team tennis tournament finals Monday afternoon in Thief River Falls, and just as expected the Green Wave-Pirates confrontation was decided at No. 2 singles where Del Nelson outlasted Jeff Claassen 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 in an two-hour struggle that gave East Grand Forks an emotional 3-2 victory.

East Grand Forks and Crookston received first round byes in the six-team affair while host Thief River Falls eliminated Mahnomen 5-0 and Bemidji edged Waubun 3-2 in the quarterfinals. In the semifinals, the No. 1-seeded Green Wave ousted Bemidji 3-2 and the No. 2-seeded Pirates sidelined Thief River Falls by the same 3-2 margin.

That set up the interesting finale. East Grand Forks had its dreams of an unbeaten regular season and shattered in the final match of the year last Thursday by Crookston, 3-2. And the pivotal points came at No. 2 singles where Claassen beat Nelson for the first time, 7-6, 6-2.

Everything else was in — East Grand Forks' expected wins at No. 1 and No. 3 singles, along with Crookston's equally anticipated victories at No. 1 and No. 2 doubles — to leave the title in the balance Tuesday when Nelson, a sophomore, and Claassen, a junior, squared off in their third set.

Nelson had breezed to a 6-2 first-set win and Claassen matched that with an equally impressive 6-3 second-set decision for the climatic finish.

After losing the first game in the third set, Nelson had the edge the rest of the way, opening up a 3-games-to-one advantage. Claassen came back to blank Nelson in the fifth game to make it 3-2 before the two equally-matched combatants took turns breaking service for a 4-3 Nelson edge. He closed it out in less dramatic fashion with easy wins in games eight and nine.

"It came down to that final match, and both Crookston and us knew it would," acknowledged East Grand Forks coach Terry Paukert. "Nelson has had a real good season — he's only lost two matches all year, but he's never been in that type of situation. We knew it would come down to that, though, and he came through."

Nelson also figured that's the type of situation he was going to face. "We tried to go over it, and figure where we had to win," he explained. "We wanted everybody to win, of course, but we knew we had to win certain matches. I knew it was tied 2-2 when we were playing, but I tried not to think about it."

The Nelson-Jeff Claassen dual lasted twice as long as the No. 1 singles encounter as unbeaten East Grand Forks senior Phil Burke quickly disposed of Jay Claassen 6-2, 6-0.

"It's like running a marathon," said Nelson after the match. "You just don't have anything left when it's all over. I was getting tired. Everytime I started to run it felt like I had needles in my knees. But there are a lot of seniors (5) on the team who were counting on me."

Last week's Crookston victory over East Grand Forks played heavily on Paukert's mind, he admitted. "It put a lot of pressure on us; a lot of sleepless nights. We're disappointed not having an unbeaten record, but today is the one that counted."

East Grand Forks' win moves the Green Wave into the Section 8 tournament, featuring the four sub-section winners, Tuesday at Brainerd, with a state tournament berth on the line.

Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson was disappointed in the Prowlers' quick exit from team competition.

Crookston received straight-set singles wins from the two Claassens, then cemented the 3-2 semifinal victory over the Prowlers with a surprisingly easy 6-4, 6-4 triumph by sophomore Will Schnabel and freshman Brent Meisa at No. 1 doubles over Thief River Falls seniors Chad Broadwell and Steve Bendickson. The results were reversed just last week.

Olson did praise the efforts by Ken Kompelien, a winner at No. 3 singles, along with Bob Vanyo and Thane Mundell, winners at No. 2 doubles. "Those three kids really improved this year. They had real good efforts."

Individual portion of the tournament, featuring two singles and two doubles entries from each school, was scheduled to be played today (Wednesday) on the Thief River Falls courts, with the top two finishers in both singles and doubles advancing to Section 8 play.

FRESHMAN PLAYING NO. 1 singles for Thief River Falls, Al Erickson hit a backhand against Crookston's Jay Claassen in the semifinals of the Section 8 Sub-Section 4 high school team tennis tournament played here Monday. Claassen won 6-0, 6-2 as the Pirates eliminated the Prowlers 3-2.

LHS Girls Compete At Roseau Monday

Host Roseau was the winner Monday in the girls portion of the Roseau twilight invitational high school track meet.

The Rams collected 148 points, followed by Crookston with 125, Thief River Falls 55, Kennedy 47, Hallock 37, Lake of the Woods 18, Marshall County Central 17, McIntosh-Winger 10, Red Lake Falls 8, Warroad 0 and Tri-County 0.

"We were not at our peak," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, whose squad line-up wasn't at full strength. "We didn't score as many points as we would have liked."

Top Thief River Falls performances came from the second place 1600-meter relay team of Cindy Kruta, Georgia Howard, Stacie Kruta and Hildegunn Nyland, a group that dropped five seconds off its previous best time; third place Paula Wilkens, who took ten seconds off her 1600-meter run time; and second place Stacie Kruta, who made continued improvement in the 200-meter hurdles.

Thief River Falls will compete Saturday in the North Half Region 8AA track meet at Moorhead. "The competition is going to be tough," acknowledged Schafer. "The competition is just so much greater this year than it was last year."

The program will operate under two divisions: Babe Ruth division for 14-15-year-olds born on or after August 1, 1967 and before August 1, 1968; and the Prep League for 13-year-olds born on or after August 1, 1969 and before August 1, 1970.

First practice sessions for the Babe Ruth teams will be held Wednesday, June 1, with the 14-15-year-olds practicing at 10 a.m. and the 13-year-olds practicing at 1 p.m. at the fairgrounds diamond.

Over 120 swimmers participated in the program, sponsored by the Thief River Falls Swimming and Diving Club, coached by Jody Dallmann. New Rules Are In Effect For Moose Drawing Wildlife officials at the Department of Natural Resources are telling those who want to hunt moose in Minnesota about several new special regulations in effect for this year's season.

Most important is a law passed by the 1982 legislature that says anyone who previously obtained a Minnesota moose hunting license may not have one for the following five seasons. This year, any application that lists any previous moose license holders, other than for 1971, will be rejected from the drawing.

Another new rule requires each applicant to provide his or her driver's license number, or in lieu of that a Minnesota ID card number. Since moose licenses are restricted to persons 16 years of age or older, this is not expected to be a problem for any large number of people.

There are other regulations that have not changed over the years but are still the source of questions, say wildlife officials. All of the provisions are listed in the moose hunt information booklet provided for this season, but for emphasis the DNR points out the following:

+ Applications for permits must be made in parties of four.

+ To qualify for the special "landowner-tenant" drawing for the zones in northwestern Minnesota, each person applying must either own or live on and farm at least 160 acres of agricultural land.

+ There is no way to determine in which zone a person has the best chance of obtaining a permit until after all the applications are in. The chances for winning that applied for previous seasons do not hold with the increased zones and permits available this year.

+ Best available clue to relative moose numbers among zones is provided by the number of permits being given in relation to the size of the area.

+ Applications and information booklets are available from license agents, county auditor's offices and DNR headquarters around the state.

+ Deadline to apply for the drawing is June 16. Only Minnesota residents are eligible.

MSHSL Spring State Tournament Schedule Starts Monday, June 7

During the period Monday, June 7, until Friday, June 17, the Minnesota State High School League (MSHSL) will conduct spring state tournaments in five sports for the young men and women throughout the state that qualify for them, reports Larry Larson, MSHSL director of information and publications.

State champion teams will be named and individuals will compete for the coveted gold medals during this 12-day period. The following is a capsule report on each of the various state tournaments.

Golf

First to start state tournament play are the boys and girls who qualify for state golf tournaments, which for the eighth time will have competition in two classes — AA and A — for boys, and for a fifth time for girls.

State Class A golf tournament for boys and girls will take place at a site that was utilized for the first time a year ago — the St. Cloud Country Club. Eighteen holes will be played on Monday, June 6, followed by another 18 on Tuesday, June 7. Play begins Monday at noon and commences at 8 a.m. on Tuesday.

Boys and girls in the larger Minnesota high schools will participate in the state Class AA golf tournament, which is scheduled for Majestic Oaks golf course in Ham Lake on Wednesday, June 8, and Thursday, June 9. Play on June 8 will begin at noon with an 8 a.m. start slated for June 9. Like in Class A, 36 holes will be contested.

In Class A, last year's state individual champion John Brellenthin, Blake, has graduated, but two underclassmen who finished among the top five a year ago are expected to qualify again this year. They include senior Tim Smith, Redwood Falls, who was tied for third, seven strokes behind the medalist, and junior Tim Hegna, Bird Island-Lake Lillian, who finished fifth, eight strokes off the winning pace.

Class A girls individual honors is expected to be another close finish between the same two girls who finished 1-2 a year ago: medalist Julie Hennessy, Lewiston, now a senior, and runner-up Jody Wilson, a senior from Staples, who only two strokes apart in the 1982 tournament.

Defending team champions are Blake (boys) and LeSueur (girls).

In Class AA, Duluth East senior Kyle Anderson, 1982 medalist, will try and become only the seventh boy to win back-to-back titles, if he qualifies for the state tournament. Since the first tournament was held in 1928, previous double winners included Louis Lick, St. Paul Central (1940-41); Bob Braff, Duluth Central (1947-48); Rolf Deming, Minneapolis Roosevelt (1956-57); Joe Hasbrouck, Albany (1969-70); Brad Cook, Northfield (1972-73); and Chris Perry, Edina West (1978-79); who in 1980 became the first boy to win three straight state championships.

Anderson's biggest competition this year could come from two golfers who finished among the top 10 in last year's Class A tournament. They are Steve Schiffler, a senior from Albany, and Kirk Vanstrum, a junior from Mahtomedi. They finished second and seventh, respectively, in the 1982 Class A event.

Anderson fashioned rounds of 74 and 72 at Majestic Oaks last year, while Schiffler's runner-up scores were 77 and 73 last year in St. Cloud. Anderson was the long underclassman in Class AA last year to finish among the top 13.

In the Class AA girls field, medalist by 12 strokes in 1982 Sheila Peterson, Milaca has graduated, and so has runner-up Terri Carneal, Hopkins. Lisa Peterson, Virginia, who finished third, is rated as a serious threat to win the gold medal in 1983. Now a senior, Peterson is expected to get stern competition from a host of other seniors and juniors who last year finished in the top 10. They include seniors Shannon Sweeney, Elk River; Ann Vogel, Mankato West; Dee Forsberg, Farmington; and juniors Lynda Otness, Farmington; Beth Schissel, Park Rapids; and Sally Doherty, Apple Valley. All hope to once again qualify for the state tournament this season.

Defending team champions in Class AA are Albert Lea (boys) and Milaca (girls).

There are 258 varsity boys teams and 208 girls teams competing in interscholastic golf throughout Minnesota this spring.

Tennis

This year's 55th annual state high school tennis tournament returns to a one-class format, a format used from 1929 through 1978. Last four years the AA-A format existed, only to give way to one class as a result of a decline in the number of schools in Class A sponsoring tennis. Only 49 schools were registered with the MSHSL in boys tennis this spring from among A classification schools.

In all, some 154 high schools are sponsoring boys tennis this season. The program involves about 3,000 participants.

In 1983 state tournament will take place Wednesday through Saturday, June 8-11, at the 98th Street Tennis Club in Bloomington. Team, singles and doubles titles will be contested.

Team portion is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, June 8 and 9.

Team quarterfinal matches begin at noon and 2 p.m. on Wednesday. Semifinal and championship matches will be held on Thursday at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. respectively.

Singles and doubles play is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, June 10 and 11. Singles action on Friday starts at 10 a.m. with the first round and continues at 2 p.m. with round two. Saturday's play is devoted to semifinal and championship matches with starting times being 9 a.m. and noon, respectively.

Doubles competition has the same starting time format as singles play with action taking place on various courts.

In all there will be 24 singles participants) (top three players from eight separate regions), and 24 doubles teams (top three teams from eight separate regions).

One of last year's two singles champions is expected to win his way back to this year's tournament as is one of the two doubles team winners of 1982. The other champs from 1982 have either graduated or a portion of the doubles duos have been lost to graduation.

One singles champion hoping to win again is Hopkins senior Darryl Laddin. Laddin defeated seventh-grader David Wheaton, Minnetonka, in the championship last year, 6-2, 6-3. Wheaton again will be a tough challenge for Laddin. Earlier this spring Wheaton beat Laddin, 6-2, 7-5 in the finals of the Edina-Metro tournament.

In doubles, senior Steve Beckendorf and sophomore Myles Anderson, Blue Earth, won last year's Class A championship as underclassmen and this year hope to repeat. Only three doubles teams have captured back-to-back titles since the tournament's inception in 1929.

Track and Field

Largest single sporting event in terms of state tournament participants takes place annually at the state boys and girls Class AA and Class A track and field championships as about 1,000 boys and girls representing more than 250 schools converge at one site — Bloomington Lincoln high school.

Scheduled for Friday and Saturday, June 10 and 11, the 1983 event will be the 61st for boys and 12th for girls.

Activity on Friday will be devoted to preliminaries in all but one running event. Some field event finals will also take place on Friday, but most of the individual state champions will be named after competing on Saturday. Saturday's action begins with field events at 11 a.m. Finals in the running events for both classes AA and A start at 1 p.m.

Class AA portion of Friday's preliminaries will begin at noon, while the Class A division has a 5:30 p.m. start that day.

Minneapolis Central won last year's Class AA boys title, but will be unable to repeat as that school no longer exists. Class A boys title trophy was captured by Breckenridge in 1982. In the girls division, Anoka in Class AA and Rochester Lourdes in Class A, both two-time defending champions, hope to become the first schools since Moorhead (1973-75) to win three straight state championships in girls track and field.

A number of outstanding individual performers from the 1982 state meet are expected to gain berths once again this year. One standout performer from last year who did not graduate was Bloomington Lincoln star Jennifer Bell, now a senior at Bloomington Kennedy with the closing of Lincoln high school. Bell won three events last year in Class AA — 100, 200 and 400 meter races. Her time in the 100 meters was an all-time girls meet record (:12.11).

A boy that scintillated last year as a junior and likely will be back this year is Von Shepard, St. Paul Central all-around athlete who broke a record in the long jump that had been in the books since 1941. Shepard's record-setting jump measured 24-9¼.

Softball

Seventh annual MSHSL state girls fast pitch softball tournaments will also take place during the week of June 5.

Scheduled for Tuesday and Wednesday, June 7 and 8, Class AA, and Thursday and Friday, June 9 and 10, Class A, this year's event will be held again at two sites — Dred Scott Fields in Bloomington (AA) and Whitney Fields in St. Cloud (A).

Tuesday's AA play will be devoted to quarterfinal and semifinal action with the championship game slated for Wednesday at 1 p.m. Quarterfinal and semifinal games start at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., respectively.

Thursday's Class A play has a similar format with quarterfinal and semifinal games being played at noon and 2 p.m., respectively. Class A championship contest will be held on Friday beginning at 1 p.m.

Eight region champions will advance to both the Class AA and Class A state tournaments.

State tournament team pairings in Class AA are as follows: Upper bracket — Region 1AA vs. Region 2AA and Region 3AA vs. Region 8AA; Lower bracket — Region 4AA vs. Region 7AA and Region 5AA vs. Region 6AA.

In Class A, the state pairings look like this: Upper bracket — Region 1A vs. Region 8A and Region 2A vs. Region 7A; Lower bracket — Region 3A vs. Region 6A and Region 4A vs. Region 5A.

Defending champions are Henry Sibley in Class AA and Moose Lake in Class A.

More than 5,000 girls representing 242 high schools are participating in girls fast pitch softball this spring.

Baseball

Last of the five spring sports to name state champions is the sport of baseball.

Now in its 37th year as an activity of the MSHSL, baseball for an eighth year will have its tournament conducted in two classes — Class AA and Class A.

Class AA event is first during the week of June 12. On Tuesday and Wednesday, June 14 and 15, the tourney will be conducted at a new facility — the St. Paul Municipal Stadium (located on Snelling and Kasota, just across from old Midway Stadium).

Quarterfinal games will commence at 10 a.m. and run through 9 p.m. on Tuesday. Semifinal action starts at 10 a.m. Wednesday, followed by the championship game that evening at 7 p.m.

The format is the same in terms of games and times for the Class A tournament, which will return to St. Cloud's Municipal Stadium on Thursday, June 16, and Friday, June 17.

State tournament team pairings in Class AA are as follows: Uper bracket — Region 4AA vs. Region 6AA and Region 3AA vs. Region 7AA; Lower bracket — Region 2AA vs. Region, 8AA and Region 1AA vs. Region 5AA.

In Class A, the parings are as follows: Upper bracket — Region 1A vs. Region 8A and Region 2A vs. Region 7A; Lower bracket — Region 4A vs. Region 5A and Region 3A vs. Region 6A.

Defending champions include Cretin, winners the past two years in Class AA, and Sauk Centre in Class A.

More than 11,000 youngsters representing 362 high schools are participating in the interscholastic baseball program this spring season.

Tournament Attendance

Attendance at the five spring sports state tournaments is again expected to exceed 20,000 persons.

Past three years the state track and field meet has surpassed state baseball tournaments for most persons attending state meets. Last year the state track and field meet drew 9,719 spectators, while the baseball events attracted 8,401 fans. Girls softball, meanwhile had a paid count of 3,482. There is no admission charge for golf and boys tennis tournaments.

STRONG WIND blowing across the Thief River Country Club course straightened out the flag as Lincoln high school junior Jim Geatz watched his putt roll on the No. 2 green during Tuesday's Thief River Falls invitational high school golf meet.

Open House Is Slated June 5 For State Parks

Visitors to Hayes Lake state park, as well as all Minnesota state parks, will get in free, on Sunday, June 5. One day each year is designated as "Open House Day" and the usual requirement for a motor vehicle entrance permit is waived.

1983 marks the 10th anniversary of the park. Since its formal dedication in July 1973, many improvements have been made. Now thousands of visitors use the park as a summer as well as winter retreat.

Hayes Lake state park is located off State Highway 89, nine miles east of Wannaska. Park hours are from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

DNR NEWS

DNR Permits Required

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has reminded shoreland owners and contractors that a DNR permit is usually required before changes can be made to protected lake, wetland or watercourse.

Officials noted that the construction season is here and many new shoreland owners may not be aware of state water laws and regulations.

Most activities or projects involving the placement of fill or a structure in a lake, wetland or watercourse will require a permit from the DNR. Typical projects requiring a permit are: excavation of a lake bed or along a shoreline, placement of fill or rip rap, removing ice ridges, changes in stream channels, dams, breakwaters, permanent docks, harbors and marinas.

Officials cautioned anyone planning to work in or near protected waters to play it safe and check with the DNR first to avoid violating state laws.

More information can be obtained from the DNR regional offices in Bemidji, Grand Rapids, Brainerd, New Ulm, Rochester or St. Paul; or from the DNR Division of Waters, Third Floor Space Center Building, 444 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Wildflowers Blooming

Department of Natural Resources says those ski trails that were being used not many days ago when they were deep with snow are great places for hiking and viewing spring wildflowers.

Milt Krona, DNR division of state parks, was in Sakatah state park near Waterville recently and reported that the flowers were in full bloom.

Flowers in the parks farther north will be blooming over the next few weeks, said Krona.

"The ski trails and snowmobile trails provide excellent paths for those who like to hike in the woods enjoying the flowers, trees and wildlife," he noted.

There are 796 species of birds in America. Only 74 are hunted. All benefit from sportsman-financed conservation programs.

cancer answers

"Cancer Answers" is a weekly column sponsored by the Red River Valley Medical society, the Red River Valley unit of the American Cancer society and the Thief River Falls Times. Questions may be mailed to the editor, Thief River Falls Times. All questions will be answered, and those of a general interest will be published in "Cancer Answers."

Dear Readers:

The Cancer Information Service (CIS) has a new toll-free number that is easy to remember: 1-800-4-CANCER. This single nationwide number replaces 23 local CIS numbers that served different parts of the country.

Callers using the new number will automatically be connected to the local CIS office for their areas, according to Debra Zaderaka, CIS supervisor for Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

"Callers in our three-state service area will reach the CIS office in Minneapolis between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays as they always have," explains Zaderaka. "At night and on weekends they will continue to be referred to the CIS office operated by the National Cancer Institute.

"The beauty of the new set up is that cancer patients — and those concerned about cancer patients — can now reach the nearest local CIS office by dialing the same number from anywhere in the country. We hope '1-800-4-CANCER' will help patients and their families remember to call CIS with their cancer concerns no matter where they happen to be."

CIS was established in Minnesota in 1976. In 1980 the service was extended to North and South Dakota. Since the service began, over 30,000 callers in the three-state area have used CIS to help answer their cancer questions.

The goal of CIS is to provide people immediate access to the latest information on cancer. Each of 21 local CIS offices maintains a directory of community services available to cancer patients and their families. The offices are also contact points for the latest information about cancer research. In addition to providing assistance over the telephone, CIS counselors often mail free printed materials on a variety of cancer topics, such as specific types of cancer or treatments.

The CIS office in Minneapolis is part of a nationwide network affiliated with major cancer centers and funded by the National Cancer Institute. Included in this network are 21 CIS offices serving 63 per cent of the nation's population. The rest of the nation is served by the CIS office operated at the National Cancer Institute.

The Minnesota CIS, located in the state American Cancer Society headquarters, is operated by the Mayo Comprehensive Cancer Center in cooperation with the other members of the Minnesota Cancer Council. These members include the American Cancer Society, Minnesota Division, Inc., Minnesota Dental Association, Minnesota Department of Health, Minnesota Licensed Practical Nurses Association, Minnesota Medical Association, Minnesota Nurses Association, Minnesota State Pharmaceutical Association, Minnesota Tumor Registrars Association and the University of Minnesota Health Services Center.

Q: My husband's brother has cancer of the colon. Is my husband likely to get it too? What precautions should he take?

A: A person whose parent, brother or sister has had colon cancer does have a greater risk of developing this disease than someone with no family history of colon cancer. That doesn't mean that your husband is "likely to get it," only that his risk is greater than average.

When colon cancer is found and treated early before it has spread, it can be surgically removed and cured in 85-90 per cent of cases. That's why regular colon examinations are important for your husband and for everyone over 40. Your husband should tell his doctor about his brother's cancer. The doctor will recommend a checkup schedule.

There are some warning signs or symptoms that can mean a person may have colon cancer. These symptoms can also be caused by other conditions or diseases, but they should never be ignored. These are the signs your husband should be aware of.

+ Bleeding from the rectom or blood in the bowel movement.
+ Loss of weight when there's been no change in eating habits or activity.
+ Diarrhea or constipation that lasts for more than two weeks.
+ Frequent abdominal discomfort, cramping or pain.
+ Loss of appetite or nausea that lasts for more than two weeks.

Q: I've read that men should examine themselves for signs of cancer of the testicles. What are the signs. How do you do the exam? If a man is treated for testicular cancer, does he become impotent?

A: It is important that men examine themselves for changes in their testicles. It's especially important for young men from high school age to 45. Testicular cancer is one of the few types of cancer more common in young people than in older people.

Testicular self-examination is a simple procedure that should be done once a month. The best time is after a warm shower or bath when the scrotal skin is most relaxed. Each testicle should be examined gently with the fingers of both hands. Place the index and middle fingers on the under side of the testicle and the thumb on the top. Gently roll the testicle between thumb and fingers feeling for a small, firm lump.

Other changes or abnormalities to be alert for include:

+ change in size or shape
+ unusual warmth
+ a heavy sensation.

If a man finds any of these changes, he should be examined by his family physician or a urologist. Although these symptoms frequently are caused by conditions other than cancer, early detection and treatment are very important for controlling testicular cancer.

Caught and treated right away, this type of cancer is curable in 95 per cent of cases.

If cancer is found in a testicle, it must be surgically removed. Some lymph nodes in the groin may also be removed to determine if the cancer has spread. In some cases radiation therapy and-or chemotherapy are necessary to control the cancer.

The loss of one testicle does not make a man impotent.

The Cancer Information Service has free brochures that illustrate and explain testicular self-examination. You can call the CIS toll-free number, 1-800-4-CANCER.

CA Helps Unite Warring Voices In Agriculture

Communicating for agriculture (CA) "is in a good position to be helpful" in bringing agriculture's "warring voices together," according to farmer U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland.

Bergland, who was the featured speaker at CA's annual meeting in Fergus Falls recently, talked about the factionalism that exists among many farm groups and noted that it hindered him when he was in charge of the department of agriculture. He said he feels that nonpartisan CA could "serve as a catalyst" between the various factions.

Now president of Farmland World Trade, whose activities include the promotion of barter trade arrangements with underdeveloped nations, Bergland predicted that further "expansion of American trade is going to occur with populations that are poor. . . who can't pay their bills (in dollars)."

Former U.S. congressman from Minnesota's seventh district advocated an "overhaul of U.S. policy" and the relaxation of a "tendency toward protectionism" to better allow for the barter of U.S. food for other types of commodities from poorer nations.

In a news conference immediately prior to the meeting, Bergland rated the performance of current Secretary of Agriculture John Block with a "C-plus" but gave a "C-minus" to the total Reagan administration, which he said, "doesn't know what it wants to do in agricultural policy making."

Bergland said he hopes for good participation in the administration's payment-in-king (PIK) program, through which participating farmers are scheduled to get surplus grains from government stocks in proportion to the number of acres they idle. However, he said he feels PIK is "a crude, awkward, cumbersome way of dealing with a surplus supply situation, and recommended instead a "permanent type" of farm program with long-term assignments of diverted crop land, preferably tied to conservation considerations.

Former Iowa Governor Robert D. Ray, also a guest at the meeting, noted that he worked for many rural concerns during his 14-year administration. He cited greater opportunities for beginning farmers, estate tax reform and conservation programs. Ray is now chief executive officer of Life Investors, Inc.

Bergland, a Democrat, and Ray, a Republican, were both made honorary members of Communicating for Agriculture at the meeting.

CA's highest honor, its sparkplus award, was presented to retiring board directors member Harold Johnson of Battle Lake, who served on the panel since the national rural advocacy organization's regional beginnings 11 years ago. Johnson received a standing ovation.

Reelected to the Board were Milt Smedsrud of Dalton, chairman; N. Rollie Lake of Underwood, president; and Sylvester Nietfeld of Sauk Centre; and Frank Lachowitzer of Perham.

CA members at the meeting approved a new resolution authorizing the organization to become active in a variety of areas which affect family farms, ranches and small businesses. CA's legislative activities are governed by its member-approved resolutions.

Smedsrud noted that the CA membership growth in 1982 was 32 per cent over that in 1981, and he is optimistic regarding growth in 1983.

Lake reviewed CA's legislative activities and noted that 1982 was the organization's most active year to date. "Im' sure the year 1983 will be even more successful in CA's work on behalf of rural America," he said.

Petroleum Poisoning Warning Given

Minnesota poison control system (MPCS) has noticed an increase this spring in poisonings involving petroleum distillates. Some of these products commonly around the home include: gasoline, charcoal lighter fluid, cleaning fluid, automotive products, turpentine, kerosene and lamp oil.

"The main reason incidence of the posionings with petroleum products increases in the spring is that they are more commonly used at this time," said Dr. Sammuel Hall, MPCS co-medical director. "Because these products are liquids, they are usually swallowed and can cause damage to mouth and throat. The most life-threatening damage, however, is done to the lungs."

What happens as a child or adult (adult posionings frequently result when a person is trying to siphin a petroleum product) swallows the product is they begin to cough and choke. This allows the product to enter the lungs causing a severe chemical pneumonitis or pneumonia. This type of pneumonia is very difficult to treat because it is not caused by bacteria, like other forms of pneumonia, and cannot be treated effectively with antibiotic medication. As little as one or two drops of a petroleum product can be fatal if it gets into the lungs.

"A petroleum product in the lungs spreads as a drop of gasoline spreads on water," Hall explained. "The lungs are moist and the petroleum product spreads over the tissue of the lungs preventing the transer of oxygen to blood. The problem with these types of products is that the damage is done to the lungs and is not a result of absorption of the product in the stomach."

Typical signs or symptoms with petroleum ingestion may include: coughing, choking, gagging, burning of the mouth and respiratory arrest. Some more severe symptoms, which may be delayed four to eight hours, develop as the lungs become more irritated.

To decrease the chances of this type of poisoning occurring MPCS staff recommed: never transfer a petroleum product from the original container to another container such as soft drink bottle, cup or bowl; make sure the child resistant cover is replaced properly on the container each time the product is used; do not siphon gasoline by mouth; keep all products out of children's reach and locked up; and if you are interrupted while using a product, take it or the child with you.

MPCS recommends the following first aid measures if someone has swallowed a petroleum product: Do not induce vomiting; give a small amount of water or milk unless the patient is unconscious, having convulsions or cannot swallow. Then call MPCS immediately for further instructions. The number to call is 1-800-222-1222.

MPCS is the state-designated posion information center based at St. Paul-Ramsey medical center and its telephones are staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week with trained poison information pharmacists.

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

A Consumer Service from the Office of the Minnesota Attorney General

"Earn $200-$250 a week just addressing and stuffing envelopes. Part-time. Work in the comfort and privacy of your own home. No experience necessary. To receive application send a self-addressed, stamped envelope . . ."

The ad above is selling what's known as a work-at-home plan. While it may offer a legitimate opportunity, many times it does not. Often it's just another scheme to separate you from your money. It's a scam the attorney general's office sees often.

Work-at-home schemes operate in various ways. A common type proceeds as follows: A consumer sees an ad like the one above and sends for an application. He or she receives promotional material requesting that $15 be sent in to obtain the details of the plan. (The amount of money requested varies.) When the consumer sends in the money, what comes back is usually information about how to run an ad similar to the promoter's initial ad. In other words, the consumer is supposed to place ads offering information on how to make money at home, thus starting the cycle over again.

To participate in some plans the consumer is often asked to not only spend money to get the details of the plan but to shell out additional money for advertisements, envelopes, postage and other items. The consumer rarely earns the income promised at the outset.

In another common work-at-home scheme, the consumer is offered the opportunity to do assembly work at home. He or she is required to buy instructions and materials for making or assembling various items. The completed product is then sold back to the company or to the public. But many times, after paying the fee, the consumer finds that there is no adequate market for the items.

Companies that offer to buy back a finished product may agree to do so only if the product "meets their standards." As part of this scheme, the company may decide to reject anything that is sent back to them. The consumer is then stuck with the unforeseen burden of selling the products himself.

Here are some pointers to remember when considering any work-at-home plan:

—Do not pay money for any work-at-home plan without first finding out how the plan operates. Find out what obligations and responsibilities are expected of you and of the company.

—Research the company's reputation by asking the Better Business Bureau for a reliability report. Ask the company for the names and addresses of people who have done business with them, so that you can get their impressions of the company.

—If the work-at-home plan involves assembly work, check with reliable sources to determine whether there is an adequate market for the products.

—Remember you may be in violation of federal postal laws if you choose to perpetuate a fraudulent work-at-home scheme.

—If the program sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

If you have further questions about work-at-home plans, contact the Consumer Division, Office of the Attorney General, 2nd Floor, Ford Building, 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

BEAMING BRIGHTLY, Susie Tieman held up a $300 check from the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women, which she accepted on behalf of the Falls Day Activity center for the mentally retarded. Making the presentation was Sherry Sorenson, right, who was in charge of ticket sales for the annual charity ball which was used to raise the money. DAC administrator Evan Armstrong, left, thanked the Jaycee Women for their contribution, noting that the assistance came at a time when the center was struggling to keep the doors open. Also present to accept the check was Roy Olson, who is a participant at the DAC, along with Susie.

Rural Bankers Report Ease In Farm Finances

Although farmers in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and northwestern Wisconsin continued to experience serious financial difficulties in the first quarter of 1983, their problems began to ease somewhat and may ease further next quarter, according to rural bankers surveyed in late March by the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis.

Problems that have beset area farmers for over three years persisted in the first quarter. Most of the bankers responding to the survey reported that first-quarter net earnings of farmers in their bank's trading area were at or below levels of a year ago. A majority of the bankers have reported farm earnings at or below year-earlier levels for the last three and one-half years, so farm earnings in the first quarter of 1983 were being compared with already low earnings.

These low earnings contributed to area farmers' continued difficulties repaying their debts. Over 60 per cent of the bankers said that demand for debt extension and refinancing was above normal during the first quarter. Almost as many reported that farmers were repaying their debts at a slower-than-normal rate. This marks the sixth consecutive quarter in which about 60 per cent or more of the bankers have reported that farmers in their areas were experiencing these debt repayment problems.

In addition, area farmers continued to have financial problems severe enough to cause more farmers than normal to go out of business or partially liquidate their capital assets, according to a supplement to the survey of rural bankers. The percentages of farmers experiencing such severe problems in the six months from October 1982 through May 1983 were small but, nonetheless, about double their normally even smaller levels.

Although the bankers said that serious problems persisted for area farmers, they also reported signs of stabilization and even improvement in the first quarter. About one-half reported that farm earnings in their areas had not changed from their levels of a year ago. Although no change in already low earnings is hardly a sign of prosperity, the report is considerably less negative than the fourth quarter of 1982, when four-fifths of the bankers said that farm earnings in their areas were below their year-earlier levels. Not only did most of the bankers indicate that farm earnings have ceased to fall, but one-sixth (the highest proportion in two years) reported that farm earnings in their areas were higher than in the same quarter last year, and only one-third (the smallest proportion in three years) said that farm earnings in their areas were below their levels of a year ago.

Bankers attributed these stable and improved earnings to higher prices for farm products and to favorable weather conditions. Good prices for hogs and feeder cattle, combined with the mild winter that kept operating costs low and enabled livestock to gain weight efficiently, helped hog and cattle farmers to stablize their earnings. Recent increases in grain prices kept earnings for many grain producers from falling below their year-earlier levels.

Additional good news for many area farmers was that interest rates, although still high by historical standards were down somewhat at the end of the first quarter. Interest rates on short-term ag loans in March 1983 had dropped three-fourths of a percentage point from December 1982 and were three percentage points lower than in Marcy 1982.

According to the bankers, area farmers' financial problems will not disappear in the second quarter of 1983, but they should continue to ease.

Majority of the bankers expect that second-quarter farm earnings in their areas will remain near the low levels of last year's second-quarter farm earnings. A slim majority also expect that interest rates will not change in the second quarter. At the same time, many bankers are more optimistic about both interest rates and farm earnings. Almost as many bankers believe that interest rates will continue to fall as expect them to remain unchanged. Furthermore, for the first time in three years, more bankers (23 per cent) expect farm earnings to be above year-earlier levels than expect them to be below year-earlier levels (21 per cent). One reason some bankers expect second-quarter farm earnings to be above their year-earlier levels is the U.S. department of agriculture's payment-in-kind (PIK) program, which several bankers said would boost farm earnings in the second quarter by raising grain prices and lowering farm operating expenses.

These improved, or at least stable, farm earnings should help the financial situation of area farmers, according to the bankers. They expect farmers' debt repayment problems to continue but not to be as pervasive as in previous quarters. If the bankers are correct, debt refinancing and extension will be at or below normal levels at almost half the banks for the first time in one and one-half years. Only 23 per cent of the bankers, the smallest percentage in over two years, expect a further decline in farmers' ability to repay their debts.

FISHING TIPS FROM THE PROS

Getting Ready

Getting ready before your trip will give you more time on water and less time on land making repairs you could have done weeks before. Here are some suggestions from experts Bill Dance and Roland Martin, members of the DuPont "Stren" Pro Fishing Team, that may help you get the most from your next fishing trip:

- Check all your equipment. Make a mental check list of what needs repairs.
- Check your reel. Oil it now if you didn't at the close of last season.
- Check your rod. Look for nicks and scrapes—weak spots you might want to mend.
- Check the rod's line guides for wear and rough spots that can nick the line. Rub a cotton swab around the inside of each guide. If it snags, it's time to replace the guide.
- To test if a line is fresh, wrap a length of it around one hand, pull off more and wrap around the other hand. Then give it a strong tug. If it breaks, you should respool. "Only try this test with lighter lines—under 10-pound test.

Some other tips:

- Organize your tackle box, and make sure baits and lures are in good shape. Don't forget your license if you are going fresh water fishing.

Fuel Mileage Check On Car Is Good Idea

Do you know how to determine how many miles per gallon your car receives? To some, that may sound like an unsophisticated question with a simple answer, but for others it still remains a mystery.

A staff member of the Automotive Information council (AIC) asked that question of eight motorists at a gasoline station and four did not know the answer. One said: "I used to know, but now that gas prices are down I don't worry about it."

The answer is very simple. Divide the gallons pumped to fill the tank into the number of miles driven since the tank was filled before. For example, if the car went 230 miles and the fill-up took 10 gallons, the average for that fill was 23 miles per gallon.

AIC points out that a car owner should keep track of at least three fills to get a proper average and the fill-ups should be with the same grade of gasoline and under comparable driving situations. The council points out that mileage can vary greatly by driving conditions and by the weather. The colder it is, the lower the mileage will be, the same as with a lot of stop-and-go driving.

Even though fuel prices are down, the federal gasoline tax went up five cents a gallon April 1, which will negate some of the recent pump-price reductions. Therefore, AIC says, motorists should renew their concern for fuel savings.

Today's cars obtain well over 50 per cent better fuel economy than those of 10 years ago and that will continue to improve, but that is no reason to become wasteful.

Drive with common sense to achieve best results. For example, avoid jack-rabbit starts and screeching stops and try to keep a steady speed. And don't forget to keep the car properly maintained.

AIC suggests that you keep a record of your fuel consumption. It takes only a few seconds and will make you more aware of proper driving and care procedures, thereby reducing your fuel bill.

Breast Cancer Curable Says Radiologist

Breast cancer; the very words strike terror into the hearts and minds of women. "However," says Dr. Philip Strax, "although seven out of 100 women will be found to have breast cancer, early detection and modern treatments have drastically reduced the danger of death or radical breast surgery."

If early detection is the key to safe recovery, ignorance is the main reason for the death of many women, he added.

As the noted radiologist says, "Women, because they are frightened by those dreaded words, are tempted to sweep their anxieties under the rug. They cling to the hope that the abnormalities they have noted will disappear of their own accord."

Dr. Philip Strax, medical director of the Guttman institute and director of radiology at the LaGuardia hospital, has written a book he hopes will educate women and their families about breast cancer and induce them to abandon any fatalistic or passive attitude. All proceeds of the book "Early Detection — Breast Cancer Is Curable" go to the American Cancer society.

The book is being made available by the national non-profit Consumer Education Research center for those sending $5 (includes postage) to CERC, Box 336C, South Orange, NJ 07079.

Dr. Strax says that everyone should know these facts about breast cancer:

+ Every seven minutes breast cancer is diagnosed in the United States and every fifteen minutes a woman dies of the disease.

+ One of every four cancers in women is in the breast.

+ Breast Cancer is the most common cause of death in women aged 40 to 45.

+ The chances of developing the disease increase throughout a woman's life and the rate of development is about ten times greater at 70 than at 40.

+ We have really made no progress in this disease since 1930, so far as saving lives. Even today one-third of patients with breast cancer present themselves at their physician's office too late for effective surgery. Of the remainder, only one-third are alive and well ten years later. In other words, despite all our surgical, radiotherapeutic and chemotherapeutic techniques, we are probably curing only about 25 per cent of women who present themselves to their physicians with breast cancer — and all because the victims are diagnosed too late for effective treatment.

On the brighter side Dr. Strax notes, three quarters of breast operations show benign (non-cancerous) conditions.

It is important for a woman to know the symptoms. Over 90 per cent of breast cancer is detected by the woman herself. This self-realization sets into motion a chain of examinations which determine whether or not a limited operation to remove tissue, samples for testing (biopsy) is indicated. Early detection of malignancy can mean the difference between life and death.

There is a pattern of risk based on heredity and other factors that increase the possibility of having the disease. It is important that women know and evaluate their risk.

Almost all women have breast symptoms at one time or another to cause anxiety and—justify—a visit—to—a physician. Such examinations are important and should be sought. The reassurance of a normal examination is often vital to the physical and mental well-being of a woman.

Many lumps, the radiologist says, are merely large cysts —harmless collections of fluid which can be drained with a thin needle.

Another lump that frightens women needlessly is the Fibroadenoma, a smooth regular lump which contains normal breast elements, surrounded by an envelope. It is extremely rare that they become malignant. These are usually removed in a simple procedure to confirm the diagnosis and eliminate the patient's worry.

A nipple discharge, Papilloma, is worrisome. However, only rarely is the usual non-bloody discharge associated with cancer. Usually it is caused by an irritation within the ducts.

There are other breast symptoms that are not a cause for worry. But, of course, others are. That is why every woman must be vigilant and treat every abnormality as serious.

Advance Fee Scheme Bilks Unwary People

Each year farmers face a critical need for operating capital, and in recent years high interest rates at conventional sources have caused farmers to look toward more unconventional means of financing in the hope of securing a lower interest loan.

This search for lower interest money has cost some farmers thousands of dollars through an irreputable practice known as the "advanced fee" scheme, according to Michael A. Hatch, chairman of the Minnesota commerce commission.

Through the "advanced fee' scheme, a sales representative will contact a farmer, offering to arrange a loan through unconventional lenders at a relatively low rate of interest. A brochure may attest to the company's success in obtaining the loans. In order to arrange the loan, however, the sales representative requires that the farmer pay an advanced fee — generally one per cent to two per cent of the total amount of the loan. He may even promise to return the fee if an attractive loan is not secured.

Unfortunately, what appears to be an affordable approach for the farmer often times results in his loss. After receiving the fee, the company supposedly packaging the loan contacts the farmer and informs him that he was turned down for the loan. On occasion, the company will not even bother to further contact the farmer after receiving the fee.

In a difficult economy, farmers are not the only ones susceptible. Small business is also an easy target, Hatch said. This month several people were indicted in Omaha, NB for participation in such a scheme which resulted in losses of over $1,000,000.

People approached with such loan arrangements, Hatch added, should follow these guidelines:

+ Get the full name and address of the company, and check its operating history.

+ Ask the sales representative for the names of local clients for whom the company has successfully secured loans. Talk to these individuals and determine the source of the loans and rate of interest.

+ Obtain a written list of people or institutions which have provided loans through this company in this manner. Contact them to verify that they have, indeed, participated in this type of program with this company.

+ Offer to put the advanced fee money in an escrow account pending the closing on the loan. This is required by Minnesota regulations.

+ If the transaction involves a lien or mortgage on your property, check to see that the sales representative has a real estate license, which is required by law.

+ Check with your local financial institution to determine if the company has a valid credit history.

If you have any questions or comments regarding an "Advanced Fee" scheme or related matter, contact the Department of Securities and Real Estate, 500 Metro Square Building, St. Paul, MN. 55101.

Way Out World

Here's one of those amazing pictures taken by our astronauts on the moon.

That's our Earth. Way out there! Seeing the world in such perspective, how small our problems seem—but how great our need for God's caring and concern.

This is the exciting message of religion: That the God who created a vast universe is concerned for every soul. That we can know Him in the outreach of our faith and serve Him in the bond of love. On this planet whirling through space we draw closer to Him and to one another as we gather each week in God's House.

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

During the final week of the 1983 session, our attention has been focused on the conference committees, made up of Senate and House members, that are working out differences in the bills passed by the two legislative bodies.

As many as 70 conference committees have been meeting in recent days, and it is often difficult to keep track of the latest developments. But, this is a particularly critical time to pay close attention, since the committees draft the final language that will become state law.

I have been watching closely the work of several conference committees, especially those working on the education aids bill and the tax bill, and I have made my views known to the committee members.

The education aids bill contains two major provisions that will affect the school districts of our area: a revenue recapture proposal and a tiered system that would replace several existing levies and aids.

I have been lobbying the conference committee members to keep the Senate language on the revenue recapture provision, since this will be more beneficial to the districts in our area like Stephen, Argyle, Kennedy, Alvarado and Humboldt that are off the state formula. I also have urged committee members to adjust the tiered system in a way that will have the least impact on our area.

The tax conference committee is working on the critical issues of property taxes and local government aids. The final bill surely will make changes in the present system. I am doing everything in my power to see that adequate property tax relief and local government aids are maintained.

I am serving on another conference committee that is writing the final language for the mortgage moratorium bill. Our goal is to provide more time for people facing foreclosure on their farms or homes to make up their delinquent payments, while at the same time ensuring that we don't jeopardize the credit available to all Minnesotans.

I proposed a compromise between the Senate and House bills that would extend the time for reinstating a delinquent home mortgage from approximately 117 days to approximately 371 days, while providing an additional six months for farm mortgage reinstatement.

The grain buyers' bill which I authored also will go to a conference committee. The House version provides for a state-wide farmers' referendum to be held next year on a proposal to create a trust fund. If approved, the fund would receive revenues from farmers for every bushel of grain that they sell, and the fund would be used to pay grain producers who would otherwise lose money when grain buyers go bankrupt.

The Senate bill does not contain the referendum and trust fund, and the conference committee will reach a compromise on this important issue.

Next week, I will give you an updated report on legislative action during the last days of the session. If you have questions or comments, please write to me at my office (306 Capitol Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155), or phone, (612) 296-8660.

LAWN LORE

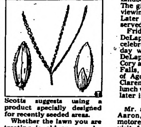
Crabgrass Control

Crabgrass. Who needs it? Not you.

Control this weedy grass now—before it controls your lawn. Crabgrass seeds have been dormant over the winter—just waiting to "pop" when temperatures climb to the 80's. Apply a crabgrass preventer in early spring—before weed seeds germinate—and crabgrass won't stand a chance, say the lawn experts at O.M. Scott & Sons.

Scotts offers two tips to insure excellent results when using a crabgrass preventer. First, use an accurate drop-type spreader and be sure to overlap wheel tracks slightly to avoid streaks of crabgrass in missed areas. Second, once the product is applied, do not rake the treated area. Disturbing the herbicide "barrier" will give crabgrass the break it needs to grow.

When used on an established lawn, crabgrass preventer will do no harm to the existing grass. If you are planting a new lawn or re-seeding a thin lawn,



Scotts suggests using a product specially designed for recently seeded areas.

Whether the lawn you are treating is old or new, be sure to make the most of your time and money by choosing a crabgrass preventer that also gives the grass a complete fertilization. Your lawn will notice—and so will the neighbors.

If you have a question about your lawn, you can talk with an expert at Scotts simply by dialing their toll-free number: (800) 543-TURF. In Ohio, the number is (800) 762-4010. There is no charge or obligation for this service.

Remembering Memorial Day

The human brain has a capacity to help people erase unpleasant things, and that is a blessing in many circumstances. Tragedies in life may be recalled but they are often dimmed with the passage of time.

So it is that the thoughts of war and the personal tragedies that go with it have been dimmed for many people, and it takes the reminder of an event like Memorial Day to bring the unpleasant past into focus again.

We commend the local posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars for their annual efforts to continue the series of Memorial Day programs in Thief River Falls. Often the participants give up the normal pursuits which a holiday weekend would provide in order to jog the memories of those who need reminding of the sacrifices made to keep our nation free and great.

Memorial Day serves a dual role in that it is a time of sadness in recalling the loss of life and limb and health of people at war, yet a time of celebration that our country remains a standing tribute to the cause of freedom everywhere. How fortunate we are, those of us who are citizens and residents of these United States of America, that we are privileged to live here.

The Legion and VFW program will be conducted Monday at 11 a.m. at Friendship Gardens just off Oakland Park road, or in the city auditorium if weather is unsuitable for the outdoor program. If you are in the city or the area, plan to attend. Your heart will get a boost in national pride from the experience.

A Priceless Resource

Situated on a good-sized river with a reasonably constant flow, Thief River Falls residents don't often give a great deal of thought to the value of an available water resource. Farmers and rural homeowners who are almost assured of getting a well nearly anywhere in the area have a similar lack of concern.

But a recent editorial in the Grand Rapids Herald-Review points out that water and how to obtain it are major sources of conversation in many western and southwestern states. Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada and Utah are among the states where urban development is booming. Much of it, however, depends on a water supply which experts predict may run dry. The Herald-Review editorial continues as follows:

Water development tops the agenda for Wyoming. The state earmarked $114,000,000 last year for water development. It constructed one new irrigation project and plans to spend $6,700,000 on two more projects in 1983. "What Wyoming wants and needs in the 1980's is jobs and quality of life," a spokesman says. "Water is the thread which binds these together."

Visitors to Sun City and Scotsdale in Arizona, for example, admire the palm trees and lush green lawns which seem to indicate a plentiful water supply. In truth, the Southwest receives less than 20 inches of rain a year. It depends on the Ogallala Aquifer, an underground water reservoir that reaches from the Southwest to the Great Plains. It is becoming depleted. Studies say that the water for most of that are will last only through the end of this century.

Water is taken from the aquifer each year at a rate equal to twice the flow of the Colorado River. Experts predict that irrigated acreage in the high plains will decline by half within 20 years. Farming which requires irrigation will be a thing of the past in Kansas by the end of the century, they believe.

Questions are finally being raised about the federal funds pouring into the West and Southwest for water projects. Fifty billion dollars in federal money has gone to those areas since 1956 while less than ten billion went to water projects in the Midwest and East where some city water systems are nearing collapse.

A National Wildlife Federation study points out that Nebraska is seeking 400 million dollars for a project on the Niobrara river to provide irrigation for 77,000 acres. At that price, it will provde a subsidy of more than $4,000 an acre or about $1,200,000 for each of the 200 farms it will benefit. It would water 30,000 acres to grow corn — yet Nebraska plowed-under 400,000 acres of corn last year because of over-production.

Even more alarming proposals for spending federal funds on water come from the North American Water and Power Alliance (NAWAPA). It suggests making northern rivers literally run backwards to the South, by piping the Mackenzie, the Yukon, the Coppermine and other major rivers to water cornfields and other crops all the way to the Mexican border.

Another bright idea is to pump water from the Great Lakes to the desert states.

Minnesotans can revel in an abundance of clear water. But we must recognize its importance and make sure that the supply is not abused. Our lakes and streams are a priceless resource and should be treated that way.

Compensation Is Proper

Following editorial is from the Kittson County Enterprise at Hallock and was written by Tim Berg:

A Senate-House conference committee on natural resources will come to terms, in the next few weeks, with differing versions of a bill to eliminate commercial fishing of game fish on Lake of the Woods.

The Senate and House bills, both passed by wide margins in their respective chambers, differ in one major respect — that of compensating commercial license holders for the loss of their business.

The Senate version, sponsored by Sen. Collin Peterson, DFL-Detroit Lakes, would use part of the imminent surcharge on sport fishing licenses to buy out existing commercial licenses; the House bill, sponsored by Rep. John Sarna, DFL-Minneapolis, would not include the buy-out provision, but would establish a declining quota system that would eventually phase out the industry.

In the meantime, the University of Minnesota is conducting a three-year study of the impact of commercial fishing on the lake to determine if commercial netting helps or hinders the walleye population.

Commercial fishermen contend that the netting of roughfish actually benefits the game fish populations and that allowing them to include walleye in their annual bag limit makes the business financially feasible. The DNR, the netters claim, will not be able to clear out the rough fish as efficiently as they, and the cost would be prohibitive.

Sportsmens groups, on the other hand, maintain that netting of game fish is depleting the lake of walleye, especially the larger ones, and is hurting the resort industry, not to mention Minnesota's reputation as a fishing paradise. The pressure on the resource, they claim, is simply too great to allow commercial fishing to continue while a greater number of resort owners and sports anglers are having a tough go at it.

The DNR's defense of the commercial netters has been rejected and the legislature, for better or worse, has accepted the argument of the sport fishermen. The question that remains to be resolved in the dispute is now basically the matter of compensation.

Sen. Peterson's bill, with respect to the buyout provision, is the proper way to go.

Legislating a way of life out of existence may be cheaper, but is certainly not fair; even the most outspoken opponents of commercial fishing agree that compensation should be provided.

Not so Rep. Jim Tunheim, DFL-Kennedy, whose district includes Lake of the Woods — he believes, apparently, that commercial fishermen can make a living by catching nothing but rough fish and that phasing them out of business gradually will eliminate the necessity of fair compensation by the state.

Imagine the uproar if farming should suddenly become politically unpopular and the legislature, in response, put a premium on commercial development. An 80-acre shopping center would certainly generate more business and profits than 80-acres of wheat, but no one would think of throwing a farmer off his land without just compensation.

Because commercial fishermen don't have any political clout, doesn't mean they don't have any rights.

Tunheim and his colleagues should put themselves in the shoes of the fisherman before cutting their nets.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A pessimist describes ambition as working your tail off at a job you don't enjoy, in a place you don't like, trying to save money you can't keep, in order to spend your declining years in idle boredom at a place you can't stand.

Environmentalist Lecturer: "And what have any of you here done to save our nation's timber?"

Voice from the Hall: "I shot a woodpecker once."

Sage advice: "To keep a marriage brimming with love in the loving cup, whenever you're wrong admit it, whenever you're right, shut up."

IT'S A FACT!

There is strong evidence from the government that if natural gas were freed from all federal price controls some prices would actually decline. The federal price regulations steadily increase natural gas prices and have created disorder in the gas market. If they were removed, prices could be adjusted downward to meet market conditions.

Many people concerned about high prices are asking their legislators where they stand on the issue of gas deregulation. They are writing to the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515 and the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Plummer

Mrs. Walter C. Peterson, Plummer, 465-3415

The Plummer senior citizens were honored Wednesday afternoon to hear the three winners of the "Grandparent Essay" contest held from the sixth grade students of the Plummer school. Judging was by Dorothy Pederson, Inga Linder and Bunny DuChamp. These three winners will be sent in to the county and later to compete state wide in the contest.

First place winner of $5:
My Grandfather

All my other grandparents have died, so I don't think I could ever imagine how much I appreciate and love him. I remember when I was little he made me a little wheelborrow. He is a blacksmith, so it was a nice one. I still have it. It is a white one and after all these years I still like it, of course, I don't use it any more but I still like having it.

My grandfather goes to Florida every winter. Every spring I look forward to his coming back. I like getting his letters and postcards, but I like the phone calls the most of all.

Some Sundays we go to his house after church and have chicken dinner. I love eating his chicken, he makes it better than anyone I know.

I love my grandfather he has given me so much in my life. But out of everything he has given me is his ever ending love is what I love about him.

Jimmy Skjerven, son of
Mr. and Mrs. Roger Skjerven

Second place Winner of $3:
My Grandparents

I love to go to my grandparents house because they always give me candy and it always smells like grandma has been baking. My grandparents always kinda spoilt us but I thought was what they were supposed to do. My grandparents live in Plummer, so if I can't find a ride home from a basketball game, they will let me stay overnight at their house. My grandparents really know how to be grandparents. It's like they went to school just to learn how to be grandparents. But I bet it's because they have about 17 grandchildren. I can always count on them to help me out whenever I need it. So I wrote a poem about them.

My Grandparents
My grandparents are one of a kind.
It's hard to believe they are really mine.
If I have fears
They wipe my tears.
If I cry, they wipe my eye.
They're the best grandparents in the whole world.

Vicki Walter, daughter of
Mr. and Mrs. Ray Walter

Third place winner of $2:
Grandparents

My grandfather and grandmother are very special to me because they're always being nice to me and I know there will never be grandparents like them ever again. I love my grandparents because they have given me so much and they give me a chance to learn new things. My grandfather taught me how to drive tractors and other machinery and he taught me how to fix things. My grandmother taught me how to make jelly and other stuff. My grandpa always tells me if it weren't for me he would not be farming because I do all the work on the farm.

My grandpa got himself a three wheeler and he says he got it for his old age, but I know he got it for us, because he loves us.

Another thing they give me a chance to make money and learn new things. I have one more thing to say, I love them very much.

Senior Citizen News

In February the Newfolden senior citizens were contacted by the Minnesota Board of Aging of St. Paul about an essay contest. Subject of this contest was "My Grandparents". Sixth graders of Newfolden school were the participants. They all did very well, said our judges Mrs. Frances Cook and Mrs. Elaine Roering, both former teachers. First prize essay was written by Kari Lokstad, 12 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Lokstad and her essay, "My Great-Grandma" was first place and will now be entered in state competition in July.

Second prize winner was written by Taren Stennes and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Stennes. She entitled her essay, "My Grandparents".

Third prize winner was Denae Bengtson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bengtson, with her essay "My Grandparents".

Those three girls were invited to the Newfolden meal center on Wednesday evening, May 18, and entertained us by reading their essays. The girls were each presented with a check and were treated to nectar, cake and ice cream.

We want to thank the sixth graders and their teachers for making this such an interesting contest. Good luck, Kari as your essay is entered in state competition.

Mrs. Helmer Lind, reporter

Following are the essays the three girls wrote:

"My Great-Grandma"

My great-grandma's name is Ollie. She is eighty-nine and a half years old. I love her very much. She is a very strong lady because her husband died and her son, Alan died when he was young. She loves all of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren. She prays and thinks about them all day long. She can't remember much or see much now so she doesn't remember who you are when you come over. She still sends cards on birthdays and Christmas anyway.

She likes it when someone comes over. Sometimes I think she feels useless and alone.

On her 88th birthday we gave her a big party with singing and poems, readings and food. She was so happy I thought she was going to cry. I'm glad she didn't because I would probably have cried, too.

She could win the world with her warm smile. She tells me stories about her youth. She shows me pictures of her, her parents, her kids and her husband.

She has been in and out of hospitals many times and has come back healthy each time.

There are some things my grandma can't do, like cut her nails, cook, clean or even make her bed, but I love her just the same.

I pray for her health at night and sometimes in the morning before anything else.

Last year she came to my brother's birthday party and my sister's party. She had a lot of fun even though she slept on my bed for awhile. She told me it was soft. I'm glad it was because my grandma deserves the best.

—by Kari Lokstad

"My Grandparents"

My grandma was born in West Valley, Minnesota and my grandpa was born in Shelly, Minnesota. I love going to my grandparents' house on Christmas Eve. You should see all of the food, potatoes, corn, bread, you name it, it's there. After dinner Grandma brings the homemade ice cream and we feast on that. My grandma is a real good cook.

My grandpa helps my grandma around the house because she has arthritis.

They're so nice to me. When I go over to their house, Grandma gives me candy. But you know, I have to say no once in awhile. My grandparents tell me about when they were little and how things have changed since then, like the space shuttle and how computers have changed everything and how popular they are now-adays. My grandparents are living in Strandquist, Minnesota. Their names are Mrs. Adeline Stennes and Mr. Gilman Stennes. I hope I'm like them in years to come.

—by Taren Stennes

"My Grandparents"

My grandparents are very nice. Their names are Grandma and Grandpa Sather. They tell me things they did when they were kids. Everytime I go to their house they give my candy, cookies, cake and much more.

Grandma has a clean house. Anytime it's messy she'll clean it right up. My mom and her sister fixed up their house, so now it has new carpet, wallpaper, cupboards, counter and flooring in the kitchen and bathroom. They remodeled some rooms. The carpet in the front room is really soft. She has a new soft couch in there, too, and it's really nice. Grandma is married to William Sather and they make a good couple.

My grandpa is also nice. I remember one time when I was little he took me into town and bought me a color book and some crayons! He bought some of his favorite cookies (fig newtons). He always bought ice cream.

I remember they had a piano and I always used to play it. Grandpa used to go to town all the time. I have a picture of him with me sitting in his lap on my second birthday. He died in 1978 on Sunday morning.

—by Denae Bengtson

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Dahl of St. Paul are spending a week with parents, the Ole Farstads. During the day Clifford spent time out on the farm.

INVESTMENT ALERT

Michael A. Hatch, Commissioner
Minnesota Department of Commerce

GEMSTONE INVESTMENT PROGRAMS

During the past decade, many novel investment programs have been offered to the public. Most of these programs appear to contain three common elements:

1. The program is offered as an alternative to the normal investment securities, stocks, notes and bonds.
2. The program is offered as a "hedge against inflation".
3. The dealer offering the program usually transacts all business by mail or telephone

One such investment vehicle which has surfaced in recent years is the sale of gemstones as an investment.

Gemstones grew in popularity as an investment for various reasons. People felt more comfortable investing money in hard assets like gold, rare gems, antiques or real estate rather than just paper. During a period in the 1970's, diamonds were a popular and profitable investment.

Gemstones are generally categorized as one of three types: precious, semi-precious or rare. Rare gemstones are usually sold for investment. The investment potential of a gem is determined by the availability of the stone, its quality, and its marketability. Aside from diamonds, rubies, and sapphires, the promoter will offer little known but exotic gems for sale to investors. These gemstones are represented as being very rare and of high quality, with names as rubellite, spinel, demantoid or andalusite.

These gems can be purchased on a one time basis or an installment basis where the investor contributes a fixed amount each month and in return receives a gem selected by the promoter.

All novel or unique investments plans are not illegal or fraudulent. Fraudulent programs are often characterized by:

1. Misrepresentation regarding the availability of the gem;
2. Exaggerated values;
3. Misrepresentation relative to the alleged demand for the gems;
4. Misrepresentation regarding the potential for appreciation and profit;
5. Misrepresentation of the alleged discount being offered to the investor;
6. Alleged guarantees against loss.

A gemstone may be truthfully represented as rare or of high quality, but that doesn't necessarily mean that the stone is of any particular value. A promoter's representations regarding the alleged value of gemstones may be highly exaggerated to make the investment appear more attractive to the potential investor.

The following are steps an investor can take to prevent a poor investment in rare gems:

- Research the area. In any investment you should know something about the subject before risking your money.
- Make sure the dealer is reputable. Is the company licensed with the State? How long have they been in business? Do they answer your questions fully and provide background information on the investment?
- Is there an established market for the gemstones? What are its uses and will there be a demand for that particular stone in the future? Just because the stone is pretty dosen't mean that it is valuable. You should demand the right to have the stone appraised by an independent source.
- Call the Securities and Real Estate Division of the Department of Commerce to determine if the investment program is registered with the State or is exempt from registration. The division will also be able to tell you if the company or promoters have been the subject of disciplinary action in the past.

The knowledgeable investor who uses common sense and a degree of caution can usually avoid an unfortunate and costly investment mistake. Anytime you have questions or doubts about an investment, see a qualified professional for some objective advice. It may mean the difference between becoming a happy investor or a miserable victim.

Academic Cuts Considered By 'U'M Regents

Progress report on academic planning and program priorities at the University of Minnesota was presented to the board of regents May 12 and 13.

Preliminary plans were presented from nine colleges on the Twin Cities campus, from the Morris and Crookston campuses and from the school of medicine at Duluth. Academic vice president Kenneth Keller explained that these 12 plans are the ones on which substantial agreement has been reached between the collegiate units and the central administration.

Plans from some major units, including the Twin Cities campus college of liberal arts and institute of technology and the Duluth and Waseca campuses, are still being negotiated and will be presented to the regents in June.

Some of the Twin Cities campus changes, outlined in the plans that were presented are as follows:

— Reducing the entiring size in the school of dentistry from 135 to 104 for the fall of 1984 and not filling five vacant faculty positions;

— Eliminating the undergraduate major in dance and the undergraduate major and graduate program in school health in the college of education;

— Reducing student numbers in the two baccalaureate degree programs in the general college and phasing out the legal assistant certificate program; and — Reducing the state funding for the James Ford Bell museum of natural history and asking the museum to seek private support.

Physical education major on the Morris campus is also targeted for elimination.

Proposal to cut the class size in dentistry is based on strong national evidence of an oversupply of dentists and a significant decline in the number of applicants, health sciences vice president Neal Vanselow told the regents.

No dollar amounts have yet been assigned to any of the proposed cuts. A budget plan, incorporating some of the cuts, will be presented to the board for information in June and action in July.

Many of the proposed changes represent long-range plans that will not lead to any immediate financial savings. In some cases, programs and positions have been designated for cuts, but the positions are held by tenured faculty members.

Tenured faculty members in programs slated for elimination or reduction will be offered early retirements or buy-outs, but the savings will depend on how many of these faculty members choose to accept the offers. "The whole thrust of this is voluntary," Keller said. In any case, the savings would not be immediate because the terms of a buy-out might, for example, be that a faculty member's salary would be paid for two years.

In addition to identifying programs and positions for cuts, some of the collegiate plans propose other ways of saving state money. The college of biological sciences will encourage faculty members to move from 12-month to 9-month appointments and find their own support for the summer, and to use some portion of their research grants to pay part of their salaries.

College of education is proposing that its summer courses be "inloaded," which means that summer teaching would become part of a faculty member's regular load. A faculty member would still teach three quarters out of four, but one of the three might be the summer. At present, faculty members who teach in the summer do so in addition to teaching for the whole academic year and receive additional pay.

Although the academic program priorities are intended to set a direction for the university, the extent of the retrenchment are intended to set a direction for appropriation. The Minnesota House and Senate have each passed their own version of an appropriation bill, and a difference of almost $16 million will have to be resolved in conference committee. The biggest difference is that the House bill calls for faculty and staff salary increases of five per cent a year and the Senate bill calls for increases of only three per cent a year.

Harry Sieben, speaker of the House, came to the regents' meeting to preside at a swearing-in ceremony for newly elected regent Wally Hilke and re-elected regents David Lebedoff, Charles McGuiggan and Wenda Moore.

YOUR GARDEN

When the danger of frost is past, it is time to clear the garden site of stones and debris. A good test of the soil's "readiness" is to mold a handful of the soil into a ball. If the ball isn't sticky but crumbles readily when pressed with the thumb, it is ready to be worked. Otherwise, be patient; plants will not grow in soggy or frozen soil.

Both milk and egg cartons are useful for starting seeds indoors. Fill them with a moistened, lightweight potting soil mix before planting the seeds according to package directions. Then place them on windowsills that get plenty of sunlight. Finally, cover them with a clear plastic wrap, such as GLAD Wrap, to speed germination. The plastic holds moisture in the soil and air surrounding the sprouting seeds.

Any garden should be located in a place where it will receive adequate sunlight. Vegetables that need at least six hours of full sunlight per day are tomatoes, peppers, green beans, eggplant, squashes and cucumbers.

Job Service Mini-Offices Open In June

Minnesota Job Service office at Thief River Falls will again be sponsoring mini-employment offices, staffed by local students, from Thursday, June 2 until about Friday, August 5. Offices will be located in Red Lake Falls, Warren, Hallock, Warroad, Roseau, Greenbush and Thief River Falls.

This is the seventh summer these offices have been in operation. The primary purpose of these centers is to assist youths age 14 to 21 who are seeking full-time or part-time summer employment. Assistance is sought each summer in soliciting job orders from local merchants, as well as private households or farmers. The cooperation of the employer community in each location is essential in making these offices a success. Service is free to both job seekers and employers.

Following area students have been hired to work at these sites: Janet Schindler at Ecksteins in the Peppermint Square at Red Lake Falls; Ann Pederson and Patti O'Keefe at the Marshall county courthouse in Warren; Kimbel Westerson at city hall in Hallock; Kathy Markovich at Warroad high school; Denise Dallum and Dale Carlson at the city auditorium in Roseau; Jason Branden at Greenbush high school and Leah Peres at the Job Service office in Thief River Falls.

Warroad, Roseau and Greenbush offices will be supervised by Dick Staydohar, an instructor at Warroad high school. Red Lake Falls, Warren, Hallock and Thief River Falls offices will be supervised by Jeff Gustafson of the Thief River Falls Job Service office.

Any questions concerning the operation of these offices may be directed to Jeff Gustafson at (218) 681-1100 at the Job Service office in Thief River Falls.

Gas Leaks Are Object Of ICG Survey In TRF

Inter-City Gas Corporation will be conducting a service line leak survey in Thief River Falls from May 31 through June 23 in the interest of public safety, according to Paul Lane, district superintendent.

Noting that the company has over 40 miles of underground pipe carrying natural gas within the city, and about 330 miles of lines throughout its Minnesota operations, he said the inspections are routinely done every five years. Lane stated that two college students, Dianne Little and Paula Medich, had been hired through the company's Cloquet office to conduct the inspection.

He said that residents could expect to see two young women with an electronic gas detection device walking through yards and alleys or driving an Inter-City Gas truck.

Council Faces Dilemma On Minstar Assessment

Thief River Falls city council has been faced with yet another dilemma caused by the unwillingness or inability of corporations to pay the property taxes levied upon them.

Council's problem arose Thursday when the board of review met to hear complaints about property tax assessments. Although the necessity of council being represented on the board of review was questioned by Alderman Milan Borsheim as recently as last Tuesday's regular council meeting, and the task is routinely dealt with by aldermen in teams of two, the entire council, with the exception of Aldermen Bill Penning and Don Goodrich, was present at 3 p.m. to hear a proposal from Minstar Inc. Also present on the board of reviews were County Assessor Gerard DeHaan and Auditor Ken Olson.

Council has good reason to be concerned, since Minstar, as owner of the former Arctic Enterprises property, holds one of the most highly valued pieces of commercial real estate in the county. Assessor DeHaan has placed a current market value of $2,283,200 on it. That leaves the property with a total tax due and payable this year of $104,297.86 including special assessments.

Proposition which was offered to the board of review by Minstar president Walter Mahanes and vice president of finance Don Nicholson, included a threat that they would probably consider not paying the taxes due and payable this year, unless they were given a reduction in taxes payable in 1984.

Alderman Ambrose Wysoski notes that receipt of 1982 taxes has already been anticipated in the budgets of both the city and the school district for next year. About $52,000 of the property's assessment would be earmarked for the school district. Both local government bodies have spent a considerable amount of time and effort attempting to trim those budgets already.

Amount which the company

Young Writers Express Thoughts About Trees

(Editor's Note: The following themes were written by Lincoln high school students and earned first and second place in the contest sponsored by the Pennington soil and water conservation district. Both entries will advance to the regional competition. Themes written by winners of the junior division of the contest were published in Wednesday's edition of the Times.)

"Trees Are For Everyone To Share"
by Dean Prestegaard
Grade 10

Dean Prestegaard

Trees, if you think about it, play a part in the life of just about every living creature. People have to learn to share the forest with wildlife. People need trees to make many products, but we also need the wildlife. Wildlife also depend on trees for making their nests and raising their young. Trees are for people to walk through, for birds to sing in and to protect the deer's young. We must learn to use the forest without over-using it.

People have always had a great need for trees. Early settlers used the trees for their homes and many used them for an occupation.

Today there are two major uses for wood from trees. The first one is lumber. Most

Toreq Property Buy Pushed By Mayor Carlson

Mayor Bob Carlson has reportedly negotiated an agreement for the purchase of the Toreq Inc. property which would commit the city to pay an additional $2,600 over the $256,800 figure which the council had agreed to pay.

While the mayor is not legally authorized to make such agreements, according to City Attorney Robert Wurst, he expressed confidence that the city council would ratify the agreement.

The real estate deal was messed up on Tuesday by a county board decision to deny Toreq's request for abatement of $5,800 in penalties and interest due on delinquent taxes on the property. Since Toreq was unable to obtain clear title to the property until the penalties were paid, the deed could not be transferred to the city.

Mayor Carlson reportedly approached the principals involved on Friday, with a suggestion that the Toreq board of directors agree to take $1,200 less than they were asking; First Federal Savings and Loan agree to forego $2,000 of the amount due on the mortgage, and the city of Thief River Falls make up the difference due of approximately $2,600.

The mayor reportedly has registered the deed for the property, and Wurst has said the city would be holding $21,250 in escrow until the city receives receipts to clear up a couple of minor judgements against Toreq.

Amounts paid by the city include $202,657.21 to First Federal for the mortgage and $29,659 to Pennington County for delinquent taxes.

OBLIVIOUS TO THE ATTENTIONS of infatuated Nurse Kelly (Lezlie Erickson), Dr. Sanderson (Tim Kjensrud) continues his professional opinion. Meanwhile, Elwood Dowd (James Solsten, center) turns his attention to "Harvey", the six-foot invisible white rabbit which has become an integral part of his life. The scene is from "Harvey", the Chameleon Theatre company's dinner theatre production, which will be presented Friday and Saturday at the Elks club in Thief River Falls and Tuesday, June 7, at Sullivan's in Red Lake Falls. Tickets at $10 each will include 6:30 dinner and 8 p.m. play with reservations to be made in advance at the Elks club. Sullivan's will serve a prime rib dinner for the play at $12.50 per person.

Gibson, medical director for the Montclair center for addictive diseases in Denver; Art Herscovitch, a clinical psychologist with the alcoholism foundation of Manitoba; Janie Jasin, a motivationalist and founder of creativity no limits in Minnetonka; and Dr. Robert ten Bensel, a nationally known authority on child abuse and family violence from the University of Minnesota's school of public health and department of pediatrics.

Two college credits are available through the school and Minnesota department of public welfare has approved the program for continuing education credits for chemical dependency counselors. The North Dakota division of alcoholism and drug abuse has also approved it for 30 hours of continuing education, once every four years.

Senator Asks Delay In Bill On Withholding

Senator Rudy Boschwitz has called the alternate proposal on withholding on interest and dividends "a fair and reasonable way to get at the tax cheats without placing the burden of withholding on the backs of honest taxpayers."

Withholding on interest and dividends was a law passed in the 97th Congress designed to capture up to $20 billion in uncollected taxes by enforcing a withholding on interest and dividends, similar to payroll withholding. But before the law was implemented, Congress was bombarded with millions of letters from constituents unhappy with the provisions.

Boschwitz said this after the senate agreed to a compromise on the controversial issue by voting in the main points of a proposal he introduced on March 11. After the vote both sides credited Boschwitz for being the first senator trying to end the controversy by seeking a plan that would crack down on tax cheats, but not by going so far as withholding.

The elements of the compromise include:

+ Delay until July 1, 1987. Mandatory withholding on interest and dividends will commence on July 1, 1987, only if the 1985 compliance rate for individuals is not at least 95 per cent as reported by GAO and only if both Houses of Congress approve the finding of the GAO report within 90 days.

+ Return format. Copies of 1099 information will be required to be matched with filed returns. Magnetic tape filing will be required with one-year waiver authority for hardship.

+ Stricter payer penalties. A negligence penalty will apply to payers who do not have a certified statement from account holder providing his taxpayer indentification number with increased penalties for gross negligence. A no-fault penalty will apply to payers who do not file an information return, with increased penalties if the payer fails to file a large percentage of information returns. A negligence penalty will apply to payers who do not file an information return, with increased penalties if the payer fails to file a large percentage of information returns. A negligence penalty will apply to payers who do not impose backup withholding when required.

+ Payers of interest and dividends will be required to send their customers "official" 1099s that look like W-2s, instead of including the tax information on year-end statements.

+ Attach 1099s to the tax return.

+ Backup withholding. Present law backup withholding will be expanded to apply to interest and dividends income at a 20 per cent rate and to include the following cases: No prior year return, after notice by IRS, and prior year underreporting of interst income by $50, after notice of IRS. Certification procedures to insure correct taxpayer identification numbers may be prescribed.

+ IRS matching. The IRS will be required to implement a better program for matching interest and dividend information returns with tax returns. Treasury will submit a report on necessary supplemental appropriations.

"I haven't come across an issue in the Senate that prompted such an outcry from constituents," Boschwitz said. "In the past two months I have received more than 150,000 cards and letters from individuals who oppose withholding. But before simply voting to repeal withholding, I wrote a letter to my constituents explaining withholding, why it passes, and who was exempt from it."

Boschwitz said he enclosed a return-mail postcard asking whether the letter-writers wanted him to vote to keep withholding, repeal it, or work on his proposal.

"The response was outstanding," Boschwitz said. "Eighty-six per cent of the response still wanted to repeal or work out a compromise."

In fiscal 1982, the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division conducted 4,491 investigations under the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act and found 1,790 violations, according to the Department's annual report.

"DON'T LEAVE ME, WILSON!" pleads Dr. Chumley (Frank Womack), convinced that he is being followed by "Harvey", the invisible, six-foot-tall white rabbit, now locked in Dr. Chumley's office. Waste Water Ass'n. Met For Training Here

About 25 members of the Minnesota wastewater operators association for the northwest section were hosted by the city of Thief River Falls on Tuesday, for a full day of educational workshops and meetings, highlighted by a tour of the city's wastewater pumping and treatment facilities.

Event was organized by Bud Enge, supervisor of the city's wastewater department, who served as president of the state operators association last year. Enge noted that the northwest section of the association meets about four times a year, rotating the location to a different member city each time. Tuesday's meetings were held at Northwest regional library. Harley Davis, Barnesville, chairman of the northwest section, presided over the business meeting. Special guests included State President Del Domagala, Luverne, and State Secretary Mike Roers, Rothsay.

Following registration at 8:30 a.m., the participants were welcomed by Mayor Bob Carlson. The remainder of the day was spent in a series of educational workshops conducted by city personnel. David Kildahl, city engineer, gave a presentation on steady-state pond analysis; Arlo Rude, city distribution engineer, made a presentation on lift station electrical controls; and Dana Klos, city draftsman, spoke on organization of a collection system map.

Sessions were supplemented with a tour of the city's treatment facilities, including two pumping stations which lift approximately 1.4 million gallons of sewage into the stabilization ponds west of the city each day. Enge notes that the three lagoons which occupy about a half section of land, constitute one of the largest treatment facilities of this type in the state of Minnesota. He notes that it provides one of the most efficient methods of treatment for cities which have sufficient space available. Several of the operators commented favorably on the lack of odor at the ponds, as well as noting the large numbers of waterfowl which frequent them.

Library Lil

Library Lil here and do I have some wonderful news for you! That Northwest Regional library has up a slew of pictures! Pictures, pictures, pictures! Everywhere you turn, there's pictures! Whew! (It makes me dizzy just thinking about it.)

This big whoop-te-doo is called the Northland nature photography contest. It's sponsored by the Northwest regional library system and the regional environmental education councils. It's the fourth time these two organizations have put their heads together and cooked up this contest. The contest has a black and white division and a color division. Each division has two categories: Wildlife and scenic.

My! And such beautiful entries they've got! You just have to go to see them. They're on display at the library and later on, the winning photos will go on display in the bookmobile as it travels to those county fairs in the Northwest regional library system. How grand! Do go to the library or the county fair and see them!

Here are two books I wormed through:

"Guest of the Revolution: The Triumphant Story of an American Held Hostage in Iran" by Kathryn Koob. Kathryn Koob describes the horrors of being held a hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Iran from November of 1979 to January of 1981. Her story is frightening and yet inspirational. Koob describes, in detail, her daily life as a "guest" of the student revolutionaries — the body searches and interrogations, the angry chants of mobs outside their windows, the blindfolds and the months with no contact and no news from the outside or from the other hostages. An excellent insight into a traumatic event in the life of our nation.

"Experimental Watercolor Techniques" by Bud Shackelford, who explores modern painting techniques using strong designs, patterns, colors and textures to create an array of bold effects and styles that you can experiment with in your own watercolors. This book should appeal to student and professional watercolorist alike, and will provide inspiration as well as instruction for the watercolor enthusiast.

NEWLY OPENED, Pine to Prairie Art Gallery and Custom Framing was recently welcomed to the Thief River Falls business community by Chamber Ambassadors JoAnn White and Dwight Tangquist, who extended their congratulations and a first dollar of clear profit to Roger Rybe, who owns the business with his wife LeMae. Located at 216 Main Avenue North, the business displays and sells original art and limited edition prints, and offers custom framing of paintings, photographs, certificates and other items.

Council Faces Dilemma On Tax Assessment

has requested that they be assessed in 1983 payable in 1984 is $25,000 less than a fourth of the amount presently assessed. Alderman Jim Womack says that he expected the company to ask for a large reduction, but added, "frankly I was completely surprised by the amount of the request."

DeHaan says that Minstar is "asking for a little bit too much," but adds that since some compromising should be expected, "they have nothing to lose by asking." He notes that, technically, the tax assessment cannot be changed, and the decision can only be made on the basis of property valuation. He calculated that in order to lower the assessment to the requested amount the property would have to be valued at $550,000, stating, "That's not much for approximately 600,000 square feet of commercial property." He proposed that the property valuation be reduced to $1,500,000, calculating that the company then would be assessed about $76,000 in taxes payable in 1984. No counterproposal was offered by Minstar, although notice was made that their proposal would average out the assessments for the two years at approximately $65,000.

DeHaan says that if the company refuses to pay the taxes on the property, after four years ownership would be forfeited to the state. As public property, taxes would not be collected until it was sold again.

Nicholson noted that Minstar based its request on problems caused by the economy, noting that while the property may be valuable, selling it is difficult because there is presently no market for facilities of that size.

According to Mahanes, the property costs Minstar about $300,000 a year in carrying expenses which include taxes, insurance, security, heat and maintenance.

Womack noted that they are not anxious to see the property broken into smaller parcels which might be easier to sell, since they are hopeful that Arctco Inc., which is currently leasing a portion of the complex to begin manufacturing Arctic Cat snowmobiles again, will eventually be able to expand into the rest of the facilities.

Arctoc's lease will be subject to renegotiation in December, and Womack noted that the tenant's ability to provide jobs in the community would be a factor in the council's deliberations.

Council will have until its next meeting, June 13, to consider the alternatives. Alderman Wysoski says he feels the council will agree to recommend a reduction in valuation, but added that there was no way of knowing how much they would agree to.

Question remains whether the Pennington county board of commissioners will accept the recommendation of the city, since the decision on property valuation ultimately falls to them. Minstar officers are unhappy with the council's decision they may still appear before the county board on July 11, to voice an appeal.

DeHaan notes that another request for reduction of property valuation also was received by the board of review. Consumers Co-op association has asked that the market value of the property which they vacated about one year ago be reduced from $103,600 to $85,200. That decision will have to go through the same process.

At last Tuesday's city council meeting, they were faced with another dilemma caused by a county board decision to deny a request for abatement of $5,800 in penalties and interest on delinquent taxes on the Toreq, Inc., property. That decision resulted in the company's inability to transfer title on the property to the city, which had agreed to purchase it.

Young Writers Give Thoughts About Trees

houses are made of wood and so are the many things that are inside the houses. Wood is used in making things from "furniture to baseball bats." The second major use for trees is in making pulp. From pulp we make an assortment of products. Paper is made from pulp and so are plastics, alcohol, and many other products.

From trees we also get many food products. There are two main classes of food products: The first class is fruit. From tropical trees we get avocados, grapefruits, mangoes, and oranges. From temperate regions we get apples, cherries and peaches. These fruits are shipped all across the land and supply many people with jobs. The second class is nuts. From tropical regions we get coconuts and from temperate regions we get almonds, pecans and walnuts. There are also many other food products that we get from trees. Some of these are chocolate, coffee, maple syrup, olives and spices like cinnamon and cloves.

There are also some other products that we get from trees. There are things like latex (from rubber trees), resin, which is used in making turpentine (from pine trees), and tannic acid, which is used for tanning animal hides (from oak bark).

Trees not only give us products that we can manufacture, but they also give us things that help our environment. Trees purify the air, reduce noise, and regulate air temperature and humidity. They also camouflage areas that are unsightly.

Man needs trees but we also need wildlife and wildlife need trees just as much, if not more, than we do. Wildlife depend on trees for shelter. Many animals hide from predators in and around trees, they also use the trees to hide from wind and storms and for shade from the sun. Many animals nest in trees because the trees will provide a safe place for them to mate and raise their young.

Man can help and harm trees in many ways. In the 1600's early settlers cut down trees for farming. Much of this lumber was wasted and shrunk our nation's forests considerably. Today two-thirds of our land is privately owned. In the remaining public lands 740 million acres has been reserved for refuges and parks, but this is not enough. So laws have been passed to protect the forests.

"C is for Care," this is what the Oregon state forestry department says. In Oregon trees are marked with a "C" to show which trees are to be cut. Cutting trees is not always bad, in fact, it can even be helpful to wildlife, but it has to be done conservatively.

Deer feed on small Northern White Cedar, Red Osier Dogwood and Mountain Maple. Small-scale clearcutting and replanting help deer to find food because they feed on the small, young trees, while still preventing soil erosion. Clearcutting also provides the best conditions for satisfactory reproduction of such trees as Jackpine and Aspen. Another thing that clearcutting does to help animals is creating more forest edges — preferred by a variety of wildlife species.

If more people learn to use the forest wisely by replanting and following simple laws there will be greater forest lands, more wildlife and more beauty. The United States is known for its forests and its beauty. If we lose our forests we will lose our beauty. I feel sorry for any person who hasn't had the chance to walk through a forest and see its beauty. Let's give everybody a chance to walk through a forest. Use the trees but use them wisely.

SECOND PLACE
"Trees Are For Minnesota"
by Kristi Pederson
Grade 10

Trees and forests are a very important part of Minnesota's history and future. Trees have contributed greatly to the development and settlement of Minnesota. In this essay I will show you some of the ways in which trees have helped Minnesota become the great state that it is. I will also mention some of the things being done to conserve one of our most important natural resources — trees.

Minnesota's forests have been used by many people in many ways. Originally, the Indians used the forests as a shelter, and for making important products such as canoes and medicines. Trees were, and still are used for foods like maple syrup, wild berries and other edible products. Also the Indians used the forest as a place to hunt game. Then, with the coming of the white man to Minnesota, the forests were used to make wood products on a much larger scale. The first big forest cutting job was done when Fort Snelling, the state's first sawmill, was built. It progressed from that time. But it wasn't until the 1890's to the 1930's that the white pine lumber industry reached its peak in Minnesota. Because of this the Twin Cities became the timber capitol of the United States.

Even with this great output in timber industry, some people thought Minnesota would profit more by being an agricultural state. And it was thought that almost the whole state could be used to farm. So the clearing process started. The easiest, cheapest and fastest way was to burn it away. This unreliable method caused record numbers of forest fires in Minnesota. Finally, (after many farming failures) people realized that the whole state could not be used for farming, but by this time the damage had taken its toll. There were only remnants left of what was once great pine forests. One of these remnants was set aside and eventually became Minnesota's first state park. Itasca state park as it is known is one of the finest parks for its size in the nation.

We get great use from our 19 million plus acres of forests: The state of Minnesota takes in over $320 million dollars a year on forest products alone. We harvest about 165,000 board feet of lumber per year; five million Christmas trees are harvested a year; 28,000 cords of matchwood; 3.5 million posts and poles and 200,000 cords of firewood.

But what about the future of our trees and forests? With the growing population there will be an even greater demand for wood products. Will we run out of trees to meet this demand? Chances are this won't happen, considering that much study is being put into trying to develop new ways to get use out of tree parts now regarded as waste. Also, up until now, 876,000 acres of trees have been replanted. Most of this has been done on publicly owned land. And 33,000 acres are being replanted every year just to replace what is being used. So it is easy to see that much time and money are being spent trying to preserve Minnesota's tradition.

There are also things being done to improve the conditions of our forests.

(1) Thinning — When forests become overcrowded it becomes necessary to get rid of some of the sickly, or diseased trees, and also thin out tree clumps, because there are too many trees competing for water.

(2) Pruning — Forest and park management go out and remove dead branches and trim trees. This is done to improve the tree's shape.

(3) Also, trees are checked regularly for diseases which could spread and wipe out a whole forest.

Sure Minnesota makes a lot of money on the different tree industries, but trees are also needed for things other than making money.

The role of trees in Minnesota's environment is very important. They regulate temperature and humidity. Farmers need trees to help protect the top soil from wind erosion. The city also needs trees because they act as a camouflage for garbage dumps, waste sites, and beautify street sides and parks.

Not only do people need trees but they play an important role in the lives of the wild animals. Trees and forests are their home. They need trees for food, shelter and a place for protection for their young. As forests go, so do the wild animals, big and small.

But to me, the most important use man gets out of trees is his recreation areas. As a quiet place to get away and relax and enjoy the beauty of our state wide parks. People are finding more and more things to do while visiting these wooded areas. For example: hunting and camping; the trees also provide challenging obstacles for the skilled skier and snowmobiler, as well as for bird watchers, and the list goes on.

Nevertheless, no matter how much of any kind of natural resource we have, there is always a need for conservation. And so far it looks like Minnesota has done a good job in preserving these great forests for future generations to get as much use and pleasure out of them as we have.

ELWOOD DOWD (James Solsten) introduces "Harvey" to society matron Mrs. Chauvenet in this scene from the Chameleon Theatre company's dinner theatre production of "Harvey". Mrs. Chauvenet (Nancy Ricci) seems unable to comprehend the invisible, six-foot-tall white rabbit which is such an integral part of Elwood's life. As the introduction is being made, Myrtle Mae (Kristy Schantzen, seated) and Veta Simmons (Carol Peterson) show mixed reactions. The play will be presented Friday and Saturday at the Elks club in Thief River Falls and next Tuesday, June 7, at Sullivan's in Red Lake Falls.

Dear Readers,
Does your husband have a will? In some states, the widow can be left with only ⅓ of the estate and nothing can be done about it.
Only 2 to 3% of this nation's widows get any money at all from their husband's private-industry pension plans - often because their husbands never bothered to apply for survivor's benefits.

Alternatives To Lutheran Merger Sought

Alternatives to merger will be the main topic of discussion during the 18th annual convention of Lutherans Alert-National and the Conservative Lutheran association, scheduled for June 22, 23 and 24 at the Holiday Inn of Eau Claire, Wis.

According to Lutherans Alert-National president Rev. Dr. Reuben H. Redal, "The proposed unification of the American Lutheran church, the Lutheran Church in America, and the Association of Evangelical Lutheran congregations, has several congregations throughout the nation desperately searching for alternatives. Many people are confused and disillusioned by this attempt to create a five-million-member 'super-church' which would modify, abandon or destroy many of the fundamental doctrinal and confessional positions of the historic Lutheran church.

"Aside from the theological concerns involved, there is much concern being expressed today by members of the ALC and the AELC regarding the property rights of individual congregations under the proposed structure of the new unified Lutheran Church," he said. "A decision on this matter has not yet been officially announced by the parties to the new church.

"However, at present, the Lutheran Church in America, which is the largest of the three merging entities, owns and controls the property of its member congregations. In our opinion, therefore, the merged church will most likely opt for this same type of ownership arrangement. If this occurs, member congregations of the ALC and AELC would forfeit the ownership of their congregational property to the new Lutheran church body" Dr. Redal said.

Registration for the convention will begin at 3 p.m. on June 22. Complimentary passes to attend all sessions of the convention are available on a first-come, first-served basis by writing: Lutherans Alert-National, Box 7186, Tacoma, Washington 98407.

State Arson Offenses Rise During 1983

Reported arson offenses in Minnesota increased 6.5 per cent during the first three months of 1983 (181 offenses) compared to the same time period in 1982 (170 offenses), according to a report by the bureau of criminal apprehension, a division of the Minnesota department of public safety. Forty-five or 24 per cent of the 181 arson offenses were cleared.

Arson was involved in 127 structural offenses totalling $739,594 in property damage. Included were 54 residential structurs, 30 community and public buildings, 22 storage buildings, 17 industrial or other commercial structures and four other types of buildings not covered in any of the previous categories.

Twenty-nine arson offenses involved vehicles for a total value of $48,752. There were 25 other property arsons which were non-structural and non-vehicular with a total property value of $8,141.

State Fire marshal Wes Werner reminds Minnesotans of the statewide arson telephone hotline (612) 645-8882. By calling that number or writing to: Arson, Box 633, Minneapolis, MN 55440, an individual may receive up to $1,000 for information about an arson fire or suspected arson.

$4,589,350 Granted In SBA Loans

Celso C. Moreno, district director of the Minnesota district office of the small business administration (SBA), announced this week that $4,589,350 in SBA guaranteed loans had been approved for 27 Minnesota companies, and $429,000 in economic development loans for four Minnesota companies in the month of April 1983. Projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 330 jobs.

Direct management assistance was provided to 243 Minnesota firms through the SBA's in-house counselors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives (SCORE), the small business development centers, and the twelve colleges participating in the small business institute program.

Forty loans were paid-in-full during the month of April.

More PROGRESS in Thief River Falls
Congratulations!

ADDITION OF a "Playland" area at McDonald's restaurant was recognized as more progress in Thief River Falls recently by the Chamber Ambassadors. Congratulations were exteded to McDonald's owner Jerry Bugliosi by Ambassadors Dwight Tangquist and JoAnn White, who posted signs acknowledging the improvement. Playground area is fenced in for safety and features specially made slides, climbing structures and rockers, incorporating fiberglass replicas of McDonald's cartoon characters, such as the statue of Ronald McDonald pictured. Bugliosi noted that the 45 to 50 people presently working at the restaurant would be supplemented as additional maintenance and increased business required.

Caution Urged With Farm, Home Chemicals

Today's technology provides a multitude of chemicals that are useful at home and on the farm — products such as heavy-duty cleaners, disinfectants, pesticides and herbicides.

These products can perform valuable functions. However, they should be used with caution and common sense, the Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA) reminds consumers.

Pesticides, fungicides and herbicides are obviously potent chemicals, produced to kill unwanted plant and insect life. Less apparent but also potent chemicals are found in ordinary household products such as nail polish removers, drain cleaners, disinfectants and medications.

Used carelessly, such chemicals can contaminate the air, soil, lakes, rivers and underground water sources. MPCA provides tips for using chemicals at home and on the farm.

First, decide whether you really need the chemicals to do the job. If you need them, read labels before buying and using products to be sure they will do what you want them to do. Buy only as much as you need, and buy the least potent product that will still do the job.

All household and farm chemicals should be stored in their original containers. Transferring them into other containers such as food containers or soft drink bottles, which would attract children, is extremely dangerous and against federal law. They should be kept in a dry area away from food or medical supplies, where flooding will not occur and where children cannot get at them.

Use only as much chemical as you need. Extra-strength solutions will not do a better job, but they will increase the risk to the environment. Mixtures left over and poured down the drain can pass unchanged through a wastewater treatment plant or remain intact in a home septic system. If you're wondering what to do with leftover chemicals, the best thing to do is to use them up for their intended purpose. Then you don't have a disposal problem.

Pay attention to caution labels. "Danger" on a product label indicates a highly toxic product. A "warning" indicates extreme care should be used. The word "caution" means that the product is less toxic, but it can be hazardous to people and possibly to water supplies.

Containers from farm and garden chemicals require special care. Because the products usually require dilution with water, take advantage of that fact. Rinse containers three times when they are empty, using the rinse water to dilute the last batches of solution.

Never keep hazardous chemical containers and use them for other purposes. Empty containers, after they have been rinsed, can be put in the regular household trash to be taken to a landfill. In the case of farm chemicals, try to return the containers to the dealer who sold them. Some can be reconditioned and reused.

Never discard containers into swamps, sinkholes, gravel pits, ditches, or any other site other than an authorized landfill. The residue of chemical left in them can seep into the surface or ground water and could affect wildlife or drinking water.

Remember that a product's price on the shelf may be just part of its actual cost. The other price we may pay is in its potential damage to the environment. For more information call the MPCA in Roseville at (612) 296-7373.

Supreme Court Upholds NFO Countersuit

"This represents a final and total victory for the National Farmers organization," commented NFO president DeVon Woodland, following announcement that the United States supreme court refused to reverse the decision by the circuit court of appeals.

All that is left now is for the federal district court in Kansas City to determine the amount of damages to be recovered by NFO.

Claim which started the multi-million dollar lawsuit brought by Mid-America Dairymen, Inc. against NFO, as well as the suit later brought by Associated Milk Producers, Inc. (AMPI) against NFO were dismissed by the Eighth circuit court of appeals. The court at the same time upheld NFO's countersuit against those cooperatives.

Appeals court rules that NFO did not violate the antitrust laws, but said the three dairy organizations did violate those laws and conspired to monopolize milk sales during the late 1960s and early 1970s. The three are Mid-America Dairymen, Inc., Associated Milk Producers, Inc., (AMPI) and Central Milk Producers Co-op.

Eight circuit court of appeals awarded $164,000 to NFO to cover its costs in appealing the decision of the federal district court in Kansas City.

Woodland noted that the decade-long suit has been a substantial financial burden for the organization over the years and NFO had made numerous attempts to settle the suit before and during trial.

Woodland stated, "Our members have donated time and time again simply because we knew we were right and that justice would prevail even in the fact of disappointments along the way. We are delighted with the decision of the U.S. Supreme court."

Comet Visits Us For Only One Time

Comet that recently took the world by surprise will probably never return.

Now falling below the plane of the solar system at more than 60,000 miles per hour, the comet IRAS-Araki-Alcock seems to be on an open-ended orbit that will never bring it back into our solar system. It is now visible from Earth only in the Southern hemisphere, and it won't be visible much longer, even from there.

Comet was named for the IRAS — infrared astronomy satellite — and the two amateur astronomers who discovered it in late April.

But, the comet didn't stay long enough, said Bill Gollisch, a University of Minnesota astronomer. Just after he and his colleagues detected its signal on the infrared telescope at the university's O'Brien observatory at Marine-on-St. Croix and took some pictures, the skies began to cloud.

Yet, the comet's brief visit has been instructive, astronomers say. Its orbit was computed, revealing that it was not a periodic (returning) comet like the famous Halley's, and, in fact, had probably never visited our solar system before. It certainly had never approached at such a relatively close distance as less than three million miles. Now its path cannot be bent by the sun enough to make it return.

The comet Ord, however, came close enough for radar waves to be beamed off its nucleus to reveal the comet's composition. But the results of the experiment are not yet in, Gollisch said. Astronomers expect it to be, like most comets, a "dirty snowball" of frozen gas, rock and dust with its nucleus nearly a kilometer across. If it is a typical comet, its tail flares across the sky when it comes close to the sun. Heat from the sun vaporizes the gases, which stream out — lit by sunlight — for up to millions of miles.

Comets like this one are thought to orginate in the Oort cloud, a vast nimbus of rocky, frozen clumps that surrounds the solar system. This material is believed to have been left over from the solar system's birth some 4.6 billion years ago, explained Terry Jones, another astronomer at the University of Minnesota.

At that time, tiny bits of material from a vast nebula gradually accreted, then were increasingly drawn together by gravity to form the sun and planets. Material in the outer reaches of the nebula was too widely dispersed to create yet another planet, astronomers believe. Held in cold storage, it is our only messenger from the first years of our solar system's history.

Chunks of this farthest circle of the solar system — the proto-coments — come in toward Earth only when one of their orbits is perturbed by a passing star, one of our solar system's planets or each other. This jostling allows them to be pulled in toward the sun.

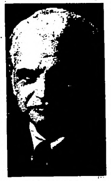
Sahlstrom Is Speaker For PKM Meeting



Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom

Main speaker at the June 8 annual meeting of P.K.M. Electric cooperative will be Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom, provost of the University of Minnesota campus at Crookston (UMC).

The annual meeting will be held at the Warren high school auditorium on Wednesday, June 8, with registration beginning at 12:30 p.m. Capital credit checks will be distributed. Music and comedy provided by the Hoot N'Toots, a young musical group from the Viking area, will begin at 1:15 p.m.

The business meeting will start at 1:30 p.m. and include reports by P.K.M. directors and management. Leroy Meier, Minnkota business manager, will give a report on Minnkota's wholesale power concerns. Angelo Jerome of rural Hallock will present a report on the Minnesota Association of Cooperatives youth conference. Election of directors will be held, followed by Dr. Sahlstrom's talk on "The Future of Agriculture."

As provost of UMC, Dr. Sahlstrom is the chief administrative officer for the college. His responsibilities include development of college programs, employment of staff, and continuing improvement of facilities.

A native of Minnesota, the provost earned his bachelor of science, master of science, and doctoral degrees from the University of Minnesota. A past officer of four honorary fraternities, he has held national offices in Phi Delta Kappa international professional society. He came to Crookston in 1965 after holding administrative positions at St. Cloud state university.

From 1962 to 1963 Dr. Sahlstrom, was an educational consultant to the government of Cyprus under a Fullbright grant. In 1973 he researched technical education in Russia, and also visited schools in Switzerland, Austria and Poland. In 1976 he visited colleges in England, Scotland and Wales to further an exchange program of faculty and students between those colleges and UMC. During the spring of 1980 Dr. Sahlstrom served as a consultant to the United Nationals to review education in agriculture in Saudi Arabia.

Higher Social Security Tax Rate Advanced

Among the recently enacted changes in social security is a higher tax rate. According to Grand Forks district manager William Phalen the social security tax increase which had been scheduled for 1985 will go into effect in 1984.

New 1984 rate will be 7.0 per cent each for employees and employers, up from the previous rate of 6.7 per cent. But employees will receive a tax credit against 1984 taxes of .3 per cent, which will be given when taxes are deducted from wages. In effect, 1984 employees taxes will remain at the level set under previous law.

Also starting in 1984 the social security self-employment tax rate will rise to 14 per cent, which equals the combined employee-employer tax on wages. Self-employment tax has been about one and one-half times the employee rate.

Phalen said that the new law provides a self-employment tax credit of 2.7 per cent of self-employment income for 1984, 2.3 per cent for 1985 and 2.0 per cent for 1986 to 89. After 1989 these credits will be replaced with deductions.

Memorial Day

Following editorial is from the Swift County News:

There was a time when Memorial Day observances were no small thing. There were bands, all the school children, members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion, Gold Star mothers, Boy and Girl Scouts and the National Guard in a long parade. Lining the parade route in Benson and similar cities throughout the land were hundreds of men, women and children. It was a special occasion.

Today, in Benson and other communities, the Memorial Day parade is only a shadow of what it once was. There are no longer hundreds along the parade route, maybe only a handful of people. There is no great crowd at the cemetery to hear the Memorial Day address, once a major speech making occasion.

There are those who are upset over this lack of national participation in honoring those who have died serving their country in various wars and conflicts. Though the parades were exciting and the speeches heart warming, if not too long, their lack today doesn't mean our citizens don't honor their war dead.

There is a saying that funerals are for the living, not the dead, and that's very true. It should also be noted that loud praying doesn't mean the person performing is a dedicated Christian, or of any other religion. Nor, does flying a flag make a person a greater patriot than one who doesn't. So it is that a Memorial Day without much pomp and circumstance doesn't mean that we have forgotten our war dead.

There is no question that the more time that passes since war, the less deep attention there is to the sacrifices made during a time of combat. It is also true that American mobility sounded the death knell for the substantial Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day celebrations of yesteryear. But, this doesn't mean that many Americans aren't really aware of the meanings of these holidays.

Make-Work Legislature

Following commentary is from the St. Paul Pioneer-Press:

The careful reader will, of course, have followed the progress of the Workers' Compensation bill through this past week. This has been a tough, divisive bit of legislation, although all parties are said to share the same goal: fair benefits for injured or disabled workers for less than the exhorbitant rates now paid by business and industry.

Readers of the St. Paul Dispatch may have read my column on the stalling of the administration's bill. It was pointed out that the speaker of the House, Harry Sieben Jr., who had succeeded in tucking the bill away at that time, is a partner of a law firm, Grose & Von Holtum, which is very aggressive in the field of workers' comp, advertising heavily; and that apparently it was pressure from lawyers in the field that led to the emotional and surprising opposition to the governor's bill from labor leaders, represented at the Capitol by Dan Gustafson.

Rep. Wayne Simoneau, DFL-Fridley, author of a rival workers' compensation bill, told me I was a bit unfair in my criticism of Sieben. I had noted the association with the law firm, got some quotes from Sieben assuring me there would be a workers' compensation bill, and noted that if he was not embarrassed by his position as speaker and Grose & Von Holtum partner, then he ought to be.

Sieben assured me there would be a bill as soon as the labor and business interests agreed on a few details. Simoneau worked heroically through the week to achieve that miracle.

Meanwhile, he told me that a member of Sieben's firm has been lobbying strenuously against reform, apparently constructing convincing horror stories to rattle Gustafson and his associates.

This would seem to have made what Sieben said described as a "delicate" position into one that is close to untenable. A conflict seems to exist, but it is one I don't know how the speaker could or should resolve.

This, as so often is the case, is a long way of coming around to the discussion of legislative conflicts.

Name a trade or profession and you've singled out a conflict. Tuba players might quality.

This brings us back to the age-old question of which is better for the state: a full-time, professional legislature, with no apparent outside interests; or a citizen legislature in which there clearly are axes to grind on occasion.

At one time, I thought the full-time legislature was the way to go. Pay them more, I thought (and cut the Legislature in half, and possibly make it unicameral), and we'd have a better state.

Now on reflection, I believe we had better legislatures when we had greater representation of interests: farmers, doctors, lawyers, other professional people, building contractors, and the like. It was better for one obvious reason: They didn't get paid much and they didn't spend as much time, not by half, in St. Paul. For another, and better reason, they were all experts in their various fields and had work outside of politics.

With the intensity now obtaining, the legislators have what amounts to two full sessions during a two-year term. If they are employed elsewhere, they must have very patient partners or bosses, and their businesses must suffer.

What we have crept into, gradually, is a situation in which many can accept service in the Legislature as a full-time job. It pays $18,500, at the base, which is no bonanza. Yet this provided the means for at least two of its members (at one time) to pay their way through college, gives further qualification for government service, and gives the others a nice income to share with a working spouse. And I think the Legislature is worse now, not better, in spite of some weird things that used to go on.

We had a much more responsible and responsive Legislature when we had members who were too busy making honest livings to spend a lot of time in St. Paul creating new problems for those of us working for livings. Then, party designation politicized the body to its present standards of arrogance and knee-jerk responses. It is worse, believe me. Not even the case of Speaker Sieben, standing there without embarrassment, over a bill affecting profitable litigation, convinces me otherwise.

The thing you want to know at all times is where the legislative creature is coming from. With most of the newer batches we know simply that they are coming from legislative caucuses. The Independent-Republicans, of course, come from prayer breakfasts.

Insurance Insurance

Columnist Bob Johnson of the Wadena Pioneer-Journal points out that a Wall Street Journal article reports it is now possible to buy insurance insurance, a new kind of policy covering the legal costs of bringing suit against an insurance company for refusing to pay an insurance claim. Johnson writes as follows:

"Say your home goes up in flames and your fire insurance company won't pay for the loss because it insists your policy covers only those homes that go down in flames. If you have insurance insurance insuring you against insurance companies reneging on their promises, you can take your case to court without going broke. Your insurance insurance company will pay your lawyer."

"Of course, there is always the chance your insurance insurance company will refuse to pay the legal costs when you sue your fire insurance company for refusing to pay your fire cost!"

"What to do them? Obviously, there will soon be an insurance insurance insurance policy to cover the legal costs of suing an insurance insurance company for breaking its promise to pay the legal costs of suing a fire insurance company for breaking its promise to pay a fire loss."

Johnson also notes that in Connecticut last year, a program begun last October to require medicare and medicaid recipients to get a second opinion on surgery saved $715,000 in surgical costs. The government projects that a national second opinion program could reduce elective surgery as much as 29 per cent in medicaid and 18 per cent in medicare.

The columnist suggests additional opinions would further decrease the surgeries prescribed. It could be, he writes with tongue in cheek, that the 10th doctor would come to the home, be kept waiting on the porch for two hours, finally be invited inside and pay the home-owner $50 to spend 10 minutes telling him how healthy he is.

PASSING THE GAVEL held a special significance for Harold Anderson, right, as he installed officers for VFW Post 2793 in Thief River Falls recently. New commander of the post for 1983 is his son Bob. Harold served as commander of Post 2793 over 30 years ago, and is also a past ninth district commander.

Stangeland Explains Vote On MX Missile

"My vote for the MX missile was more than just an approval of a new piece of military hardware," Congressman Arlan Stangeland reports. "It was a vote for both the security of our nation and progress in the process of nuclear arms reduction."

Congressman Stangeland joined 91 House Democrats and 147 Republicans in supporting a plan to flight-test the MX missile and base it in existing Minuteman silos. The plan was approved by the House in a 239 to 187 vote.

"Deterrence, modernization and arms reduction are three mutual goals," Congressman Stangeland said. "We cannot deter the Soviets from gambling with nuclear war if we do not modernize our defenses. We also cannot persuade them to reduce their nuclear arsenals if we guarantee them a permanent advantage.

"We must pay a price for the freedoms and goodness which Americans enjoy," he said. "Investing in the deterrence of nuclear weaponry is part of that price.

"Furthermore, the Soviets have shown that they will not negotiate for arms reductions out of the goodness of their hearts," Congressman Stangeland said. "A vote for the MX missile was a direct invitation to the Soviets to negotiate in good faith for strategic nuclear arms reductions.

"Moscow has been given a clear choice," the Barnesville Congressman-farmer said. "Either they can negotiate for legitimate arms reduction, or they will be forced to continue to pay the price of an arms race. I do not intend to guarantee the Soviets a nuclear monopoly.

"I want a world that is free from nuclear weapons," Congressman Stangeland said. "But we cannot do it alone — the Soviets must cooperate.

"We must never fear to negotiate, but we cannot negotiate from fear," he said. "The construction of the MX missile demonstrates to the Soviets that, while we wish for an end to the arms race, we will not accept surrender as a means to achieving that goal."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I would like to publicly thank the Thief River Falls Jaycee Women for a "new" and valuable service to the community. Their car seat safety program is making available infant car seats or carriers to families in the community who have newborn babies or other infants up to nine months of age.

My wife and I have been in the adoption process for over three and one-half years, waiting for a newborn. During the evening of May 18, we got the call that a baby girl was waiting for us in the Twin Cities. On Thursday morning we were able to pick up one of the Jaycee Women's infant car seats for our use.

Because it is law in the state of Minnesota that infants be placed in a child seat restraint and since these seats cost about $40 each, we welcome this new service by the Jaycee Women of Thief River Falls. Thank you!

Sincerely,
Rev. & Mrs. Gary L. Moore

A PAIR OF conferences took place simultaneously Wednesday in the bottom of the seventh inning of the Thief River Falls vs. Middle River-Marshall County Central high school baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond. With the score tied 5-5, the bases loaded and two out, Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell conferred with batter Jim Hallamek while Middle River-MCC coach Ron Rudd talked the situation over with pitcher Ted Thompson and catcher Todd Stokke. After the meetings, on a 1-2 pitch, Hallamek's ground ball to second base was mis-played for an error, bringing the winning run across the plate in the Prowlers' come-from-behind 6-5 victory.

Seventh Inning Rally Is Key In 6-5 TRF Victory

You might want to call them the Comeback Kids after the Lincoln high school baseball team pulled off its second seventh inning rally in as many days Wednesday to get by upset-minded Middle River-Marshall County Central 6-5 on the fairgrounds diamond.

And just like the day before in a come-from-behind 9-6 win at Crookston, Thief River Falls waited until two were out in the seventh before making a move on a one-run deficit.

"They're beginning to think that's the way it's supposed to be done," quipped Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell after the 1983 regular season finale that enabled the Prowlers to finish 10-5. Middle River-Marshall County Central will enter post-season play 9-5.

It was a disappointing loss for the visitors, who spoiled an otherwise fine day with a seventh inning collapse that put five straight Thief River Falls runners on base without the benefit of a base hit.

"I'm not absolutely so sure we deserved to win," acknowledged Cornell. "Take away all the errors and walks and things, and Middle River probably wins 1-0 on the home run."

The home run was a two-run third inning shot over the left field fence by catcher Todd Stokke that helped stake Middle River-MCC to a 4-1 lead. It became 5-1 when Stokke contributed another RBI on a two-out fifth inning single through the left side of the infield to score Ted Thompson, who walked to start the inning and stole second.

But Thief River Falls got back in it by scoring three times in the fifth. Jeff Milender beat out an infield hit and both Brian Johnston and Todd Ortloff drew two-out walks to load the bases. A wild pitch scored Milender, a full-count nubber down the third base line went for an infield hit and an RBI for Rick Spong and another wild pitch made it 5-4.

In Thief River Falls' seventh, Thompson retired the first two batters on an infield ground-out and a fly ball before issuing a walk to Tim Bottem. Right-fielder Alan Melvie then mis-played Spong's low line drive into a game-tying three-base error. Walks to Gary Cornell and Ryan Drees loaded the bases, and the Prowlers won it when Jim Hallamek's ground ball bounced off second baseman Rory Hanson for an error.

"It was disappointing to lose in the last inning like that," acknowledged Middle River-Marshall County Central coach Ron Rudd, "but take away a few walks and a few errors and I thought we did a good job. I was pretty happy we were able to stay in the game with them. That's better competition than most of the teams we face. If we can play them even at this stage of the season, we should be able to play with anybody in Class A."

The two teams traded second inning runs. Stokke drew a one-out walk in the top of the inning, stole second and scored on a two-out error by first baseman Gary Cornell. Spong doubled to center with one out in the bottom of the inning, moved up on a ground ball and scored on a wild pitch by Thompson, who limited Thief River Falls to just five hits, but walked nine and three runs scored on his four wild pitches.

AFTER HITTING a two-run home run over the left field fence in the third inning of Wednesday's high school baseball game against Thief River Falls, Middle River-Marshall County Central runner Todd Stokke received a congratulatory handshake from coach Ron Rudd as he rounded third base. Stokke finished with a 2-for-2 day at the play, scored two runs and drove in three, but still watched as Thief River Falls pulled out a seventh inning 6-5 victory.

Stokke's third inning home run was preceded by a bloop single to left by Scottie Peterson and a walk issued to Thompson. Peterson, tagging up on a fly ball to center field, scored when Spong's apparently accurate throw bounced once in front of Hallamek at third and caromed high into the air on the hard infield for an error.

For the second time in three days Drees was the Prowlers' winning pitcher. He got his first varsity mound duty in a relief job to beat Ada 3-1 Monday and the sophomore lefthander got the decision in this one, with three more innings of strong relief work in which he picked off two base runners.

Thief River Falls' 1983 record going into post season play includes a 6-0 mark against area Class A teams and a 4-5 figure against Class AA competition.

SECURING A BERTH in the 1983 Section 8 high school tennis tournament with a semifinal victory in Wednesday's Sub-Section 4 competition played here, Thief River Falls doubles teammates Steve Bendickson (left) and Chad Broadwell congratulated each other following a 6-3, 6-1 decision over Crookston's Brent Melsa and Will Schnabel. The Prowlers' twosome lost to another Crookston pair — brothers Jeff and Jay Claassen — in the finals by a 6-0, 6-2 count later in the day.

TRF Doubles Team Earns Section 8 Tennis Berth

Thief River Falls' Steve Bendickson and Chad Broadwell extended their senior season of high school tennis competition Wednesday when they earned a berth in the doubles portion of the 1983 Section 8 individual tennis tournament with a runner-up finish in the Sub-Section 4 event played in Thief River Falls.

Seeded third in the tournament here, Bendickson and Broadwell received a first round bye and beat East Grand Forks' Jim Vonasek and Tim Driscoll 6-3, 5-7, 6-2 in the quarterfinals.

That set the stage for a semifinal confrontation with Crookston's second-seeded Brent Melsa and Will Schnabel, a freshman and sophomore, respectively, who handled Bendickson and Broadwell 6-4, 6-4 during the semifinals of the Sub-Section 4 team tournament on the same Northland community college courts just two days earlier — a setback that weighed heavily on a 3-2 Thief River Falls loss.

This time, though, the Bendickson - Broadwell combination donated the action, winning easily, 6-3, 6-1. And with the two doubles and teams and top two singles players advancing, the outcome clinched a berth Section 8 tournament berth for the winners.

"Best tennis those two kids have played all year," was the way Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson described their performance. "They were working for the shots. They wanted it. They were concentrating on it. When you're not concentrating you get careless. They were concentrating and hitting the ball. That's the name of the game — getting the ball back over the net and making the other side make the mistakes."

"They made it to the section, and they were pretty happy with that," he added.

In the finals, Crookston's brother combination of Jay and Jeff Claassen, No. 1-seeded after playing most of the year as the Pirates' No. 1 and No. 2 singles players, won 6-0, 6-2.

"There were a lot of close games in there, but our kids just didn't get the points," noted Olson.

In singles, it was an all-East Grand Forks final as unbeaten senior Phil Burke, the No. 1 seed, stopped sophomore Del Nelson, the No. 2 seed, 6-2, 6-0.

Burke, Nelson, Jay and Jeff Claassen plus Bendickson and Broadwell will compete in the Section 8 individual tournament Wednesday at Brainerd, joining qualifiers from the other three subsections in a quest for a state tournament berth.

East Grand Forks will compete in the team portion of the four-team tournament Tuesday, also at Brainerd.

Tips For Boaters

Every spring, hundreds-of-thousands of boaters and fishermen take to Minnesota's lakes and rivers. For many it will be their first time as a boat owner, and they are confused as to what is required by law.

Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) noted that legal requirements vary depending upon size, type of craft, and where the boat is being used. He did note, however, that the following items are particularly important.

+ License — all boats must be registered with the DNR or in another state, and display the numbers and decals. Canoes, sailboats, paddleboats and sailboards have a special round decal, and non-motorized craft 9 feet or less in length are exempt.

+ Lifesaving devices — every person on board a watercraft (except sailboards) must wear, or have a Coast Guard approved personal flotation (lifesaving) device readily accessible to them. The requirement in other states and federal waters differ, so check ahead.

+ Lights — motorboats are required to have a red and green bow light and a white stern light. Non-motorized boats need only display a white light. Lights must be displayed from sunset to sunrise.

+ Fire extinguisher — inboard and inboard-outdrive boats and those outboard craft with gasoline tanks built into the boat are required to carry a fire extinguisher. The number depends on the size of the boat.

Elverum noted that there were other requirements and urged boaters to obtain a copy of the Minnesota Boating Guide free, when they buy their boat license or at county sheriffs' offices, DNR offices, by writing the DNR at Box 46, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, or by calling 612-296-3336.

Overpowered boats

It is illegal to operate a boat in Minnesota that has a motor of greater horsepower than the maximum safe limit shown on the boat's capacity plate.

Kim Elverum, boat and water safety coordinator, Department of Natural Resources, said the capacity plate is usually located on the boat's transom or is attached to the craft near the steering wheel or throttle.

He said he receives numerous calls every year concerning the regulation.

It is not illegal for the dealer to sell a boat with a motor larger than shown on the capacity plate, he said, but it is illegal to operate such a boat.

"This means that the boat buyer should check the capacity plate before he purchases the watercraft," said Elverum; "especially on used boats."

Furthermore, he said, the boat owner may find that insurance does not cover cases where the owner knowingly overpowers the watercraft and then has an accident.

He also emphasized that there is no truth to a rumor that the law allows a 5, 10 or 15 per cent horsepower increase over the maximum shown on the capacity plate.

In addition, said Elverum, overpowering a boat may damage the transom. It may also create a dangerous situation by forcing the stern lower in the water causing the bow to rise, reducing the operator's forward visibility.

If there is no capacity plate, persons may write the DNR, Box 46, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155, or call 612-296-3336 to obtain an estimate for their boat. Before contacting the DNR, however, it is necessary to know the centerline length of the boat and the width of the craft at the transom (from outside edge to outside edge).

Ducks Unlimited Will Sponsor U.S. Programs

In a recent Supreme Court decision, Justice Harry Blackmum noted: "The protection of migratory birds has long been recognized as a national interest of very nearly the first magnitude."

That protection has been under the continued siege of civilization with the annual loss of some 458,000 U.S. acres of wetland habitat.

Recently, at its annual convention in Williamsburg, Va., Ducks Unlimited announced its intention to help stem the loss of productive wetland habitat with the second of a two-phase program. Thrust of Phase II will be to restore, replenish and maintain areas in the United States most critical to breeding North American waterfowl.

"It is a unique approach for two reasons," said DU president Robert Eberhardt. "First, for the past 46 years, Ducks Unlimited has concentrated its conservation efforts in Canada where some 75 per cent of the continent's waterfowl breed. DU's move into the U.S. came because its officers and professional biologists decided that the resource could wait no longer.

"Second, no other private conservation organization has the resources or expertise of Ducks Unlimited. DU has been in the wetlands conservation business since 1937. It has saved millions of wetlands acres and untold numbers of wildlife from needless destruction."

Phase I, which was announced earlier, entails an agreement with NASA to inventory and monitor wetlands in the U.S. and Canada with information supplied by Landsat 4, the most sophisticated communications satellite in the world.

Once mapped, the lands will be studied by Ducks Unlimited and officials of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and state agencies to determine the areas of highest potential productivity for waterfowl and wildlife.

DU will concentrate its efforts in Montana, Dakotas, Minnesota and Alaska, because those states are responsible for raising more than 85 per cent of the nation's waterfowl.

Wetlands in the United States have been disappearing at an alarming rate since man first began to tame the land for his own welfare. Soil Conservation Service has estimated that of the original 127 million acres of wetlands in the United States, 82 million remain. And those are going fast.

Work in the U.S. will result in Ducks Unlimited's scope becoming truly continent-wide. Since 1974, Ducks Unlimited has been involved with wetland projects in Mexico, providing haven for wintering waterfowl.

Ducks Unlimited raised $34.7 million last year and boasts 455,000 members. With such considerable resources, it's believe that DU's entry into U.S. wetland habitat restoration will, indeed, make substantial inroads into saving one of our national interests.

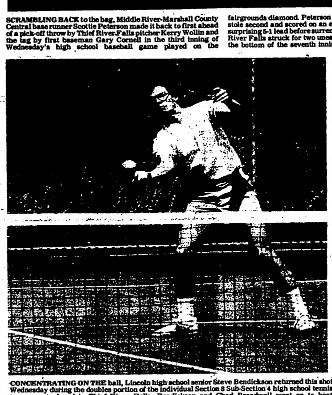
SCRAMBLING BACK to the bag, Middle River-Marshall County Central base runner Scottie Peterson made it back to first ahead of a pick-off throw by Thief River Falls pitcher Kerry Wollin and the tag by first baseman Gary Cornell in the third inning of Wednesday's high school baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond. Peterson opened the inning with a single, stole second and scored on an error as the visitors opened up a surprising 5-1 lead before surrendering a 6-5 decision when Thief River Falls struck for two unearned runs after two were out in the bottom of the seventh inning.



CONCENTRATING ON THE ball, Lincoln high school senior Steve Bendickson returned this shot Wednesday during the doubles portion of the individual Section 8 Sub-Section 4 high school tennis tournament played in Thief River Falls. Bendickson and Chad Broadwell went on to beat Crookston's Brent Melsa and Will Schnabel 6-3, 6-1 in this semifinal match on the Northland community college courts to clinch a berth in the Section 8 tournament field.

Minneapolis To Host Amateur Bowling Event

Richest amateur bowling tournament ever scheduled in the Upper Midwest offers a $100,000 first prize, provided a full field of 4,096 paid entrants participates.

Minnesota $100,000 Classic for men and women bowlers will be held at Diamond Lake Lanes, 60th St. and Nicollet Ave., Minneapolis Aug. 13-21. Entry fee is $100, with a total prize list of $355,900.

Tournament director Curtis L. Erickson said the event will be introduced to bowlers attending the Minnesota Twins - New York Yankees bowlers' night baseball game at the Metrodome Saturday, July 9.

Erickson said the tournament has been in planning for more than a year. It is designed for a field of 4,096 amateurs, with each bowler allowed a handicap of two-thirds of the difference between a 200 score and his or her highest 1982-83 league average, to a maximum handicap of 20 pins per game. Professionals will not be allowed to enter.

"This system should even out competition significantly," Erickson declared. "It gives average bowlers an excellent chance at prize money if he or she puts together a hot string of games."

The $355,900 prize list — again dependent upon all entry positions being filled — will include $20,000 for second place, $10,000 each for third and fourth and 1,055 other cash prizes. A full field will guarantee every winner of two games at least the recovery of the $100 entry fee.

In the event all 4,096 entry slots are not filled, individual prize amounts will be prorated, with one paid winner for every four entrants. Top four winners will be paid in equal annual payments over 10 years, while the remaining winners will receive their awards in immediate lump sum payments.

"This tournament has the most attractive elements we could put together for an area that is teeming with enthusiastic, above average bowlers," says Erickson, citing national bowling league statistics.

An extensive statewide media campaign has been mapped, with entry forms available at most bowling centers throughout Minnesota and bordering communities in Wisconsin, Iowa, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Tournament rules offer a unique "early bird" advantage by earmarking available first round byes, in the event the field is not entirely filled, to registrants in the order of receipt of their entry form and fee.

To request an entry form and set of rules write to Minnesota $100,000 Classic, 17701 Leeman Drive, Minnetonka, MN 55343, or call 612-473-2143.

DAIRY FEEDING TIPS

Forage Feeding Facts

Dairy cows are unique animals that can consume forages, inedible by man, and turn them into a high quality, delicious source of nutrients — milk.

But today's dairy farmers don't just turn cows out to pasture and hope they eat enough grass to meet their needs. Dairymen have discovered ways to increase the productivity of their herds by chopping forages into bite-sized bits and then fermenting them in silos. This process of ensiling makes for high quality feeds which are easy to handle.

But successful feeding of chopped, fermented forages is not as easy as it sounds, says Dr. Howard J. Larsen, dairy scientist at the University of Wisconsin-Marshfield.

"Dairymen must follow complete inventory control in terms of the quality and quantity of the ensiled feedstuffs," Larsen continues. "For best results, dairymen must strive for consistency in quality throughout the silo."

This consistency is often difficult to achieve, however, because of variable weather and field conditions. For this reason, Larsen emphasizes the need for an ongoing nutrient testing program, with special attention paid to protein content of the ration.

Fiber content is also a concern, especially when forages are chopped finely for good fermentation. These relatively low fiber feeds pass through the digestive system rapidly, Larsen says. As a result, the animal spends less time chewing her cud, producing less saliva.

Saliva contains sodium bicarbonate which neutralizes rumen acids. So, when chewing time is reduced, excess acids can accumulate and reduce milk and butterfat production.

"This reduced salivation probably occurs several times a year, and we never can be sure when it will happen," Larsen says. That's why he recommends sodium bicarbonate as a routine addition to ensiled rations which contain no dry ingredients.

"If you can guarantee that, day after day, the herd is receiving optimum fiber and forage length, sodium bicarbonate may not be necessary," he explains. "But when there is variation, sodium bicarb is a good insurance policy to maintain proper rumen pH and digestion with ensiled feeds."

Larsen recommends that sodium bicarbonate be mixed in the ration so that each cow receives four to six ounces per day.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Something has been happening to our country and its people. It has taken place quietly and slowly, so that we have not really recognized it. It may be the most significant change that has happened in a long time. And it affects every single one of us.

Years ago transactions were sealed with a handshake. Years ago people always told the truth. Years ago people were kind to one another. Years ago people helped one another. Years ago the idea of creating a hurtful rumor, "stabbing" someone in the back, or being unfair was something you just didn't do. Years ago it was common to turn off the lights in a parked car where the owner had left them on and the car was unlocked. Years ago if someone made a mistake, it was the thoughtful thing to do to let them know, so the mistake could be corrected.

Today, the smiling face of a "friend" or neighbor or co-worker can be a mask for a jealous and small individual's efforts to cut someone else down to his size for the purpose of making the "cutter" feel a bit bigger. There are even those who enjoy seeing someone else suffer. Of course, as the suffering occurs, and the sufferer needs help, it is not uncommon for everyone to just pass that individual by.

There was a time when we "felt" for one another, when we listened to each other, and when we offered to be helpful and really meant it. There was a time when we gave people the benefit of the doubt and they were innocent until proven guilty. There was a time when, in the proving, you had to have hard facts, not hearsay. There was a time when you had to give the accused a chance to defend himself before assuming the accused was guilty.

No one can tell me that they believe in a Supreme Being, a God, or have a solid religious feelings, who does things, intentionally, to hurt others. In fact, cutting up another human being, stabbing another human being in the back, and creating and passing on rumors that will injure, is not something someone with a conscience and a belief in an Ultimate Judgement could endure.

In this age of the unbeliever and the individual with no conscience and a big imagination, every deal involves contracts of long length loaded with technicalities for easy evasion of responsibilities. There are individuals who lie better than they can tell the truth. And a good many of our people thrive on gossip and rumors, the juicier the better.

There is a new morality spreading like an epidemic, and it is affecting our desire to do what is right and be fair and kind to one another. Instead of working things out together in this imperfect world, we all seem to want to inflict pain and suffering, if we can. We are driving our people into mental institutions or the need for outpatient care at an ever increasing rate.

Recently I was called about a rumor. I found that there was no basis for the rumor, so someone for some purpose had started that rumor.

An individual spent time telling me of a recent job offer at three times his current wage. The man is in financial need, yet he said he wasn't taking the job. I would like to believe his story, even if it isn't true, because he has a need to make me believe it.

Another individual, sitting with me, mentioned that he had someone negotiating a deal for him, reporting progress daily. He later discovered that his negotiator was stabbing him in the back for personal advantage. Backstabbing is much easier when the individual being stabbed is unaware that the knife is coming.

Wouldn't it be nicer to know that what you hear is the truth, that you can trust the people with whom you live and work, and that folks you know will not spread gossip and rumors that can kill? Wouldn't it be better for us to be fairer with one another, giving each other the benefit of the doubt until we have heard the other side of the story? Wouldn't it be wonderful to live in a world with less deceit and dishonesty?

That's Straight Talk!

Schools Honored For Energy Effort

Four school districts in northwester Minnesota are double winners in a statewide competition to save energy, according to the Minnesota department of energy, planning and development.

First, each school district wins a cash award. Second, the schools win because they cut energy costs by thousands of dollars.

But perhaps the biggest winners are local taxpayers. Energy savings result in money for teachers' salaries, textbook and supplies without increasing taxes.

Winning districts in northwestern Minnesota are Bagley, East Grand Forks, Gonvick-Trail and Hallock.

Winners received cash prizes donated by Northern State Power (NSP) and certificates signed by Governor Perpich at a superintendents' meeting in Wilton last week. NSP issued $10,000 in prize money, to be distributed throughout the state.

All Minnesota school districts will again have a chance to receive recognition for cutting energy costs. Total energy management (TEM) for Minnesota schools program, developed by the Minnesota energy division, will continue during the 1983-84 school year.

To cut their energy costs, the East Grand Forks school district set a goal to reduce energy use by 30 per cent. An initial step in reducing energy use was to establish an energy accounting system to record use and cost of fuels. Energy cost savings for a one-month trial period (January 15 to February 15) were $17,561.

In addition to well-known conservation measures, the district installed a used oil burner heater in the district bus barn. Used crank case oil serves as the heating fuel rather than natural gas.

Although comparison figures for the school year are not yet available, it appears that the district goal to cut energy use by 30 per cent will be reached.

The Hallock school district decided to combat costs without cutting education programs.

Familiar methods to increase the energy efficiency of buildings were carried out. These include insulating roof and wall areas, using ceiling fans to push warm air down in the gymnasium, and controlling the boiler system to maintain peak efficiency.

Gonvick-Trail is a leader in exploring renewable energy sources. A solid fuel burner was installed and experimental burning is underway of solid fuels such as briquettes, wood pellets, sunflower seed hulls, jojoba bean casings and marigold petals.

The Gonvick-Trail record of energy savings is already $16,894. In addition, due to a willingness to experiment, pellets are now delivered from less than a mile away, cutting delivery costs by 98 per cent.

For their creative approach toward energy conservation, Gonvick-Trail community schools also received runner-up honors in the engery saver's award of excellence competition this spring.

The Bagley school district explored more unconventional ways to save energy.

The district is actively involved in the Bagley alternative energy project which proposes installing a boiler plant to use the biomass residue from a local mill and logging operation. The school district would be part of the resulting district heating system.

However, by completing familiar energy efficient measures such as adding insulation and turning down thermostats, the Bagley district has shown fuel oil savings of approximately $58,500.

Further information about the winning school districts or the 1983-84 TEM program is available from Fred Rohde, Director, NW Minnesota Educational Cooperative Service Unit, Box 390, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Local Guard To Train In California

Minnesota army national guard second battalion 136th infantry, headquartered in Moorhead, has been selected to participate in a three-week training program with the active army first infantry division from April 19 to May 8, 1984 at the Army's national training center (NTC) at Fort Irwin, CA. It was chosen because of its achievement of 101.6 per cent of authorized strength and its outstanding training posture.

The 2-136th, with subordinate units in Wadena, Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Crookston, Bemidji, Park Rapids and Detroit Lakes, is a "roundout" battalion for the first division, headquartered at Ft. Riley, KS. "Roundout" means that the unit would become an organic part of the division in the event of a national emergency.

Ft. Irwin is the Army's largest military training site, with thousands of miles of rolling, arid desert terrain. Units stationed there full-time, function as the opposing or aggressor troops — called OPFOR forces — and are among the best trained in the army.

"This is a real honor that has been bestowed upon the Minnesota guard and this fine battalion," Major General James G. Sieben, adjutant general, said. "The, 807 members of the 2-136th will get the the experience of a lifetime and witness, first hand, how a large-scale combined arms team functions."

RLF Church To Host Speaker June 12-13-14

Miss Sheila Broderick, originally from London, England and a resident of the United States since 1956, will speak in Red Lake Falls on June 12, 13 and 14. She has previously spoken at a Crookston conference ALCW retreat and at Wesley United Methodist church in Crookston.

Miss Broderick will speak Sunday, June 12, at 9 a.m. and June 12, 13 and 14 evenings at 7:30 p.m. at Bethany. Her theme will be "Wholeness in Christ."

After 14 years in the business world, Miss Broderick began a ministry of counseling. "The first phase of the ministry was to work with drug addicts in the Twin Cities," she said. "From there the ministry extended to prison visitation and counseling with emotionally hurt and wounded people, some in hospitals, others through clinics."

MnDOT Opens Road Bids In Polk Co.

Minnesota department of transportation announced that bids will be open for a federal aid project in Polk county.

Improvements call for plant-mixed bituminous surfacing and aggregate shoulders on 6.5 miles of CSAH 6 between CSAH 35 and TH 92, one mile west of Trail.

Bids will be received until 1:30 p.m., Wednesday, June 15, by county auditor Lawrence H. Fontaine at the Polk county courthouse in Crookston.

Area Employers Hire Youth At 50% Savings

Some area employers are saving half of the wages paid to young workers under a special federal summer on-the-job training program.

Mary Lou Harthun, youth programs director, Inter-County community council, Oklee, said that employers have hired 65 young people under this incentive program and the program is available to additional employers.

"Employers are hiring summer help for as little as $1.68 an hour under our program," Harthun said. The training program reimburses employers for up to 50 per cent of wages paid to youth workers during the training period.

To qualify for the wage reimbursement, employers must hire youth who meet program guidelines. Inter-County community council, which serves employers in Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties, will refer qualifying youths to the employer for interviews.

For more information, contact Harthun at Inter-County Community Council, P.O. Box 187, Oklee, MN 56742, phone (218) 796-5144.

Highway 1 To Be Closed For 24-Mile Area

Highway 1 will be closed to through traffic between highway 89 at Red Lake and Highway 72 at Busy Corner — a distance of about 24 miles — starting June 1, according to Paul Grand, resident engineer for the Minnesota Department of transportation.

The section will remain closed for about one month and through traffic will have to use alternate routes during this period.

The road closure is necessary because of several subcuts along the entire section and three bridge replacements between county road 15 and highway 72, Grand said. Work at these locations will be scheduled so that local access to points along highway 1 is maintained at all times.

Laurie Richter Admitted To Grad Program

Laurie (Achenbach) Richter, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Achenbach of Thief River Falls, has been awarded a University of Illinois fellowship and teaching assistantship at Urbana-Champaign.

Laurie will be admitted to the genetics and development area of specialization of the biology Ph.D. program this fall. As one of the top-ranked applicants to the program, she will receive a tax-free stipened of $4,400 (which requires no services) and a waiver of tuition and service fees for both semesters of the academic year and the 1984 summer session, valued at over $5,000.

In addition, the department will pay the $90 per semester health insurance and health service fee and she will be permitted to select from either a half-time or quarter-time teaching assistantship at a minimum of either $5,000 or $2,500 for the academic year. Combined value of the fellowship, tuition and fee waiver and half-time assistantship will be at least $14,740 for the first year.

She will also be assured of subsequent assistantship support during subsequent years providing she makes satisfactory progress in the doctoral program, performs satisfactorily as a teaching assistant and maintains a grade point average of 4.0 on a 5.0 scale. Duties as a half-time assistant would require up to 20 hours per week, including six to eight contact hours in a laboratory or discussion section, plus preparation time, paper grading and lecture attendance.

William L. Daniel, who chairs the graduate committee at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, noted in his letter to Laurie that "the competition for admission to graduate school is extremely keen and you are to be congratulated for your high level of achievement."

Sr. Placid Ends 58-Year Career

by Julie Easton
Times Reporter

Sister Placid Paul, after teaching music in Thief River Falls for 30 years, will retire this week. Leaving one vocation, she will accept any new challenges or duties that await her at Mount St. Benedict's in Crookston.

Open house honoring Sister Placid will be held Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. in the St. Bernard's basement. All friends, relatives, former students and the public are invited to attend. No invitations have been sent.

Giggling is interspersed with conversation when speaking with Sr. Placid. In these last few days she is busy cleaning her music rooms and deciding what to do with three rooms full of a life-time of gathering. She will have to convert it all to fit the one room she will live in at the Mount.

Spending 30 years in Thief River Falls, Sr. Placid has been teaching music since 1925. She commented, "I was here way back in '29 for one year."

In the early years, she traveled with another teacher by train from headquarters in Crookston to Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks. "I think the train stopped at every telephone post along the way," she joked.

Sr. Placid also taught at Crookston, Bemidji, Detroit Lakes and Moorhead. Citing piano, organ, violin and viola as her areas of expertise, Sr. Placid notes that she has taught almost all stringed instruments in individual or group form.

"I used to teach at Middle River and Greenbush once a week," she stated. Asked if that wasn't a bit tiring, she related, "Oh, it was much easier for me to go there than for them to all get here."

At one point in her career, Sr. Placid instructed 90 students a week. Out of curiosity, she checked her records and discovered that between 25 and 30 former students have pursued music as a career.

Music was a part of Sr. Placid's life from the beginning. "I loved music and decided to study it," she stated, "In about second grade I had a school teacher that would teach me on the piano.

"I did think about being a nurse," she confided, "but, at that time, they were short of music teachers." After high school she attended the Sherwood Music Conservatory, Chicago, IL.

As a child, Sr. Placid lived in the Crookston area, except for intermittent moves. During World War I her father, a railroad man, was stationed on the Iron Range and once the family lived in Coeur d'Alene, ID.

In high school, she took

30 YEARS OF TEACHING music in the Thief River Falls and a total of 58 years of teaching will end this week for Sister Placid Paul when she retires from her duties. She will soon be residing at Mount St. Benedict's in Crookston where new challenges await her. Public is invited to attend an open house for Sr. Placid from 7 to 9 p.m. in St. Bernard's basement.

Legislators Assess '83 Session Politics, Issues

Special to the Times
by Jim Robins
Northern Star News Service

In the hectic, final days of Minnesota's 1983 legislative session lawmakers shared their views on the progress made — or lack of it — this year.

The big topics of discussion haven't changed from the early going when the questions raised included:

+ How big will the two year budget be?

+ What will the tax package be?

+ Will there be workers' compensation reform?

Legislators talked about these issues and some of their own high and low points of the session in their final days of deliberation in St. Paul.

They also discussed partisanship and its role in forming this year's legislative action. That issue was raised late last year when former Gov. Al Quie listed partisanship as the most divisive influence in the lawmaking process.

Rep. Wallace Sparby of Thief River Falls feels the partisanship issue has been overblown. "There has been a lot of good bi-partisan legislation," he said.

He isn't at all afraid to point to the success of the "Wood Tick" faction, of which he is a member. "We had to force the issue," Sparby said, referring to workers' compensation reform.

Although the outlook appeared bleak for major reform at the time he spoke, Sparby said, "I still feel we've done what we could."

Personally, Sparby pointed to his authorship of three pieces of legislation. Permanent transfer of the soil conservation service from natural resources to agriculture supervision is "a great step forward for farmers," he said.

Sparby also pushed through fertilizer manufacturer regulation designed to cut out fly-by-night operators and maintained funding for the Lower Red Lake river watershed board.

Pennington, Roseau Co. Bids Open

Bids on trunk highway maintenance work, estimated at $4 million, for 20 projects, including two projects in Pennington and Roseau counties, will be received until 9:30 a.m., Friday, June 10 by the Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT) at the state transportation building in St. Paul.

In Pennington county, on trunk highway one, work calls for production and stockpiling of mineral aggregate at a pit four miles north of Dorothy. To begin July 18, work is to be completed within 30 working days.

In Roseau county, bids are for bituminous surfacing on 2.1 miles of trunk highway 89 between the south county line and a point 2.1 miles north. Work is scheduled to begin July 5 and be completed within 10 working days.

MOOSE RIVER PROJECT now underway by the Red Lake watershed district will be the largest watershed project in the state of Minnesota, providing control of water from a 125-square-mile drainage area and creating a pool having a total storage capacity of 54,000 acre feet of water. Gate-controlled storage capacity will be 29,500 acre feet including a multi-purpose pool which normally varies in volume from 2,600 to 6,000 acre feet. Total cost of the project has been placed at $3 million. This Times photo shows the Moose river flowing westward toward the bottom of the picture. The cleared area crossing the center of the photo horizontally will be part of the 16 miles of dike included in the project. The Moose river will be the main outlet for the north pool in the divided project. The south pool area will be developed in phase one which is now underway. Three contractors were awarded dragline bids at a letting May 26 and are now at work.

Work Now Underway On State's Largest Watershed Project

Largest watershed project in the state of Minnesota is now under construction northeast of Grygla where the Moose River project is being built by the Red Lake watershed district. The $3 million project, which is expected to take about three years to complete, will have 16 miles of dike, create two impoundments with up to 54,000 acre feet of water storage and control drainage water from a 125 square mile area.

Funding for the huge project includes $1,500,000 allocated from the Minnesota capital improvements bonding bill passed in the 1980-81 session of the legislature. The grant was strongly supported by northwestern Minnesota legislators and received bi-partisan support including approval by Gov. Al Quie. The Lower Red River watershed management board will provide $1,000,000 toward the project and $500,000 will come from the Red Lake watershed district. Expenditure will be about $1 million per year.

The project will benefit from a slack period in the construction business as competition has been keen among contractors for work on the project. But the area will benefit from the money being spent on construction of the dikes and outlet control structures to be provided.

Radniecki and Jensen Construction company of Thief River Falls was the low bidder among 26 contractors offering 96 bulldozers on a contract for clearing 23 miles of right-of-way last winter. Work was done during the period from January 6 through March 30.

On May 26 contracts were let to three contractors for dragline work on dike and outlet ditch construction. A total of 40 draglines was offered in the bids submitted. Successful bidders were Holthusen Construction company of Grygla, Madoll Brothers of Plummer and McDonagh and Johnson of Grygla and Bemidji.

Plans and specifications have been prepared for the outlet structure on phase one of the project — the south pool which will outlet through a ditch into the Mud river. Bid opening for the structure has been set for June 24 and the work is to be done this summer, part of the $1 million which is programmed for expenditure this year.

Dividing the area into two pools serves two purposes. It meets with approval of the department of natural resources for wildlife management and takes into consideration potential difficulty by the state in bonding to provide its allocated funding.

Charles Anderson, district hydrologist, notes that the south pool will serve about two-thirds of the watershed area and therefore have two-thirds of the flood storage capacity. Transfer of waters from the south to the north pool will be possible at later stages of the project.

Water control structures have been designed to provide for 200 cubic feet per second flow at both the outlet to the Moose river on the west side of the north pool and to the Mud river at the south side of the south pool. There is no channel improvement considered necessary on the Moose river, according to the engineering report, while the Mud river outlet channel will be improved for about six miles downstream.

While the primary purpose of the project is to reduce flood damages by impounding waters in the upper reaches of the watershed, other significant benefits are also provided. Wildlife and associated recreational benefits will be enhanced on

Disaster Loans For Pennington And Red Lake

Celso C. Moreno, district director for the Small Business administration (SBA), announced recently that economic injury disaster loans are available to eligible small business concerns in Pennington and Red Lake counties in Minnesota, whose businesses were affected by the impact on farm income as a result of excessive rain, cool temperatures, strong winds, hail, frost and heavy wet snow occurring May 1 through Dec. 2, 1982.

An economic injury disaster loan is made by SBA to small businesses which have sustained substantial economic injury as a direct result of the physical disaster. Purpose of the loan is to permit businesses to meet financial obligations which could have been met had the disaster not occurred.

Economic injury disaster loans are working capital loans and are made only to provide relief from economic injury caused directly by the disaster and to permit the business to maintain a reasonable working capital position during the period affected by the disaster. SBA cannot authorize the refinancing of long-term debts nor provide working capital which was needed prior to the disaster.

Businesses must be able to furnish balance sheets and operating statements so that SBA may compare results preceding the disaster with those since and during the disaster period. No economic injury disaster assistance will be made to a business which does not meet SBA's definition of a small business or is determined by SBA to be able to obtain credit elsewhere.

Lincoln Class Of 1923 Notes 60th Anniversary

Blue and yellow streamers, the 1923 Lincoln high school class colors, graced the tables at Lon's on Wednesday, May 25, for the class's 60th anniversary.

Attending the dinner, in addition to those pictured in Monday's paper, were classmates, Ruth Shefveland and Russell Anderson, both of Thief River Falls. Also present were Ed Haug, Karlstad, and Bert Lendobeja, Adam Lendobeja and Norman Voldness, all of Thief River Falls.

Geneva Overum welcomed the group and also read the article "You're only as old as you feel," and Esther Larson Best read an original poem. The classmates introduced themselves by giving a brief resume of their lives.

Following a minute's silent tribute to classmates who had died before 1973, Clara Voldness read the names: Myrtle Helgeland, Ernest Barzen, Pearl Weeks, Irvin Myrin, Steve Arneson, Conrad Hovie, Bert Raymond Gordon, Wildeavene Denhart, Ida Wagner, Lucy Philips, Charles Herron, Forest Ralston, Milfred LaBree, and Sophie Solheim.

Caroline Hansen read the list of those who had died since 1973. Listed were Pearl Waring, Anna Harder, Clara Lien, Raymond Muzzy, Harvey Norby, Viola Buringrud, Linda Koglin, Allison Stitt, Clara Thompson, Myrtle Kraus, James Votava, Alice Jahr, Hilda Engen and Henry Vorlicky.

A letter from Albert Stengelson, who was unable to attend the reunion, was read by Mrs. Hansen. Greetings were also extended from a number of other classmates who were unable to attend.

It was noted that Elsie Buringrud and her husband Ed Haug and Clara Ostmo and her husband Norman Voldness had been married 57 years; that Josie Lendobeja and Bert Johnson and Mabel Jacobson and Adam Lendobeja had celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1980; and that Olive Lonson and her husband Leon Kahlier, Bemidji, will be observing their 50th anniversary in August of this year.

Prizes were given to Esther Larson Best of Minnetonka, for coming the greatest distance, to Clara Voldness for having the most grandchildren (11); and to Josie Johnson for having the most great-grandchildren (14). Mrs. Johnson also received the prize in the cake naming contest.

The 1923 class included about 80 graduates. This included post graduates, who had completed the Normal Teacher's Training course in their senior year. This was the last class allowed to take the teacher's training course in the senior year.

It was also noted that the 1923 class was the first class to wear the caps and gowns, the traditional blue and yellow. Their class motto was "Character is above genius," and their class flower was the American Beauty rose.

Yellow daffodils and yellow candles with bluebirds graced the tables for the dinner. Several favors graced each place setting.

The reunion concluded by everyone joining hands and singing, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." The next reunion was scheduled for 1988.

Annual Memorial Services Held At Satesdal

"Living for Jesus," was the theme of the annual Memorial Day services held Sunday afternoon at the Setesdal Lutheran church, rural Thief River Falls.

Rev. Les Galland, pastor of Our Saviours Lutheran church, gave the message, based on II Chron. 7:14. He said "that although we are living in troubled times and there are many things lacking in our country, we are thankful for freedom of speech, and worship. Physical death is going to come. When that time comes, may we all be ready, joined with Jesus, living for Him and trusting Him fully every day."

The meeting began with the hymns: "Faith of Our Fathers," "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms," "Praise Him, Praise Him," and "I Will Sing of My Redeemer," with Mrs. Roger Ose as pianist.

Reuben Wold was in charge of Scripture and prayer, reading II Peter 1:10-15. An original poem about the history of the Satesdal church was read by Mrs. Edwin Anderson. Musical selections were a vocal solo, "Only a Touch of Thy Hand," by Mrs. Les Galland; trumpet solos: "So Send I You," and "Red River Valley" by Scott Ose and Jenne Ose, respectively; a saxophone solo," Themes," by Daniel Ose, and a piano solo, "Gliding," by Lars Ose. At the conclusion of the program, everyone joined hands and sang "God be with You till We Meet Again."

A potluck lunch and social hour followed. The offering was designated for the upkeep of the church and cemetery.

Work Started On Largest Watershed

the site by water retained in the large summer pool. Water will be released during the open water months to maintain flow in the rivers downstream, and fire control ability in the area will be improved.

The Moose and Mud rivers, whose headwaters are included in the project, flow into the Thief river which joins the Red Lake river at Thief River Falls. The Red Lake river is a major tributary of the Red River of the North which experiences frequent spring flood problems.

The Moose river system includes about 210 miles of drainage channels and the Mud river system includes about 455 miles of channels. Diking is being constructed entirely on state land and most of the contributing watershed area is also state land, managed as part of the Beltrami Island state forest and Red Lake game refuge. It is primarily wetland with interspersed aspen groves, tamarack and plantations of spruce.

Main dam alignment is 12 miles long and will have a maximum height of 15 feet. Approximately four miles of dam will be built to separate the north and south pools. Gate-controlled water storage capacity is 29,500 acre feet. Storage capacity at the emergency spillway elevation is 36,000 acre feet and the total storage capacity is 54,000 acre feet at the freeboard elevation of 1219 feet. Elevation at the top of the dam is 1219.5 feet.

Diversion ditches bring in 57 square miles of the total 125 square mile drainage area. North diversion ditch is 4.2 miles long and brings in water from north of the Moose River road. South diversion is 4.6 miles long and brings in water from as far south as Fourtown. Dikes constructed of ditch spoil are on the downstream side of both diversion ditches. Overflow spillways are included along the diversions to allow water to pass to the existing ditched downstream whenever the diversion ditch capacity is exceeded.

Outlet into the Moose river has a two-stage principal spillway. The first stage consists of four 36-inch gates with capacity sufficient to provide flexibility of operation and accommodate future modifications in design or operation. The second stage is 120 feet of weir at 1,216.8 feet of elevation, with a one-foot wide stoplog bay included for stream flow maintenance. River channel downstream is considered adequate to carry the required 200 cubic feet per second discharge capacity.

Outlet into the Mud river system is similar with the same first stage principal spillway. Second stage includes 90 feet of weir at 1,216.8 feet of elevation and a one-foot wide stoplog bay. Mud river outlet channel is to be improved for six miles downstream.

Three emergency sod spillways will be constructed at 1,217.5 feet of elevation — one on the Moose river system and two on the Mud river system. Spring pool size is expected to be about 3,400 acres in size and the winter pool about 1,900 acres in size.

Engineer Anderson points out that the Thief Lake state wildlife management area and the Agassiz national wildlife refuge provide up to 90,000 acre feet of gate controlled spring flood water storage and 67,000 acre feet of summer flood storage. Moose River project storage should be delayed until the flood storage capacities of Thief Lake and Agassiz are sufficiently restored.

Operation and maintenance of the project will be conducted by the Red Lake watershed district and a local gate keeper will be hired by the district to manipulate the outlet controls as required under supervision of the district engineer. Estimated annual cost of operation, maintenance and repair has been placed at $20,000.

The project will require an estimated 2,703,000 cubic yards of earth moving for channel improvement, embankment and diversion ditches.

Sister Placid Ends 58-Year Music Career

classes at the Mount, liked the way of life of the sisters, and decided to enter the convent.

"Actually, way before that I asked my grandmother one Easter what she would think if I became a sister and she said, 'I never expected such a blessing in the family.' "

Sr. Placid is content with both her decision to become a music teacher and to become a nun.

Her favorite part of teaching is "contact with children and the influence and private one-to-one relationship." When working with one instrument individually, it is easy for the student to confide in the teacher, Sr. Placid notes.

"I like to teach beginners because you can see the growth and they are so enthusiastic. It is nice to see students grow in their interests," Sr. Placid added.

Typically, "kids that don't practice" are about the only thing Sr. Placid didn't like about teaching.

Sr. Placid's birth name is Aurora Paul. In her day, when women took their vows, they were not allowed to choose their own names, but one was given to them. Of course, this was a source of anticipation and excitement for the candidates.

"I said I didn't care what name I got as long as it wasn't a boy's name and out of ten I was the only one who did get a boy's name!" she commented. Saint Placid was one of the first two disciples of St. Benedict who founded the Benedictine order to which Sr. Placid belongs.

Her favorite things about being a sister are the companionship with other sisters and prayer life.

Retirement for one called to a religious vocation doesn't really mean that one will be out of commission.

"Retirement really means change," Sr. Placid said, "I won't be watching the clock for students any more." Yet, she will accept any new responsibilities at her new home at the Mount.

She chose to be stationed at the Mount because her mother, who will be 95 this summer, is located in a home near there.

Sr. Placid has been the organist at several parishes and she has also helped with the liturge in a number of places. For 16 years she worked in Crookston with the migrant program.

She has seen many changes in the world and the church and generally feels that they have been for the good. She is particularly praiseworthy of the change from Latin to English.

"In English you know what you're talking about. When you chant from side to side in Latin you concentrate too much on the language and not what you're saying," she said, "It's good to clean house every once in awhile."

English made her job much easier also because she had to teach all music in Latin before the change to English.

Sr. Placid looks forward to enjoying her hobbies of crocheting, tatting, macrame, stamp collecting and sewing during her retirement. She also plans to read, listen to music and walk.

"I'll miss not teaching," she commented, "I'll miss the children."

Sr. Placid will also be missed, but it is certain that her talents will not be wasted in her new situation.

Legislators Assess 1983 Session Work

passed is something Sparby learned about in his first year in the Legislature. "The system operates differently than what we anticipated from the outside. You have to learn to work cooperatively with other legislators," he said.

Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer feels the Legislature hasn't been as partisan this year. "It helps to have a governor on your side," he said. Stumpf also notes that there isn't as much of a need for partisan posturing just after an election.

Stumpf had to do some political balancing in the last week of the session as one of only a few Senate DFLers voting against the agriculture minimum pricing bill and as a moderate conferee on mortgage moratorium. Proponents of a strong moratorium bill opposed his appointment as one of the six legislators writing the final bill.

"The stand I took this year on that issue was one of balancing business, economic development and my own interest in agriculture," he said.

Stumpf feels the bill is strong and may become permanent, extending the time period allowed for paying up delinquencies on first mortgages beyond a year, instead of only four months.

A big part of legislative action is taken in response to proposals made by Gov. Rudy Perpich. The governor put forward a $9.8 billion state budget which was largely accepted by DFLers.

He also got support within his own party for his tax proposals, although some suburban and rural legislators balked at property tax and local aid formulas aiming aid at larger cities.

However, suburban and rural legislators forced action on workers' comp based largely on proposals backed by Perpich. Many legislators felt the success of the session rested on whether significant workers' comp was passed this year. Businesses had been pressing for changes that would reduce Minnesota premiums.

DETECTION of leaks in natural gas lines is the job which Diane Little, left, and Paula Medich have been hired to do by Inter-City Gas Company. Both of the girls are from Cloquet, and will be spending approximately three to four weeks in Thief River Falls, walking the routes of all underground gas lines owned by the company, using the electronic sensing device carried by Diane to determine if any leaks have occurred. Starting on the west side of the city, the girls will be covering five to 10 miles of lines each day, working their way to the east side. Although it is Paula's first summer at the job, this is Diane's third year of conducting the survey, and she asked that residents keep their dogs tied away from the lines so that they do not interfere with their work. Inter-City Gas has approximately 40 miles of underground lines within the city.

Land Bank Has Slight Drop In Interest Rate

Federal land bank (FLB) of St. Paul has notified its approximately 75,000 member-borrowers in Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin who have variable rate loans that the bank's interest rate will drop one-half of one per cent to 11.25 for farm loans and 11.75 per cent for rural housing loans, effective July 1.

Rate change was made possible, according to St. Paul FLB president Roger Schlader, by continued stability in the credit markets and this impact on the cost of funds to the bank. "The bank's expectation that the rates will remain fairly stable and perhaps even moderate further, was also considered in the pricing decision," said Schlader in making the announcement.

He added that the rate reduction was in keeping with the St. Paul bank's pricing philosophy of responding to and anticipating general market rates, thereby keeping its rates as competitive as possible. Schlader pointed to the increased significance of the reduction when combined with the bank's rate reduction on January 1, of ¾ of one per cent.

VA Plans To Improve Area Facilities

Veterans Administration recently announced major plans designed to improve delivery of health care services.

In this area, VA administrator Harry N. Walters said the VA plans to establish nursing home bed services at its medical centers in Lincoln, NB and Madison, WI, and psychiatry bed services at VA medical centers in Fargo, ND, Grand Island, NB; and Iron Mountain, MI.

In making the announcement, Walters said the planned expansions are part of medical district initiated program planning (MEDIPP) established by the agency in 1981. Under this grass roots planning effort, VA assesses current VA medical facility missions and recommends adjustments which will better serve health care needs of veterans.

Announcement represents the first set of plans from VA's 28 medical districts reflecting projections of medical care needs up to 1990. Walters said that all actions taken to implement the proposed plans will be consistent with existing laws and VA policy. In some instances, he said, approval by the President and Congress may be required before implementation.

Planned expansions announced by the VA head included 26 nursing home units, 13 psychiatric units, four rehabiliation facilities, two spinal cord injury units and one neurology service. He also announced plans to establish domiciliaries (veterans' homes) in seven new areas and to activate outpatient clinics in two new locations.

As part of the overall plan, it was also proposed to close surgical bed services at Batavia, WY.; Bonham, TX, Livermore, CA and Poplar Bluff, MT, as well as psychiatry bed services at Livermore and Poplar Bluff.

"In making our decision on these plans, our first and primary concern was how best to care for and meet the future medical needs of our veterans, and I sincerely feel we have done that," Walters said.

Mrs. Marvin Honored By Library Ass'n.

Margaret Marvin, Warroad, was one of the two librarians and two outstanding citizens honored by the Minnesota library association for service to Minnesota libraries. Awards were presented May 13 at the association's annual conference in St. Paul.

Marvin was the recipient of a certificate of merit which is awarded to citizens, libraries or groups who have made a noteworthy contribution to library services in Minnesota.

She is the chairman of the department of education subcommittee on libraries.

BSU Upward Bound Receives More Money

Bemidji state university upward bound program received an eight per cent increase in funding, according to Barry Yocom, director of the BSU project.

Yocom was notified May 9 by a grants negotiator for the U.S. department of education that they have been recommended for expanded funding for the three year period beginning with 1983.

Increase is due to $4.5 million boost nationally, with the BSU project receiving a budget hike comparable to programs across the country.

Upward bound is a federal program designed to improve academic skills and encourage motivation in high school students from families with low-income or parents who have not received a four-year degree from a college or university.

Summer component of the program includes six weeks of classes such as English, math, computer science and social studies. Housed on university campuses in living and learning situations, students also choose courses from a list of electives including photography, art, journalism and swimming.

BSU upward bound program begins its summer agenda June 12. While this is upward bound's 17th year in the Bemidji area, there are some changes in the program.

"Upward bound will become more college preparatory in nature this year, rather than remedial," explained Yocom. "A second significant change is that our program is now linked with the Congressional award program for which Bemidji is one of the statewide pilot communities.

Congressional award is a program which compliments the upward bound project in that both organizations encourage youth to strive toward personal achievement. Those students displaying these characteristics are recognized on a national level.

Bemidji upward bound - Congressional award link is the first of its kind in the nation. For more information on the project, contact Barry Yocom, director, BSU Upward Bound Program, Sanford Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, phone (218) 755-2092.

State Patrol Imposters Are Selling Ads

Several magazine publication sales representatives have been erroneously identifying themselves as state troopers while selling advertising to Minnesota businesses, Col. Roger Ledding, state patrol chief, said recently.

"We in the state patrol do not solicit advertising for any magazine nor do we endorse anyone to represent us in doing so," said Ledding.

"Unfortunately, many business people who are being called on to advertise in these magazines are buying ads because they support police services. We appreciate their support but we want them to know their advertising dollars are not supporting any of our activites or programs if they buy the ads," Ledding said.

Ledding urges any business that is contacted by any sales representative posing as a state trooper to contact the nearest patrol district office or a local trooper. "We want the business people to know exactly where their advertising dollars are being spent and at the same time we want to stop disreputable people from preying on businesses that support us."

UM Conference On Hazardous Waste Held

Hazardous waste problem in Minnesota and potential long-term solutions for it were the topics of a May 23 public conference, "Searching for Solutions," sponsored by the Minnesota waste management board and the University of Minnesota at the Earle Brown center on the University's St. Paul campus.

Attended by 200 citizens and officials from around the state, the conference was conducted to enable citizens to assist the waste management board in developing comprehensive state hazardous waste management policies.

These policies will be recommended in the state's hazardous waste management plan, to be proposed by the board to the legislature in November. The plan will estimate the types and volumes of hazardous waste expected to be generated in the state through the remainder of the century, and will recommend specific policies, measures and technologies to reduce, recycle and safely dispose of Minnesota's hazardous wastes.

Conference opened with a general panel session on the hazardous waste issue moderated by John Finnegan, editor of the "St. Paul Pioneer Press-Dispatch". The session included presentations by James Coleman of the Minnesota association of commerce and industry (MACI); John Herman, a Minneapolis attorney; Fred Hart, president of a national environmental consulting firm; Bill McAllister, a reporter on environmental and energy issues for the "St. Cloud Times"; and Michael Miller, project manager of chemical waste operations for Browning-Ferris Industries, Inc., of Houston, TX.

Four concurrent, smaller panel sessions followed:

— Panel on the costs of hazardous waste management to industry, businesses, taxpayers, consumers, and the state moderated by Peter Fausch, a public policy and planning consultant featuring Dr. Brett Smith of the Minnesota public interest research group (MPIRG) and Dr. Russ Susag of the 3M corporation.

—Discussion on protection of the environment and public safety moderated by Curt Beckmann, WCCO-AM radio news director highlighted by presentations from Coleman, Miller, Dale Wikre of the Minnesota pollution control agency (PCA), and David Crain of community league for environmentally acceptable neighborhoods (CLEAN), a citizens group in Plymouth.

—Panel on the need for long-term safeguards in managing hazardous wastes, as well as liability for such wastes moderated by William Mitchell law school professor Marcia' Gelpe and featuring G. Robert Johnson, a Minneapolis attorney; William Mahoney, a hazardous waste facility insurance broker from New York, and Rep. Dee Long, co-author of Minnesota's superfund law.

—Discussion of measures to develop and promote technologies serving as alternatives to the land-disposal of hazardous wastes moderated by Robert Willis, chairman of the board's hazardous waste management planning council and featuring presentations by Hart, Carole Ann Barth of citizens for a better environment, Judy Kane of the Washington D.C. publication "Hazardous Waste Report", and Dan Shuster of the Twin Cities area resource recovery task force.

"The conference was an important element in the waste management board's efforts to develop sound policies for future management of hazardous wastes in Minnesota," said board chairman Robert Dunn. "The hazardous waste problem is truly a statewide issue, and the board's decisions could affect many people and interests throughout the state from consumers and taxpayers to small businesses and large industries.

"In discussions at the conference, citizens focused on important policies the board may recommend to the legislature later this year," he added.

Dunn said that while the conference did not intend to resolve the state's hazardous waste issues, it continued public involvement in a process that will culminate in the board's issuance of a state hazardous waste management plan, and identified major issues and concerns for the waste management board's consideration.

Waste management board is preparing reports on the conference proceedings.

Deer Hazard To Motorists Warns DPS

Deer are on the move at this time of year and motorists should look out for them in approaching and passing wooded roadside areas, advised Paul J. Tschida, commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Last year some 1,400 deer were reported killed on roads and highways in the seven county metropolitan area, compared to 1,500 taken by hunters, according to the department of natural resources. Nearly 11,500 were reported killed by motorists throughout the state. The actual count is believed to be even higher, for many deer accidents go unreported.

At this time of year deer are on the move to and from foraging areas, mostly during the hours of dawn and dusk. They are attracted to highways by the grass on the rights of way and to roadside areas where water run-off has deposited wintertime de-icing salts.

June is also the month in which does drop their fawns. These wide-eyed babes of the woods, as yet unaware of the danger that on-rushing traffic presents, can be expected to do the unexpected. Many die when they lose their footing on the hard-surfaced pavement in a last-minute scramble to flee.

Drivers are advised to slow down and proceed with caution on catching sight of a deer near a roadway. "Where one is seen, chances are that others are nearby," said Michael Grupa, DNR metropolitan area enforcement supervisor.

Many deer accidents occur at night. Momentarily blinded by approaching headlights, a deer will stand stock-still until a driver comes abreast of it, then charge into the side of the vehicle.

Damages to vehicles in accidents with deer average about $350, Grupa said, adding that he had seen compact cars "totaled" by collisions with deer. The motorist is finacially protected only if he has comprehensive insurance. The state will not pay for damages to a vehicle done by wildlife.

Motorists unlucky enough to hit a deer are required by law to notify a law enforcement officer. "It's best to contact the state patrol or the local sheriff, who in turn will contact a conservation officer," Commissioner Tschida advised.

Under no circumstances should a motorist take it upon himself to remove a dead deer from the site of an accident, other than to pull it out of the way of oncoming traffic. To have such a deer in one's possession, without previous permission of a law enforcement officer, is a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $500 and 90 days in jail.

In June — when deer are on the move — the Minnesota motorist's best defense is to be aware of this seasonal hazard, and to drive defensively.

Among items stolen were a $111 pickup tire, a five horse power Johnson outboard motor, extension cord, air tank, car-type radio-cassette player, and two red, six-gallon gas tanks.

ELWOOD DOWD, played by James Solsten, is the principal character in the play "Harvey" to be presented Friday and Saturday at the Elks club in Thief River Falls and Tuesday at Sullivan's in Red Lake Falls by the local Chameleon Theatre company. Elwood has brought the painting which he admires in the above photo into his household to replace a picture of his mother, a pioneer member of the Wednesday club. Elwood's close association with the six-foot-tall, invisible white rabbit makes for an entertaining production.

DPS Reports Surprising '82 Accident Stats

Look into the reduction of traffic fatalities in Minnesota in 1982 shows some unusual but gratifying peculiarities. The Minnesota department of public safety's office of traffic safety, in compiling traffic accident data, found substantial reductions in accidents occurring during time periods which are generally regarded as the most dangerous.

For example, 18 per cent of the fatal accidents in 1981 happened on Fridays. In 1982 only 13 per cent occurred on these same days.

Nighttime hours from 9 p.m. to 3 a.m., considered to be particularly risky in terms of traffic safety, accounted for 42 per cent of the fatal accidents in 1981 and only 33 per cent in 1982. The same time period on Friday and Saturday nights showed a reduction from 20 per cent in 1981 to 13 per cent in 1982.

Looking at the types of crashes, there was a significant drop in single-car overturn accidents or collisions with fixed objects. In 1982, 33 per cent of the fatal crashes fit into this category compared to 37 per cent in 1981. These crashes are often attributed to high speeds and-or drinking.

Minneapolis, the largest city in Minnesota, experienced a phenomenal 54 per cent reduction in traffic fatalities in 1982 from 50 to 23.

There was a significant decrease in the number of young people, age 15-24, killed and injured in traffic crashes. Those killed dropped from 294 in 1981 to 195 in 1982, a 34 per cent reduction, and injuries went from 17,089 to 14,112, down 17 per cent.

There were 24 fewer pedestrians killed and motorcycle traffic deaths dropped by 21. Also, there was a 27 per cent reduction in driver fatalities, down 116.

Significantly, of the driver fatalities tested to determine alcohol concentration, the total who had been drinking dropped from 62 per cent in 1981 to 54 per cent in 1982. Percentage found to be legally intoxicated also dropped from 54 per cent to 48 per cent.

All of these factors resulted in a 24 per cent reduction in Minnesota traffic fatalities in 1982, to 581, and the best traffic safety year in three decades.

Group To Set Construction Unit Prices

Statewide county and municipal engineers screening committees will hold their annual spring meetings to establish construction unit prices in early June at Brainerd, according to Gordon Fay, state aid engineer, Minnesota department of transportation (MnDOT).

Municipal engineers screening committee meeting will begin at 1 p.m., Wednesday, June 8, and conclude about noon the following day. County engineers screening committee meeting will begin at 1 p.m., Thursday, June 9, and end about noon on June 10, he said.

City engineer from each of the nine state-aid districts and an engineer each from Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul serve on the municipal screening committee. County engineer from each of the nine state-aid districts serves on the county engineers screening committee.

Construction unit prices will be applied in updating the annual county and municipal needs studies. These needs studies will be used in determining the 1984 municipal state-aid street (MSAS) apportionment to cities of 5,000 or more population and the 1984 county state-aid highway (CSAH) apportionments.

Total apportionment to the MSAS system is nine per cent of the highway users tax distribution fund which accrues from the state motor fuel tax and vehicle license fees. Total apportionment to the CSAH system is 29 per cent of the highway users tax distribution fund.

Currently, the municipal state-aid street system covers about 2,000 miles. The county state-aid highway system covers more than 30,000 miles, including about 760 miles of trunk highways turned back to the counties.

Municipal engineers screening committee members are: James Prusak, Cloquet; Brian Freeberg, Bemidji; John Dolentz, St. Cloud; Irving Bakken, Detroit Lakes; Donald Asmus, Minnetonka; Roger Plumb, Rochester; Orlin Ortloff, Waseca; Duane Aden, Marshall; James Kleinschmidt, Inver Grove Heights; J. Paul Davidson, Duluth; Marvin Hoshaw, Minneapolis; Robert Peterson, St. Paul. Robert Simon, South St. Paul, is the committee chairman. The vice chairman and secretary are Herbert Reimer, Moorhead, and Henry Spurrier, Shakopee.

County engineers screening committtee members are: Art Tobkin, Clearwater county, chairman; David Zech, Cook county; Wayne Fingalson, Wright county; John A. Cousins, Clay county; Don Wiesniewski, Carver county; Earl Welshons, Winona county; Ronald Sandvik, Le Sueur county; Dennis Stoeckman, Renville county; Charles Swanson, Washington county. Dennis Carlson, Benton county, serves as a committee secretary.

Methodists Set Conference For Duluth

More than 1,000 United Methodists from throughout Minnesota will assemble in the gymnasium at the University of Minnesota, Duluth, on June 7. They will hear reports from the church's boards and agencies and make decisions on the financing and direction of the quarter-million members in Minnesota for 1984.

Among controversial issues with which delegates will be confronted is the ordination of homosexuals. According to the conference secretary, Thelma Boeder of Roseville, "Most resolutions coming from churches and individuals are opposing ordination of homosexuals into the ministry. Some also suggest that practicing homosexual ministers already ordained and serving churches should have their credentials revoked."

The conference will vote support or nonsupport on all resolutions and those supported will be forwarded to the national meeting of the denomination.

Nuclear freeze resolutions which the delegates must deal with are largely in favor of a freeze. First United church in Raymond goes a step further and proposes a planned rate of destruction of nuclear weapons. "Each nation," the resolution states, "having nuclear weapons must destroy 10 per cent of today's total for the next 10 years until all such are destroyed." The plan also includes inspection by the United Nations.

Another congregation asks that the United Methodist church withdraw from the National Council of Churches (NCC) until it is reorganized and until its military and political activities are ended."

Other agenda items include:

+ Action on continuing or suspending the Nestle Boycott;

+ Sanctuaries being established in churches to house Central American political refugees;

+ Recommendation that the 19th century Wesley church building in downtown Minneapolis be designated a historic site;

+ A $3.3 million budget which is $.2 million more than the current budget;

+ Plans for celebration of the denomination's 200th anniversary in 1984; and

+ Selection of seven delegates to the general conference, the worldwide quadrennial meeting of the United Methodist church in Baltimore, MD, May 1-11, 1984.

Included in the three-day meeting will be ordination services for new ministers. This will be held in the Duluth civic auditorium and the service is open to the public.

The conference runs through Thursday, June 9. Last item on the schedule is the reading of appointments of all clergy. In the United Methodist church all clergy are appointed pastor of a church for only one year at a time. However, they may be reappointed an indefinite number of times.

There are nearly 400 clergy in the Minnesota conference of the United Methodist church serving in 436 churches.

Name Twomey Executive In Arctco, Inc.

Bill Ness, president of Arctco, Inc., has announced the recent hiring of Chris Twomey as director of corporate administration for the newly formed snowmobile manufacturing firm.

Twomey, who has served as executive director of the occupational development center for the last six years, will be responsible for a variety of financial and corporate functions.

Ness indicated that the addition of Twomey to the operating staff of Arctco will "help to insure that the company accomplishes its short and long range objectives."

Arctco, with its offices and manufacturing facilities located in the old Arctic Enterprises plant, will begin production of 2,700 Arctic Cat snowmobiles in August. Besides the operating staff, Arctco will employ approximately 60 production workers during this year's manufacturing run. According to Ness many of the production employees will be former employees of Arctic Enterprises.

"These people will help to insure that Arctco will produce the same top quality snowmobile that made Arctic Enterprises a world leader in the snowmobile business," Ness said.

Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf was a dinner guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rausch a week ago Sunday.

Word has been received of the death of Henry Liden Saturday morning, May 21, at his home in Embarrass. His desire was to be cremated and his ashes spread on the farm where he grew to manhood, the farm now owned by the Garret Reierson family. Henry was 62 years, five months and six days old at the time of his death.

LaVerne Rondorf drove to Pillager, near Brainerd, Tuesday morning to get his grandchildren, Tyson and Jeremy Rondorf, who will be house guests at the Rondorf home for about three weeks.

Report Card Issued On Votes By Legislators

Special to the Times
by Northern Star News Services

As a result of the 1983 legislative session, residents of the state of Minnesota will be able to bet on horse racing, pay the state a little more for the gas in their cars and be assured that the clean-up of hazardous waste sites will move ahead more quickly.

Of course, there are many other issues, major and minor, that have been tackled in the first year of the biennium when state spending and taxes are set for the next two years. Legislators are hopeful that the state's economy will rebound so that no emergency patch-ups will be needed.

The following report briefly explains some of the major legislation, indicating this district's legislators' position on key votes.

Pari-Mutuel

Minnesota voters put their stamp of approval on pari-mutuel betting last fall and the Legislature responded by passing a bill this year. The bill got extensive committee overview.

The bill sets up ground rules under which a nine-member racing commission will operate. They are expected to certify some county fairs for racing as early as next summer.

Tracks may be set up outside the metropolitan area, but a single facility in the Twin Cities area is expected to be the biggest draw. That track would not open until 1985, at least.

House and Senate votes are for the final conference report: House: Wally Sparby (DFL-Thief River Falls) - yes; Senate: LeRoy Stumpf (DFL-Plummer) - yes.

Superfund

The state Superfund bill allocates $5 million to clean-up 61 hazardous waste sites and others yet to be found. The bill also sets liability for property and personal damages caused by hazardous waste and taxes producers of hazardous waste. Farmers using agricultural chemicals are exempt.

Assigning responsibility for personal injury is the most controversial part of the bill. The new law also holds the person who disposed of the waste liable at the same time it makes it easier for the injured party to prove damage was caused by the hazardous substance.

A producer isn't liable for any waste dumped before January 1, 1960. If the waste was dumped between January 1, 1960 and January 1, 1973, the waste generator is not responsible if it is proven storage wasn't abnormally dangerous by current standards at the time of burial.

The tax system for waste producers includes an incentive for producers of waste to treat it before dumping. For instance, the tax isn't levied if the substance is treated at the plant and made non-hazardous, while taxes jump to the highest level for waste stored a long time without treatment.

House and Senate votes are for the final conference report: House: Sparby - yes; Senate: Stumpf - yes.

Gas Tax

Minnesota will see some improvement in the condition of its roads, although state residents are paying more at the gas pumps because of it. The gas tax went up three cents on May 1, and will go up another penny next year.

Opponents pushed for moving the motor vehicles excise tax from the general fund to roads, as earlier scheduled. But the Governor and others argued that the revenue loss was something the state could not afford this year.

It became the first big test for Perpich, which he barely scraped through. After IR legislators united to vote against the bill in final form, Perpich threatened unequal treatment on road projects in their districts.

House and Senate votes are for the final conference report: House: Sparby - yes; Senate: Stumpf - yes.

Worker's Compensation Reform

Two politically volatile worker's compensation bills were passed in the final hours, with one bill designed to woo labor and the other to woo business.

The business bill, endorsed by the Minnesota Association of Commerce and Industry (MACI), establishes reform through cuts in benefits for workers with minor injuries, while increasing benefits for seriously-injured workers. In addition, there will be bonuses to workers who return to work early. Labor interests denounced this bill for cutting benefits.

The labor bill, endorsed by the AFL-CIO, established a state-run insurance fund. Proponents said the state could more efficiently deliver insurance, and pointed to the low rates of North Dakota as an example. Opponents said there was no reason for the state to be in competition with private industry.

Two votes are listed here: the first on the reform bill, the second on the state fund. House: Sparty - yes, yes; Senate: Stumpf - yes, yes.

Mortgage Moratorium

A weakened mortgage moratorium bill passed both houses and Gov. Rudy Perpich pledged to sign it.

The bill allows first mortgage holders a chance to delay payment of the note. Farmers would get a grace period of one year; homeowners a period of six months. However, the mortgage holder must prove that the recession is the cause of the inability to repay the mortgage, and a district court judge must agree.

The vote listed here was on the final conference committee report. House: Sparby - yes; Senate; Stumpf - yes.

Omibus Tax Bill

It will again cost more for the high quality of life in Minnesota, thanks to the omnibus tax bill. And it could even cost more if the state suffers another budget shortfall.

The most controversial provision of the bill removes indexing of tax brackets if the state reserve hits zero. (Indexing is the method used to assure that inflation doesn't push taxpayers into higher tax brackets.) The reserve fund must reach $250 million before indexing is resumed.

Other provisions cut property tax relief by $42 million, meaning higher property taxes for most homeowners; made the six per cent sales tax permanent and extended the 10 per cent income surtax for two more years; and placed a uniform 8.5 per cent sales tax on all alcohol sales.

The vote listed here was on the final conference committee report. House: Sparby - yes; Senate: Stumpf - yes.

Metropolitan Council Reapportionment

A partisan fight broke out over reapportioning Metropolitan Council districts which are supposed to be based on population. Suburban and rural districts became under-represented in the 1970s and the bill sought to remedy that. While the bill splits most of the seven counties, it preserves municipal boundaries in most cases.

IR legislators objected to the provision allowing the Governor to appoint all 16 seats this year, instead of preserving eight members appointed by former Gov. Al Quie.

The appointments are expected in a couple weeks.

House and Senate votes are for the final conference report: House: Sparby - yes; Senate: Stumpf - yes.

School Reorganization

Although it received extensive hearings in committee, rural legislators were able to keep a major school reorganization bill from moving out of committee in the House and Senate.

In its original form, the bill would have reduced the number of superintendents down to 50 in Minnesota while keeping the present school boards and districts intact.

Nuclear Relocation Planning Ban

A bill rejecting the federal nuclear relocation plan, banning the state and local governments from spending money on the plan, made it to the House floor without coming to a vote. The Senate bill did not come out of committee.

Proponents point to studies that indicate the relocation plan would be futile, saving no lives by moving people from large cities into rural areas. Opponents of the spending ban argue that the plan can be improved with work and more spending.

Next week: Pay raise commission, budget bills, electric coop bill of rights, court unification, minimum pricing, milk house and waste management act revisions.

Chamber Urges Gov't. To Stop Bracket Creep

Bitter lesson in tax policy is in store for millions of American taxpayers who have suffered through a decade or more of bracket creep, perhaps not fully understanding how it works and raises their taxes unfairly, according to the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Although not scheduled to go into effect until Jan. 1, 1985, tax indexing, which would eliminate bracket creep, already is under attack by members of Congress seeking its repeal. The provision is, perhaps, the most important in the economic recovery tax act of 1981, which also provides for three years of tax reductions totalling 25 per cent.

Coming debate, if anything, should convince taxpayers that bracket creep has taken a heavy toll — perhaps "skimmed" is not too strong a word — off the top of the public's purchasing power, chamber states.

Under our graduated system of income taxes, taxpayers pay a larger percentage of their income in taxes as their income goes up and they move into higher income brackets. It is the combination of this tax system with high inflation that has eroded purchasing power of American families since the early 1970s.

For example, a couple with $20,000 income in 1984 would be in the $16,000-$20,200 bracket where the tax rate is 18 per cent. But if the breadwinner gets a five per cent raise ($1,000) to compensate for inflation, the $21,000 income — still worth only $20,000 — would push the couple into the next higher bracket where the tax rate is 22 per cent. This is how bracket creep works.

Under tax indexing, the $16,000-$20,200 bracket figures would be raised by five per cent for inflation — and the tax rate would remain at 18 per cent for a $21,000 income.

This key point — taxes rise faster than inflation — is made by Dr. Martin Feldstein, chairman of the President's council of economic advisers, to rebut claims that indexing increases the size of budget deficits by reducing revenues at a time when government outlays are going up with inflation. "This argument is wrong because it misrepresents what indexing is all about," Dr. Feldstein says. "The indexing of benefits (outlays) means that benefits just keep pace with inflation. The indexing of tax rates means that tax receipts don't rise faster than inflation through bracket creep."

Comparison also explains why economists for the U.S. chamber of commerce, which strongly supports indexing, estimate that for every one per cent increase in inflation, tax collections go up 1.6 per cent.

"Tax indexing is needed," according to the U.S. chamber, "to keep pressure for discipline in federal spending and tax policy."

If indexing is repealed, the action would especially hurt lower-income and small business people (who file returns as individuals, rather than business entities). They would continue to be taxed at higher and higher rates, whereas taxpayers already in the top bracket would not face further bracket increases. Moreover, the chamber points out, the value of the personal exemption and the standard deduction, which are relatively more valuable to lower-income taxpayers, would be reduced by inflation. In short, they would continue to be taxed on inflationary income gains.

If indexing is repealed, bracket creep would cost Americans $90 billion from 1985 through 1988.

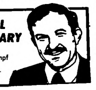
Kmart — Hwy. 59 South — Thief River Falls, Minnesota

CAPITOL COMMENTARY



by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District 1

I am pleased to report to you that in the final hours of the 1983 session, the Minnesota Legislature passed legislation making major reforms in our state's workers' compensation system.

The workers' compensation issue had been hotly debated for months in the House of Representatives and the Senate. It was the focus of heavy lobbying by both business groups and labor unions.

In the week before the end of session, the Senate twice defeated a bill containing most of the reforms proposed by commissioner of labor and industry Steve Keefe and favored by Governor Perpich. Meanwhile, a companion bill that would create an independent state workers' compensation insurance fund won approval in the Senate, but was stalled in the House.

On Monday evening, only a few hours before the constitutional deadline for adjournment, the Senate once again considered the bill that had been defeated twice. This time it passed, on a vote of 52-15. The bill was rushed to the House, where it won approval, along with the state fund legislation.

Thus, it was with hardly a moment to spare that we accomplished one of the most important feats of the session — making meaningful reforms in the workers' compensation system. The final bill will help reduce insurance premiums for businesses while, at the same time, protecting the rights and benefits of injured workers.

A key element of the bill is the two-tiered benefit system. Under this system, workers who have relatively minor permanent injuries and are offered jobs will receive reduced benefits, while those who suffer more serious injuries and cannot work will get increased benefits. Thus, the new system will provide an incentive to employees to return to work when they can do so.

Another important provision in the bill creates a health care review system for workers' compensation. In this way, we will thighten our control over both the quality and the cost of medical care provided to injured workers.

The state insurance fund that was authorized by the Legislature should prove a great help to many small businesses. Since the fund will be run on a nonprofit basis, it should be able to offer rates that are less expensive than those available from private insurance companies.

I was very happy to see the Legislature complete action on the critical issue of workers compensation. The reform package that we passed should go a long way toward improving the current system.

If you need assistance or wish to contact me on any matter, plase write me in the coming months at Route 1, Box 47, Plummer, Minnesota, 56748; or call me at (218) 465-4274.

Get Thin Quick Schemes Trim Pocketbook

by Judith Raunig-Graham
'U' M News Service

Persons tired of dieting may be attracted by advertisements suggesting a "body wrap" as a quick way to trim down, but professors at the University of Minnesota say they are worthless and could even be harmful.

"You lose from your pocketbook," said Arthur Leon of the university's laboratory of physiological hygiene. "It just dehydrates a person. The only way to lose weight is to wrap something around your mouth."

Typical pitch from firms that advertise body wraps is that the process breaks down "cellulite" and that a person can lose from five to 15 inches on the first visit. Process varies slightly from one firm to another, but generally the client is wrapped in elastic bandages that have been dipped in mineral oil and then sits wrapped in plastic for about an hour. Price for one session runs about $30.

Leon, director of research in applied physiology and nutrition in the laboratory, said effectiveness claims for the body wrap process have no scientific validity. Furthermore, he said, the wraps could be dangerous for a person suffering from a heart condition or high blood pressure.

Process could be harmful to some persons, Leon said, because the wrap raises the body temperature, causing a loss of perspiration. Loss of perspiration reduces the blood volume, putting additional strain on the heart, which has to beat faster to circulate the remaining blood more quickly to the tissues.

Leon said anyone who contemplates undergoing such a wrap process should check with a physician first, since in the worst instance, a heart attack or stroke could be the result.

Leon, a member of the American institute of nutrition and the American Physiological society, also debunked the claim that the process is based on the principle of isometric exercise. "It has nothing to do with isometrics, which are muscular contractions," he said. "Isometrics build muscles so they would actually increase your dimension or add inches."

Leon suggested that this fad appeals to people who are looking for a quick "cure" for overweight. "The only way to lose weight and inches is through proper eating habits and exercise," he said. "Everybody is looking for something magic, rather than taking responsibility for their own health."

Some body wrap firms apply cream to particularly fat areas of the body, claiming that the cream attacks fat cells, but Leon said the cream is probably a common chemical, perhaps with added lanolin and vitamins. "There is no known substance that would be absorbed by the body and attack fat," he said. "You have to burn 3,500 calories to burn one pound of fat or decrease food intake."

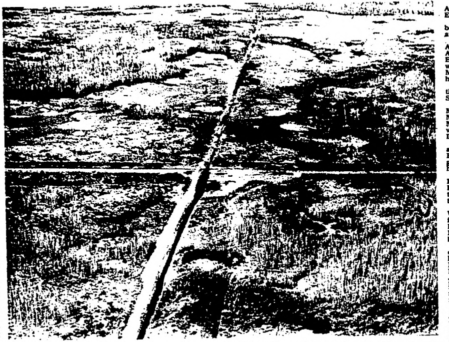
Professor Joanne Slavin, of the department of food science and nutrition, pointed out that the use of the term cellulite (the orange peel look) also has been questioned because there is no evidence that it exists. It is simply fat, she said.

Women store fat differently than men, Slavin said, and they put fat on in their legs and thighs, but the fat cells do not contain toxins as some of the body wrap salons claim.

"Most women are about 25 per cent body fat," Slavin said. "A range they would want to get down to is 20 per cent or lower, and the only effective way to do that is to exercise.

"It's really important to understand that it is body composition and not body weight that is important," Slavin continued. "What happens to a lot of people is that they exercise, but they don't lose weight because they are converting fat to muscle. Muscle weighs more than fat."

Slavin agreed with Leon that there is no scientific evidence that the body wrap could work. "Whenever you see these schemes that say they'll melt fat away, it's very questionable. It's just water loss you sweat off. The problem is when you tell people that exercise is the way to go, you lose about 90 per cent of your audience so these 'get-thin-quick' schemes sell well."



SOUTH POOL OUTLET for the Moose River water control project now underway by the Red Lake watershed district will be at the corners of sections 5, 6, 7 and 8 of Spruce Grove township of Beltrami county, about three miles north and seven miles east of Grygla. This aerial photo is taken toward the west with the outlet flow moving from right to left in the photo. The south pool will be completed in the first phase of the project with draglines now at work constructing dikes in the area. Dike area right-of-way was cleared last winter by Radniecki and Jensen construction company of Thief River Falls. Work began on January 6 and was completed by March 30. Twenty-six contractors bid the use of 96 bulldozers on the project, according to the local office of the watershed district.

HUGE FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT is underway by the Red Lake watershed district northeast of Grygla. The Moose river project involves the drainage water from 125 square miles and will include about 16 miles of dike with two main outlet control structures — one located on the Moose river at the center of the photo above and the other several miles to the south. Right-of-way for dike construction was cleared last winter and can be seen as it goes from the lower left of this photo into the distance. The Moose River project is the largest watershed project in the state of Minnesota and has been funded at a cost of about $3 million. When this project and the Black River project are completed, nearly half of the Red Lake river watershed will be subject to drainage control.

MAINTENANCE of a motorcycle is important to insuring its dependability, and students attending a motorcycle riders' course offered through the community education program in Thief River Falls, learn how to check and adjust the critical systems of their machines. Co-instructor Doug Engstrom gives a demonstration here for one of the classes, using one of 10 motorcycles furnished by the state of Minnesota for use in the class which is being studied as a pilot project for the rest of the state. The course is intended to teach riders skills which can help them avoid accidents and possibly save their lives.

Motorcyclists Offered Class In Safe Riding

By Dave Berg,
Times Reporter

Mike Lehrer claims that a morotcycle riders' course currently being taught in Thief River Falls is one of the best kept secrets in the country. If that is true, it is an unfortunate circumstance; because the course appears to offer the kind of training which could save lives.

Need for such training is evident in statistics which have been compiled on motorcycle accident causes and identification of countermeasures. Statistics compiled during a study done by H.H. Hurt and staff at the traffic safety center of the University of Southern California, indicate that 92 per cent of the riders involved in accidents were self-taught or learned from family or friends. Motorcycle rider training has been shown to reduce accident involvement by 15 to 21 per cent, and is related to reduced injuries in the accidents that do occur.

Likelihood of injury is extremely high in motorcycle accidents, with 96 to 98 per cent of the accidents resulting in some kind of injury to the motorcycle rider, and 45 per cent resulting in more than minor injury. Lehrer notes that the training emphasizes the importance of proper protective clothing, requiring the students to wear boots, gloves, long sleeves, protective eyewear and approved helments, all designed to reduce the severity of injuries in the event of an accident. Although state law no longer requires mandatory wearing of helmets, Lehrer teaches that helmets are the single critical factor in the prevention or reduction of head injury.

Getting used to wearing protective equipment is part of developing safe riding habits, which is what the course is all about. Students spend about eight hours in the classroom where they learn the hows and whys of motorcycle riding, but when they get out on the bikes to actually put their knowledge to practical use, Lehrer and co-instructor Doug Engstrom are constantly reminding them if they fail to keep their feet on the pegs, fingers on the hand controls, or drop the wrong foot when coming to a stop.

Emphasis in the training is given to maintaining control of the bikes. One of the first exercises which the students practice is finding the exact point at which the clutch engages, so that they can use it not only to start out smoothly, but as a way to control the speed of the bike. Lehrer emphasizes that the students must learn to ride slowly before they ride fast. He notes that a motorcycle is much more difficult to balance and control at slow speeds, (due to a gyroscopic effect), commenting somewhat sarcastically, "almost anyone can ride fast." After practicing, students are eventually lined up in a competitive event to see who can take the longest time to travel from one side of the parking lot to the other, without taking their feet off the pegs.

Control developed in learning to ride slow makes them that much better riders when they do get up to highway speeds, according to Lehrer. Speeds on the course laid out on the parking lot behind the area vocational technical institute rarely get above 15 or 20 mph. Interestingly enough, statistics collected furing the Hurt study indicate that the median precrash speed in over 900 accidents investigated was only 29.8 mph. Only one in 1,000 had a crash speed of approximately 86 mph.

Median crash speed in that study was 21.5 mph, indicating that the riders involved did not brake very effectively in the time between anticipation of the crash and actual impact. They also showed significant collision avoidance problems, with most riders tending to overbrake and skid the rear wheel, and underbrake the front wheel, which has 70 per cent of the machine's stopping power.

In addition to learning to ride with both front and rear brake controls ready to be used at any time, students practice exercises in which they learn to coordinate their use of the controls until they can make a high speed stop without losing control.

Students also learn to use the principle of countersteering to make sudden changes in direction, in order to avoid accident situations. Since a motorcycle at higher speed will actually turn in the opposite direction from which it is steered, students are run through a pylon course where they are forced into making unanticipated changes in direction. Exercises are repeated until the countersteering maneuver becomes a reflex action. Making avoidance moves instinctively is extremely important, since statistics show that the typical motorcycle accident allows the rider less than two seconds to complete collision avoidance action.

Most motorcycle accidents investigated were not the fault of the rider. Approximately three-fourths of the accidents involved collision with another vehicle (usually a passenger automobile), and in two-thirds of those, the accident was caused by the driver of the other vehicle violating the motorcycle's right of way. Lehrer notes that most of these drivers did not see the motorcycle until too late to avoid the collision, and he teaches his students to ride as if they were invisible. They are also urged to make themselves as visible as possible by wearing brightly colored clothing and riding with their headlights on.

Another area of instruction which the course covers is motorcycle maintenance. Although vehicle failure accounted for less than three per cent of the motorcycle accidents in the Hurt study, and most of those were single vehicle accidents where control was lost due to a puncture flat, the very few mechanical problems were entirely related to defective or deficient maintenance. Students are taught to examine the critical systems of their bikes before starting out each day, and are given further instruction on such things as how to select a motorcycle for their needs, selecting appropriate insurance coverage, performing a pre-ride inspection, preventive maintenance routines and recognizing mechanical trouble signs.

Motorcycle rider course presently being taught here was developed by the Motorcycle Safety Foundation, sponsored by the five leading motorcycle manufacturers: Honda, Yamaha, Kawasaki, Suzuki and Harley Davidson. Based on research funded through sales of motorcycles, the course has been improved in several ways since it was first released in 1974, and is constantly being updated.

Lehrer emphasizes that the course is a "riders" course, with eight hours of classroom training matched by approximately eight hours on the bikes.

Although the main advantage to taking the course is that the techniques learned might prevent a case of "road rash" or worse, Lehrer notes that there are other advantages for the students. Although a valid driver's license may be obtained at the age of 16 in Minnesota, drivers may not obtain a motorcycle endorsement until age 18, unless they have taken an approved two-wheel driver safety course. While many of the students are in the course for that reason, adults with various degrees of experience on motorcycles are also taking the course. In some places judges have ordered participation in such training as a condition when sentencing motorcycle traffic violators. In addition, some insurance companies offer discounts to riders who have attended such training.

Requirements which students must meet to be eligible to take the course are holding a valid driver's license and having a sense of balance sufficient to ride a bicycle. Because all students must have a driver's license, assumption is made that they are familiar with Minnesota traffic laws. Laws are reviewed only to the extent that they have special applications to motorcycles.

Owning a motorcycle is not one of the requirements for taking the course. In fact, students might be better off waiting until after they have completed the course to buy one, since one section of the training deals with how to select a motorcycle, according to the kind of riding one plans to do. Lehrer notes that heavyweight motorcycles (larger than 500 cc's) would probably not be maneuverable enough to pass the skills test, even in the hands of an experienced rider. One of the requirements of that test is that they be able to make a "figure-eight" turn inside a 15 by 60 foot rectangle.

Both Lehrer and Engstrom are avid motorcyclists themselves. Coincidentally, both are also music instructors in the Thief River Falls school system. Engstrom has been motorcycle touring for five or six years, and Lehrer says he has been riding for about 20 years. In order to teach the course, instructors are required to have a state teaching certificate, a valid motorcycle endorsement on their driver's license, and a good driving record. They also are required to take an instructor course for certification by the MSF.

Lehrer said that even though he had never "dropped" a bike in the approximately 50,000 miles he has ridden, he still learned that he had some unsafe riding habits when he took the MSF instructor course.

Now in his third year of teaching the class here, he notes that the program is constantly being improved upon. One of the biggest improvements, just made this year, is the establishment of a range on the parking lot behind the area vocational technical institute. This enables students to learn essential riding skills without being subjected to the hazards of traffic. Previously, students had to take their instruction on the streets, which were simultaneously being used by other vehicles and pedestrian traffic. In addition to the potential hazards involved, Lehrer notes that it also required that the students be followed by an instructor so that they could be given instructions and observed as they carried them out.

Lehrer notes that the range which they set up to teach the class only requires a minimum 150 by 300 foot paved space, making most fair sized parking lots acceptable.

Under a cooperative effort between the state department of education and the highway safety department, 10 new Suzuki GN 125 motorcycles were obtained for use in a two-year pilot program of motorcycle safety training. The pilot program is being run through the Northwest Minnesota educational cooperative service unit (NWECSU). Any of the 53 schools within the district served by NWECSU is eligible to use the bikes to conduct rider training, provided they can provide MSF certified instructors. Otherwise, Lehrer and Engstrom will travel, as their schedules permit, to conduct the course.

Students are charged a fee of about $35 to take the course, which is estimated to be sufficient to pay for the expenses of running the classes, including instructors' fees, maintenance, gas, oil, supplies, mileage and repairs. No cost is assumed by the school districts, with any additional expenses picked up by the state. Lehrer notes that the money which the state invests in the program is provided through fees collected from motorcyclists for the special endorsement on their licenses, so that non-motorcyclists are not paying for the program.

In Thief River Falls, the classes are being sponsored through the community education program, meaning that they are open to people of all ages. Programs are scheduled here and in several other area school districts throughout the summer, and as late in the fall and early in the spring as weather will permit. Persons interested in taking the training should contact local school officials.

REPORT

From The Minnesota House of Representatives

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

I recently received a copy of the 1982 report of the older worker community service employment program for rural Minnesotans called the Green Thumb program, and I thought you would like to read of its successes in employing older workers and in saving taxpayer dollars.

Green Thumb, Inc. is sponsored by the National Farmers Union and funded by the federal government. A threat to eliminate the funding was successfully averted, so the program will continue at least until June of 1984.

The goal of the organization is to enhance employment opportunities for older persons regardless of economic status, thus helping to decrease dependence on public assistance, providing community services, and promoting and improving older persons' opportunities to meet people and make friends.

Minnesota Green Thumb paid a total of $2,622,134 in wages to 788 older workers in 1982, an average of about $3,400 per worker. The workers were 55 per cent women and 45 per cent men ranging in age from 55 to over 75. The majority had only an eighth grade education or less, although nine per cent had one to four years of college.

These workers performed services for the general community and for other elderly persons. Examples of projects carried out by 32 Green Thumb crews include repairing and painting park benches and picnic tables; building—bleachers, a wheel chair ramp, garbage can shelters, baseball scoreboards and a library book drop; hauling and spreading dirt and doing landscaping; building and installing solar panels; and insulating homes.

The crews are easily identified by their special green hard hats. Not as visible are more than 650 projects done by individuals. Workers served as community gardeners, cooks in nutrition sites, outreach workers, home repair aides, day care center aides, and clerk-receptionists.

Many of these individuals are displaced homemakers, that is, widows and divorced women who had been homemakers for many years and are now in the competitive job market because of loss of a husband.

Displaced homemakers and any other Green Thumb workers who want to can take part in job-seeking skill workshops and Job Club support groups, where they can identify their saleable skills, learn how to hunt for jobs, and receive the support and encouragement of other Green Thumbers and staff.

One goal of the program is to help Green Thumb workers move out of the program into regular paid jobs. The goal set for 1982 was to find employment for 108 persons. The annual report I received shows the program was even more successful, placing 116 workers in unsubsidized jobs.

I was interested to see the figures in the report that go against stereotypes about older workers. Of these 116 hired into regular jobs, 25 per cent were hired to work full time, and 45 per cent work more than 20 hours a week. Eleven per cent were hired at wages of more than $5 per hour, 25 per cent at wages of $4 or more.

Perhaps even more surprising — 20 per cent were 70 years old or older, and 44 per cent were 65 or older.

This program was in danger of losing its funding earlier this year. I'm very glad it did not, because it is surely helpful in many ways. It gives older persons a chance to feel a part of the work world and to feel useful to society. Their wages paid out for housing, food, clothing and other things help the economy of their community, and the total wages paid per county represents approximately the amount of public assistance tax dollars saved by country taxpayers.

In our own district, Marshall, Pennington and Red Lake counties received $55,933, $36,063, and $41,941 respectively in Green Thumb wages.

To receive additional information on this program, you can contact Area Supervisor Lowell Enerson, Box 147A, Oklee 56742 or 218-796-5237.

I'll be writing occasional columns through the summer. I've enjoyed this means of communicating with you, and I appreciate all the letters and phone calls I've received in response to these columns.

SCHEDULED TO compete today (Wednesday) in the individual portion of the 1983 Section 8 high school tennis tournament at Brainerd were Lincoln high school doubles partners Steve Bendickson (left) and Chad Broadwell, who were runner-up finishers last week in the Sub-Section 4 matches played in Thief River Falls. Team portion of the Section 8 tournament was played Tuesday.

Pirates Score In Seventh To Beat Prowlers 4-0

Living on borrowed time for six innings, Thief River Falls' luck finally ran out in the seventh Tuesday as Crookston snapped a scoreless tie to claim a final-inning 4-0 victory in the opening round North Half Region 8AA high school baseball tournament quarterfinals at Crookston's Highland middle school diamond.

In earlier games that day, top-seeded Moorhead was taken into 12 innings before beating No. 8 Park Rapids 6-5; No. 5-seeded Fergus Falls outscored No. 4 Detroit Lakes 11-9; and No. 2-seeded Bemidji had little trouble with No. 7 Wadena 12-5.

That sets the stage for Thursday's semifinals at Crookston when Moorhead will meet Fergus Falls at 1 p.m. while Bemidji plays Crookston at 3:30. Winners will tangle in the championship game at 6 that night.

Frustrated by a variety of excellent Thief River Falls defensive plays and a collection of rule-book decisions by the umpires, Crookston finally broke the ice yesterday when three seventh inning walks were followed by back-to-back two-out doubles by Mike Madigan and Craig Stahlecker as the No. 6-seeded Pirates upset the No. 3 Prowlers, who had taken a doubleheader at Crookston 9-6, 12-0 a week earlier.

But despite drubbing Crookston in their earlier meeting, Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell, who was optimistic about the Prowlers' chances going into the tournament, was apprehensive about facing Stahlecker, a junior left-hander who ranks among the best pitchers in the tournament field.

And Cornell's fears were justified as Stahlecker shut out Thief River Falls on just two base hits, striking out eight and walking five. The Prowlers' lone hits included a second inning single to center by Tim Bottem and a fifth inning smash off third baseman Kurt Weiss by Jim Hallamek that was put into the books as an infield single.

Thief River Falls did put a handfull of runners in scoring position, including the fifth when Gary Cornell walked to start the inning and Hallamek followed with his base hit. An infield ground-out had runners at second and third with two outs, but Stahlecker struck out Kerry Wollin to end the Prowlers' top scoring threat of the game.

Meanwhile, Crookston was in and out of scoring position most of the game. But a pair of nifty diving catches by Hallamek at third on attempted sacrifice bunts took some punch away from the Pirates, along with a super fifth inning play by Wollin at shortstop when he went far to his left to grab a slow-rolling ground ball and throw out Madigan by a half-step on a two-out situation with runners at second and third.

And Crookston also was victim of the rule book. The Pirates lost a Thief River Falls appeal play in the second for an incorrect line-up card that had designated hitter Pat Madigan marked in the wrong spot, wiping out a first-and-third, no-out situation; an interference call on a slide into second base by Todd Ellingson as he attempted to break up a third inning bases-loaded double play, taking away a run; and a ruling that said Stahlecker's apparent triple in the seventh was reduced to a double because he missed second base.

The latter wasn't particularly costly, though, because the Pirates had their 4-0 lead by then when luck finally fell their way.

Thief River Falls pitcher Brian (Scott) Johnston was in and out of trouble throughout the game with seven walks, and he issued three of them in the seventh - all proving fatal. He walked No. 9 batter Kurt Weiss on five pitches with one out in the seventh to start things. After striking out Derek Bray, Johnston issued back-to-back full-count walks to Ken Perreault and Ellingson - losing the non-swinging Ellingson by just inches on the final pitch.

That's when Mike Madigan became the hero as he laced a first-pitch delivery into the left-center field gap for a three-run double. Thief River Falls centerfielder Rick Spong made a great diving effort on the play, just missing a spectacular catch by inches. Stahlecker followed with a hard-hit ball to right-center for the fourth run, this time with rightfielder Jeff Milender narrowly missing a diving catch.

"They got a couple of key hits and we didn't," was a short but complete post-game summary by Cornell. "Stahlecker pitched a helluva ball game for them."

CROOKSTON PITCHER Craig Stahlecker was ready to deliver a pitch to the plate as Thief River Falls runner Todd Ortloff took his lead off first base and Crookston first baseman Mike Madigan awaited a possible pick-off throw in the first inning of Tuesday's North Half Region 8AA high school baseball tournament game played at Crookston. Stahlecker pitched a two-hit shutout as the Pirates blanked the Prowlers 4-0, scoring four times in the top of the seventh inning to break open a scoreless tie on back-to-back two-out doubles by Madigan and Stahlecker. The Prowlers finished their 1983 season 10-6 overall.

Baseball Tournaments . . .

8A, 8AA Games Being Played

Post-season tournament play continues this week for Region 8A and Region 8AA high school baseball teams.

In opening-round North Sub-Region 8A quarterfinals Monday, Lake of the Woods beat defending Region 8A champion Red Lake Falls 6-3 at Red Lake Falls; Warroad handled Greenbush 7-1 at Warroad; Middle River - Marshall County Central edged Tri-County 1-0 at Middle River; and Roseau eliminated Kennedy-Hallock 6-1 at Roseau.

Semifinals were scheduled to be played today (Wednesday) at Warroad, with Roseau and Warroad meeting at 1 p.m. while Middle River - Marshall County Central takes on Lake of the Woods at 4.

Championship game will be played Friday at Warroad.

In the Middle River-Marshall County Central win over Tri-County, Brad Berg produced the game's only run with an RBI single to right field with nobody out in the bottom of the eighth inning. That scored Alan Melvie, who walked to start the inning and stole second.

"It was a real good ball game; a well-played game," reported winning coach Ron Rudd.

Dean Hjelle went the route for the pitching decision, striking out 11 and walking seven. Middle River - Marshall County Central had a 5-2 base hit edge.

Prowlers Qualify 13 For Region 8AA Track Event

A group of eight girls and five boys will represent Thief River Falls Saturday in the 1983 Region 8AA high school track and field meet at Alexandria.

Those berths were secured through North Half Region 8AA competition last Saturday at Moorhead as the top eight individuals in each event, plus the top four relay teams advanced to the state tournament-qualifying Region 13 level.

Moorhead won both the boys and girls North Half Region 8AA titles in easy fashion.

In the boys' division, the Spuds finished with 157 one-sixth points, followed by Park Rapids with 86.3, Detroit Lakes 84.5, Bemidji 65.3, Crookston 32, East Grand Forks 30, Fergus Falls 27, Wadena 22.3 and Thief River Falls 13.5.

Thief River Falls' best efforts were a pair of fourth-place finishes and time improvements by Lon Aune in the 1600 and 3200-meter runs, plus a time improvement by Randy Swenson, who finished in a tie for sixth in the 300-meter intermediate hurdles. Top six places scored points in the meet.

Coach Tim Olson said the Prowlers probably scored points and qualified people in the events they had counted on, although he was hoping for additional qualifiers in the pole vault and 1600-meter relay.

Moorhead, meanwhile, won the girls' portion of the meet with 120 points, followed by Bemidji with 70, Crookston 62, Fergus Falls 57, Detroit Lakes 54, Wadena 41, Thief River Falls 22, East Grand Forks 21 and Park Rapids 16.

Top Thief River Falls places were thirds by Stacie Kruta in the 200-meter hurdles, Jackie Smith in the 3200-meter run and the 1600-meter relay team of Cindy Kruta, Paula Wilkens, Georgia Howard and Stacie Kruta.

"Overall, most of the girls ran their personal best times of the year," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "It turned out pretty much like we expected. I don't think we could have done any better."

Only real disappointment, he said, was the failure to qualify the 400-meter relay team for the region meet. Still, it's the largest group of Lincoln girls to qualify for the Region 8AA event, one more than the Prowlers sent in 1982.

Prelims Saturday start at 11 a.m.

200 meter hurdles — 3. Stacie Kruta, 31.9; 7. Sherry Sabo, 32.8.

Section 8 Title Won By Tigers' Tennis Squad

Heavily favored St. Cloud Tech breezed through the 1983 Section 8 high school tennis tournament team matches Tuesday with 5-0 wins over Fergus Falls and Brainerd. Host Brainerd had eliminated Sub-Section 4 winner East Grand Forks 3-2 in first round play while the Tigers were beating the Otters.

Individual portion of the tournament, featuring singles and doubles competition, was scheduled to be held today (Wednesday) at Brainerd. Thief River Falls' Steve Bendickson and Chad Broadwell were teammed in the doubles event.

Top three singles and top three doubles place finishers will join the champion St. Cloud Tech team at the 1983 Minnesota state high school tennis tournament June 8-9 in Bloomington.

DNR hotline

1. How does the DNR know that fishing in Lake Mille Lacs will improve if they restrict night fishing for three weeks?

Forty per cent of the summer's catch of 200,000 walleyes (or 80,000 walleyes) are taken in a relatively short period of time — during the first 15 days of fishing season. By implementing the night fishing ban during the first four weeks of the season, we will be distributing fishing pressure and catch over a longer period of time throughout the summer and improving the quality of fishing on Mille Lacs Lake. Department of Natural Resources, Section of Fisheries.

2. Why does North Dakota require out-of-state visitors to have special boat licenses and Minnesota does not?

We cannot answer questions for North Dakota. However, Minnesota does require all motorized and non-motorized watercraft in the state to be licensed. If a watercraft is currently licensed in another state, that license is good as long as the watercraft is not kept in this state more than 90 consecutive days; otherwise it must be licensed in Minnesota before it can be used. Byron Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

3. Can the Department of Natural Resources put restrictions on water skiers to keep them away from fishing boats?

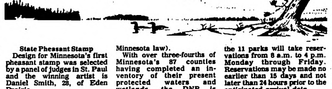
Public waters are for everyone's use. On small lakes with heavy use and meeting certain guidelines, surface use restrictions can be applied. On lakes entirely within state parks boats may be restricted to 10 mph and areas marked to restrict water skiing. It is illegal to operate a watercraft so that its wash or wake endangers, harrasses, or interferes with any person or property. Byron Dyrland, Regional Enforcement Supervisor.

4. Got a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR "Hotline" is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters, or minerals. Write: DNR Hotline, Region I, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 218-755-3976.

WHILE A DISCUSSION centered around the rule book with coaches and umpires, Thief River Falls players met on the pitcher's mound for a little talk of their own Tuesday during the North Half Region 8AA high school baseball tournament game against Crookston. While Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell argued (successfully) that Crookston's incorrect line-up card had the Pirates batting out of order in the second inning, Prowlers (left to right) Brian Johnston, Jim Hallamek, Gary Cornell and Al Ness talked things over, as did base umpires Brent Stahlecker and Jim Karn. The Pirates lost the argument, but won the game 4-0.

DNR NEWS



State Pheasant Stamp

Design for Minnesota's first pheasant stamp was selected by a panel of judges in St. Paul and the winning artist is Daniel Smith, 28, of Eden Prairie.

Starting next season, the stamp will be required of persons age 16 to 64 who hunt pheasants, except those hunting on land they own or lease for agricultural purposes.

Winning design was chosen from among 141 entries and shows a hen and a rooster pheasant in winter with snow on the ground and a heavy frost on adjacent foliage.

Smith is a professional artist and placed second in the federal duck stamp contest in 1980 and second the same year in the Minnesota waterfowl stamp contest. Last year, he tied for third in the Minnesota contest.

Revenue from sale of the stamp, which will cost $5, will be used by the Department of Natural Resources to improve habitat in order to increase the pheasant's population. Habitat projects will emphasize roadside nesting cover, woody cover plantings and food plots.

Inadequate winter cover and insufficient safe nesting habitat have reduced pheasant numbers during the past 20 years.

DNR Inventory

There are no accurate figures on the original extent of lakes and marshes in Minnesota, but the Department of Natural Resources says reliable estimates place the acreage at between 12 and 15 million.

Prior to the DNR's present protected waters and wetlands inventory program, the only statewide survey of "wetlands" was conducted by the U.S. Department of the Interior in 1953.

This survey identified over 2.6 million acres of wetlands remaining. However, only about 1.2 million acres of these remaining wetlands were types 3, 4 or 5 wetlands (the more permanent water bodies currently protected under Minnesota law).

With over three-fourths of Minnesota's 87 counties having completed an inventory of their present protected waters and wetlands, the DNR is projecting that the present acreage of Minnesota's remaining lakes and marshes will be slightly over 2¾ million acres.

About ¼ million acres of these waters will be identified as type 3, 4 or 5 wetlands — a drop of 79 per cent since 1953. Overall, Minnesota has lost over 78 per cent of its original surface water acreage since the mid 1800's.

As of October 1, 1982, the DNR had completed the preparation and distribution of the preliminary water inventory maps for all 87 Minnesota counties. Once a county has received the preliminary inventory, Minnesota Statutes, Section 105.391 requires two 90-day public review periods and a separate public hearing for all disputed waters.

State Park Camping

Camping reservation system for state parks initiated in 1981 was so well received by the public that it will be expanded for the 1983 camping season, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Eleven state parks will be participating in the sytem this summer, said Don Davidson, DNR director of state parks.

Each of the DNR parks will allow up to 50 per cent of its campsites to be reserved. Reservations are made by telephone or in person and will be taken only at the park for which the reservation is requested.

A campsite may be reserved for one or more nights, although anyone wishing to reserve a site for a Friday or Saturday night must reserve for both nights.

Campsites may be reserved for a minimum of one night (except Friday or Saturday nights) and for a maximum of 14 nights, from May 27 to Labor Day. Park personnel at the 11 parks will take reservations from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Reservations may be made no earlier than 15 days and not later than 24 hours prior to the anticipated arrival date.

A reservation will be held until 8 p.m. of the day of arrival. To hold a reservation past 8 p.m. visitors must call within 24 hours prior to arrival. If a visitor arrives after 8 p.m. and has not been granted an extension of time as stated, the campsite may have been rented on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Only one campsite (the location of which is at the discretion of the park manager) can be reserved by a camping party. A reservation fee of $3 (not refundable) is charged and is paid upon arrival along with appropriate camping fee.

Cancellations should be made by calling the park at which the reservation was made. Reservations can be made at the following parks:

Father Hennepin State Park, 612-676-8763; Gooseberry Falls State Park, 218-834-3787; Jay Cooke State Park, 218-384-4610; Itasca State Park, 218-266-3655; Lake Bemidji State Park, 218-751-1472; Lake Carlos State Park, 612-852-7200; St. Croix State Park, 612-384-6657; Sibley State Park, 612-354-2055; Whitewater State Park, 507-932-3007; Wild River State Park, 612-583-2125; William O'Brien State Park, 612-433-2421.

Almquist Is Named To U.S. Hall Of Fame

An Olympic hero and a pioneering high school coach are the latest additions to the United States Hockey Hall of Fame. Jack McCartan, the driving force in the United States' first hockey gold medal victory in 1960, and Oscar Almquist, long time coach at Roseau high school, will be enshrined this fall according to Roger Godin, the Hall's executive director.

McCartan, a University of Minnesota All-American, spearheaded a group of unknown and little regarded American players to a major upset at the Squaw Valley Olympics. During 11 days in February 1960 the underdog United States team surprised Canada, the Soviet Union and Czechoslavakia for first place. While the victories over the Soviet Union and Czechoslavakia are best remembered by the public, hockey experts recall his efforts against Canada. The United States had defeated Canada in the 1956 Olympics and the Canadians were keying for the rematch. McCartan made 39 stops, many of them of the unbelievable category, as momentum gathered for the Americans. The St. Paul native later played briefly for the New York Rangers as part of a distinguished 15 year professional career.

Almquist, like McCartan, was a goaltender and a college All-American. After attaining that status at St. Mary's in Winona, he played four professional seasons in the old American Hockey Association. The Eveleth native became hockey coach at Roseau high school in 1941 and held that position until 1967. During that period his teams won four state titles and compiled a record of 404-148-21. He retired as coach in 1967 and as athletic director in 1973.

McCartan and Almquist will be enshrined in ceremonies at the United States Hockey Hall of Fame on Saturday, October 15.

TRYING TO GET umpire Bob Baab to change his mind on a rules interpretation, Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell explained his side of the story in the seventh inning of Tuesday's North Half Region 8AA high school baseball tournament game at Crookston. The Pirates' Craig Stahlecker was ruled out at second base for missing the bag on an apparent triple. The play ended the inning, but scored a run as Crookston opened a 4-0 lead. That was the final after the two teams had battled through six scoreless innings.

Wildlife Is Aided By Ducks Unlimited

Ducks Unlimited's (DU) prime goal is to save wetland habitat for North American waterfowl. But DU accomplishes far more each time it saves another marsh, another pothole, another slough from destruction, say program officials.

For example, DU biologists have documented use of wetland areas by 40 mammal species, 19 fish species totaling more than 300 various and sundry wildlife species. Eagles need wetlands. So do moose and beaver and endangered Everglade kites, just to name a few. Without wetlands, all the efforts to save the whooping crane would amount to naught.

Facts and figures surrounding Ducks Unlimited include:

+Wetlands in the United States have been disappearing at an alarming rate since man first began to tame the land for his own welfare. Soil Conservation Service has estimated that of the original 127 million acres of wetlands in the United States, 82 million remain. And those are going fast.

+Wetlands are fertile. A typical salt marsh produces 10 tons of organic material per acre per year. Some of the most fertile hayfields in the world are only capable of producing some four tons per acre per year.

+Wetlands are environmental scrub brushes. A study by the Georgia water quality control board of Mountain Creek, a tributary of the Alcovy river, showed that water heavily polluted with human sewage was designated clean after passing through 2.75 miles of swamp forest.

+Ducks Unlimited is now involved with a research project at the Saskatoon campus of the University of Saskatchewan studying the feasibility of using marshes in place of costly tertiary treatment.

Project shows that bulrush and cattail have insatiable appetites for turning raw sewage into inoffensive organic material that is rich in minerals.

+Wetlands halt more flooding than miles of sandbags. Capacity of wetlands to control flooding was dramatically demonstrated during severe storms in eastern Pennsylvania in 1955, according to an Interagency Task Force coordinated by the Council on Environmental Quality. "Although many bridges were washed out over streams in developed areas, two survived undamaged — they were located below a large cranberry bog . . ."

+Wetlands account for the wild rice and cranberries you enjoy at your table. Peat and sphagnum moss you work around your landscaping comes from a type of wetland called a bog.

+Landsat 4 is able, from a distance of 440 miles above the earth, to monitor areas as small as one-quarter acre (about the size of a city lot). It can find not only the critical areas for wildlife, but tell biologists the types of plants growing in and around the areas. For example: though an area may have the capacity to hold water, it might not be able to support the proper food and cover to benefit the ducks, geese and swans. Landsat 4 will help find the most beneficial areas so they can be saved.

+Ducks Unlimited is the world's largest and most effective conservation organization whose sole aim is to improve habitat. It is a non-political, non-profit organization which last year raised $34.7 million. It has 455,000 members in the U.S., Canada, Mexico, New Zealand, Saudi Arabia, West Germany, South Africa and Finland.

+Over the past 46 years, Ducks Unlimited has spent more than $146 million on 2,100 projects encompassing more than three million acres in Canada and Mexico.

+Satellite imagery has even been used by federal agencies to locate marijuana fields.

+Ducks Unlimited was founded in 1937 in the midst of a drought that was destroying critical waterfowl nesting habitat. DU is responsible for the first scientific study of waterfowl nesting and migration patterns.

+In the conservation arena, DU's field and administrative staff of 66 is one of the most well respected and includes six men who have successfully completed their PhD's; 29 who have Master's degrees and 28 who have Bachelor's degrees in wildlife management. Each averaged 16 years of professional wildlife experience before being hired by Ducks Unlimited. Eighteen members of the staff are former directors of state fish and game agencies.

Deadline Nears For Applications On Moose Hunt

Applications for Minnesota's 1983 moose hunting season must be postmarked or delivered to the DNR License Center in St. Paul no later than Wednesday, June 15.

Reminder was issued by the DNR, which also noted that persons who received moose hunting permits in any year except 1971 are not eligible to apply this year.

Each applicant must provide either his driver's license number or his Minnesota I.D. card number. Use of those numbers is necessary to establish and enforce the new system that excludes previous moose license holders for a period of five seasons.

A total of 1,296 hunting parties, each comprising four persons, will be selected at random by computer. The procedure will allow 5,184 hunters to take part in this season's hunt.

License fee is $140 per party.

Application blanks and instructions showing the various hunting zones can be obtained from county auditors and most license agents. The forms are also available at various DNR offices throughout the state.

Applicants for northeastern Minnesota moose zones are required to attend an orientation session before going out to hunt. Moose license holders will be able to attend these meetings at any of three locations, and a time schedule for the meetings is included with the application information. All members of the party need not attend at the same time.

Moose licenses for the northeast zones will be marked valid at the meetings.

Second Texas Golf Match Is Held Saturday

Second Texas-style golf tournament of the 1983 season was held Saturday at the Thief River Country Club, with 34 golfers taking part in the event.

First place team included Stan Sjoberg, Art Welter, Diane Anderson, Kathy Moum and Jason Tangquist with a nine-under-par 63.

Three groups tied for second place at seven-under-pay 65, with a putt-off on the practice green deciding second, third and fourth places.

Second place went to Jim Geatz, Bill Corliss, Don Broekemeier and Curt Geatz.

Third place finishers were Bob Geatz, Marge Corliss, Tom Kays and Dave Geatz.

Fourth place fell to Paul Williams, Eric Charlson, Phil Williams and Monte Markstrom.

Summer Hours Set At Driving Range, Pro Shop

Driving range at the Thief River Country Club will be open 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily, except for Tuesdays, it was announced this week.

Thirty-five balls will be priced at $1.

It was also announced that summer hours at the Thief River Country Club Pro Shop will be 10 a.m. to dusk Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Fridays, and from 8 a.m. to dusk on Tuesday, Saturday and Sundays.

Club storage facilities will be open every day at 8 a.m.

Conservancy To Raise Funds

Minnesota chapter of the Nature Conservancy announces its 1983 Minnesota critical areas campaign, part of a three-year goal to raise $1.6 million for land acquisition and maintenance. It is the largest campaign for private land conservation ever attempted in Minnesota.

This year, thanks to a $600,000 grant from the Goodhill foundation, tax-deductible donations to the Nature Conservancy will be matched dollar-for-dollar. The 1983 campaign has targeted nine wild and unspoiled areas in Minnesota as priorities for preservation.

"Purchase and preservation of natural areas by the Nature Conservancy is especially important today in the light of reduced government funding for this important task," comments C. Robert Binger, chairman of the Minnesota chapter.

The Nature Conservancy is the only private, non-profit organization in Minnesota that has as its primary goal the preservation of ecological diversity. Over the past 25 years, the Minnesota chapter has completed more than 90 preservation projects, saving 35,000 acres of virgin prairies, forests, islands, nesting sites and unique sand dunes.

Ability To Cure May Well Exceed Ability To Pay

by Chuck Benda
U'M News Service

Jamie Fiske story is heartwarming and it has a happy ending. But, it underscores a tremendous moral and ethical problem that has arisen as medical technology has advanced: High cost of liver transplants and other complex life-saving procedures exceeds the ability of most individuals to pay, even when medical insurance covers part of the expense.

Minimum cost of a liver transplant is $100,000 and can go as high as $175,000. These figures are from Dr. John Najarian, chief of surgery at University of Minnesota hospitals, where Jamie's story got its happy ending last November when a successful liver transplant focused national attention on the 11-month-old Massachusetts girl.

Policy at the university, which is similar to the policy at all major transplant centers, is to refuse to perform a liver transplant — or any other transplant — on an out-of-state patient who cannot demonstrate the ability to pay. Minnesotans who are unable to pay are eligible for state assistance. The only way that the University hospitals could recover the costs of expensive procedures would be to pass them along to other patients — a practice the hospital administration considers unfair since many of these patients have already accumulated a tremendous financial burden.

"I think what we're seeing here is a very dramatic example of a tremendous dilemma that's facing society in the United States," said Neal Vanselow, the university's vice president for health sciences. "I don't think we would feel comfortable no matter what position we took."

"If we just took all these patients (for liver transplants) and passed the cost on to other people who were unfortunate enough to be in the hospital in a given year and had their bills increased because of it, we wouldn't feel right," Vanselow said. "At the same time, I don't think anybody feels comfortable with the current policy. This is kind of a no-win situation. No matter what you do, you're not doing as much as you would like to."

It is not an easy decision to make, to refuse treatment to non-Minnesotans who cannot pay, but it is, according to Vanselow, a decision that has been agreed to by the board of regents, the university administration, the hospitals administration and the doctors at the hospitals. It applies not only to liver transplants, but to heart transplants, to bone marrow transplants, and, in effect, to almost every form of care the hospitals provide. It becomes a question of the greater good. If the bills aren't paid, eventually university hospitals would be unable to help anyone.

A common misconception, according to Najarian, is that the high cost of liver transplant has been inflated by exorbitant surgeon's fees. But, there are no surgeons' fees included in the cost of a liver transplant, he said.

Roughly, about 40 per cent of the cost of a liver transplant is for hospitalization — room and board, so to speak; the other 60 per cent goes for lab work, supplies, X-rays, operating room time, consultations and other expenses, Najarian said. These costs should come down some as the transplant procedure is refined, he said, but the cost is still going to be high.

"You need very intensive nursing care for these patients, since many require special treatment because anti-rejection drugs increase their susceptibility to infection," Vanselow said.

Society may have reached a point at which medical technology has advanced beyond society's ability and willingness to pay, Vanselow said. "There is tremendous concern in this country about the rising costs of medical care," he said. "The health care industry is now about 10 per cent of the gross national product. It's been rising in recent years very significantly. I think there are two questions that need to be answered: What per cent of the wealth of this country do we want to devote to health care? And how should we spend it?

"Should we spend large amounts to save single individuals through liver transplants or artificial hearts," he asked, "or would we be better off — let's take the $175,000 liver transplant for example — buying 175,000 doses of some kind of vaccine at $1 a dose and immunizing 175,000 children?

"I'm not sure the medical profession can make these kinds of decisions alone," Vanselow said. "I think we can develop the procedures. We can decide medically who is or is not a candidate for these procedures, but I think society is going to have to tell us how much of their money they want spent for health care, and then, how they want it spent."

Najarian agrees, and he adds one major criterion for making these decisions: the quality of life. "Our bottom line has always been quality of life. If you can't achieve quality of life, then it's not worth doing," he said. "If you can achieve quality of life, then it has to be paid for. The public must make a decision on whether it's willing to pay the price for the transplants, and for whom and where is the money going to come from?

At university hospitals steps have been taken to help potential organ transplant patients who cannot pay the costs of a transplant. First, it will do the necessary tests to determine if a candidate is suitable for a transplant even if the candidate does not have the ability to pay for the transplant, since administrators think it would be wrong to let the candidate go through the process of raising the money only to discover that the operation won't work.

Second, the university has representatives in the hospitals' business office who will help the patients by working with their home state's medical assistance office and other agencies to find ways to cover the bill. And third, a transplant fund has been established at the university medical foundation from private donations. Many people have made donations to the fund, but at this point it is not large enough to make a significant contribution to solving the problem.

One possible solution is national catastrophic health insurance, through which the federal government would pay for these procedures. Through 1975 legislation, the federal government pays for kidney transplants for those unable to pay. But still it is up to society to pay.

As medical technology continues to advance, the premise of the television series "The Six Million Dollar Man" is not far off. One day we may very well literally be able to pick up a man and put him back together. But what moral and ethical questions will have to be answered? Who will get to be the six-million-dollar man? Who will decide? And who will pay?

FATHER'S DAY SPECIAL
DURING THE MONTH OF JUNE

Are you and your wife expecting a baby? Do you want to be accessable when the time comes for her to go to the hospital? During the month of June, you may rent one of our "beepers" for the 3 weeks prior to expected delivery time 'til one week after for $30.00 (so it turns out to be a month later - it's still good). Just bring us a note from your doctor giving the expected date and your check for $30.00 and we'll deliver your "Beeper" to you 3 weeks prior to that date. So you're not expecting in June. The offer is still good as long as you reserve your "Beeper" during June!

In Loving Memory
"Monti"

Light is etched above me
I look and see him there,
"Don't cry for me, for I am safe,
God has me in his care."
"But still they took you from us,
It wasn't fair," I replied,
"You were only seventeen,"
And then I started to cry,
"God's Kingdom is so beautiful
Every angel is my friend,
I'm happy up here, now I see
But I was so much younger then."
And then he dried my tears —
He was gone — I went my way,
For I knew that he was happy
We'd meet in Paradise again someday!!

In loving memory of our dearest son and brother, Monti, who passed away May 24, 1965.

Sadly missed by his dad and mom, Bennie and Dolores Miramontes; sisters: Dani Le, Monica and Anita, and brothers: Vince and Paul.

This memoriam for Monti is an original by Anita and not to be reprinted without her permission. 1t44c

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls water utility announced today that the State maximum allowable limit for turbidity in drinking water is being exceeded.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity levels, do not create any health hazard because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with State Health Department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lemm at the Water Plant, phone number 681-3899.

Card of Thanks

UNANTICIPATED changes in direction are forced on students who take a motorcycle riders course offered in Thief River Falls, in order to teach them to react quickly and maintain control of their machines in avoiding an accident. With the machines coming straight at him, traveling between 15 and 20 miles per hour, co-instructor Doug Engstrom waits until the last moment before indicating which way they must turn, forcing the students to use the principal of countersteering to make a sudden lane change. Action must be taken quickly, and students who take a foot off the pegs are reminded of their error until maintaining control of the motorcycle becomes almost instinctive.

Growers Want Long-Term Wheat Export

Negotiators of a new long-term agreement between the U.S. and the Soviet Union should concentrate on "laying a foundation for sustained trade," according to Don Loeslie, Warren, president of the national association of wheat growers.

Loeslie's comments followed the Agriculture department's announcement that the Soviets had accepted the Reagan administration's invitation to open talks on an agreement covering future Soviet grain purchases from the U.S.

New grain pact providing for higher Soviet grain imports "will help turn the U.S. economy around and generate new jobs for American workers," stated Loeslie, a Warren wheat farmer. He said that more than 2,400 jobs would be added with ever $100 million increase in export sales.

Existing US-Soviet grain arrangement was written in 1975 and the U.S. government has imposed sanctions on Soviet trade twice since then. "Embargoes and de facto embargoes have forced the Soviets to buy from our competitors," according to Loeslie. "A new grain agreement will give us the chance to rebuild our trade with the Soviets and hopefully gain a substantial boost in our sales."

Soviets will buy seven million tons of U.S. wheat and corn this season, and 27 million tons from competing grain exporting nations. Canada, Argentina, Australia and the European community have expanded wheat acreage to take over and hold the U.S. share of the market, according to the NAWG.

"We've been seeking these negotiations since the spring of 1981," according to Loeslie. "We're finally on the path toward improving trade with the world's largest grain market."

Diesel Engines Mean High Mileage, Low Maintenance

Diesel cars and light trucks are becoming more popular because they're more fuel efficient than conventional gasoline-powered engines. And diesels require less maintenance.

You won't be bothered about spark plugs, distributor points or condensers in your diesel because there aren't any. That means other parts of your diesel are working harder and hotter.

Your diesel's motor oil, for instance, works harder than in a conventional engine because there's a greater need for motor oil to cool, clean and lubricate.

That's why Amalie Refining Company—a major oil company with more than 50 years of diesel know-how—has introduced a new diesel motor oil. Called Amalie Diesel Motor Oil, it's among the first lubricants designed specially for use in diesel cars and light trucks.

Here's why a special diesel motor oil is so important: The richer fuel mixture diesels run on means a higher concentration of acidic deposits and other corrosive build-ups in the engine that diesel motor oil must neutralize.

Motor oil must also act as a cushion between pistons and other metal surfaces during a diesel engine's critical warm-up period.

And hotter operating temperatures require a motor oil, like Amalie's new Diesel Motor Oil, to protect your diesel engine from these severe temperatures.

Remember that your diesel is different and follow the owner's manual carefully. Your diesel will reward you with high mileage and low maintenance.

'U'M Regents Struggle With Tuition Issues

Tough issue of tuition increases faced the University of Minnesota board of regents April 8 as it began weighing the pros and cons of carrying the current tuition policy to its logical conclusion.

Questions of enrollment decline, fairness to and competition for students and financial impact on the institution will figure prominently in the board's tuition discussions during the coming months.

Kenneth Keller, vice president for academic affairs, told the board that if expected tuition increases during the next four years are across-the-board, more students will be lost and university revenue will be lower than if the increases are applied college by college.

However, if future tuition increases are calculated by college, he said, "tuition increases for some students will be considerably lower than the average increase, but for some students, the increases will be considerably higher."

Quarterly tuition for university students differs from college to college within the institution. Current regents' policy calls for tuition to be adjusted gradually over the coming years so that all students pay a similar percentage of what it costs to educate them.

Education costs in certain colleges and professional schools, such as the medical school or the graduate school, are significantly higher than in such low-cost areas as lower division college of liberal arts.

Keller told the board it could consider using the extra revenue generated by differential tuition increases to beef up financial aid available to students hardest hit by rising costs.

Regent David Lebedoff said that if the current formula of tuition calculated by cost of education continues, large tuition increases in certain colleges could change the type of education available to students.

"The university has traditionally been a door that students could pass through to change their lot in life," he said. "A program like this will mean that poor students will be able to take one kind of class and not-so-poor students will be able to take another. That has enormous social implications."

University President C. Peter Magrath said that while the fiscal implications of across-the-board versus differential tuition increases are "not irrelevant. . . they do need to be weighed against fairness and equity."

He said the board has several options, including putting the current cost-related tuition policy on hold, reversing it or slowing the pace at which adjustments from college to college are made.

Lebedoff cautioned the board to avoid "letting the tail wag the dog." Rather than using current tuition policy to predict future revenue and enrollment trends, he said, the board should determine which future consequences are most desirable and then calculate tuition policy.

Using the cost-related model without some modification would price professional schools at the university out of the market, Keller said. For a cost-related model to be workable, limits would have to be placed on professional school tuition.

Keller suggested letting the university's overall tuition rank among Big Ten schools dictate limits. Since the university's tuition is now the third highest in the Big Ten, tuition in professional schools should not be raised so that they are any higher than third in the Big Ten.

Keller also suggested that current tuition rates for out-of-state students be lowered from existing regents' policy, which places it at 2.7 times the cost of instate tuition. Bringing it down to twice the rate would eliminate problems now faced by certain colleges and schools that now must charge more than other universities that draw from the same pool of potential students.

In the first nine months of fiscal 1982, local Job Service offices received about 1,401,335 new and renewed applications from veterans and placed about 303,335 veterans in jobs, according to the Labor Department's annual report.

Jobless Rate In State Hits Nine Per Cent

Mostly because of a seasonal increase in employment, Minnesota's unemployment rate declined from 10.2 per cent in March to nine per cent in April but still was above the 7.8 per cent level of April a year ago, according to commissioner Barbara Beerhalter of the Minnesota department of economic security.

The comparable national unemployment rate for April was 10 per cent.

Decline in the April rate resulted from a substantial drop of 21,800 in the number of unemployed. Total employment increased 2.6 per cent which compares with an average March-to-April increase since 1970 of 3.6 per cent.

Non-agricultural wage and salary employment, which has shown an average gain of 1.7 per cent from March to April over the past 12 years, increased 1.1 per cent.

Compared to April a year ago, the size of the Minnesota civilian labor force decreased by 2.4 per cent; the number of employed persons decreased by 3.7 per cent; and the number of unemployed workers increased by 13.3 per cent.

Minnesota's labor force in April was 2,117,200 persons, up 21,700 from March and down 51,300 from April last year.

The number of persons employed in April was 1,926,000, up 48,500 from March and down 73,700 from April a year ago.

The number of unemployed persons in Minnesota in April was 191,200, down 21,800 from March and up 22,400 from April a year ago.

Production workers in manufacturing were paid average weekly earnings of $366.31 in April for working an average of 38.6 hours at $9.49 per hour. Although the number of hours worked was down from 39.5 in March, analysts attributed the reduction to the fact that a major snow storm occurred during the April survey period.

In April 1982 production workers were paid average weekly earnings of $352.29 for working an average of 39.1 hours at $9.01 per hour.

The unemployment rate pertains to the entire labor force and is not used to determine whether unemployment insurance benefit payments will be extended beyond the usual 26-week maximum. The unemployment rate among persons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether the benefit payments will be extended.

What does a man mean when he says, "Let's get down to brass tacks"? He means that he thinks it's time to discuss the real issue.

And that's always a good idea! Nothing is gained by "beating around the bush." Wise men seek the issue . . . and settle it!

In America there are millions of people who attend and support the Church. There are other millions who do not. What is the real issue on which these two groups disagree?

This is the issue: Is man the self-sufficient master of his world, able to overcome every problem by his own strength . . . OR is man the noblest creation of an all-powerful God, weak in the face of life's turmoil when he stands alone, but strong when he joins heart and hand with God?

You're a man and you've seen something of life! Getting down to brass tacks . . . are you stronger WITH GOD or without?

WMB To Seek Crystalline Bedrock Site

New search for potential sites for a "crystalline bedrock repository" for the disposal of hazardous wastes — where hazardous wastes would be deposited in specially-mined chambers deep in bedrock formations — has been authorized by the Minnesota waste management board.

If the search — authorized at the board's May 24 meeting at its Crystal offices — yields potential sites for a "crystalline bedrock" facility, the board would then, in effect, be considering potential siting areas for each of three major types of hazardous waste disposal or retrievable storage facilities: a "crystalline bedrock repository;" a secure hazardous waste landfill, either excavated or mounded "above-grade;" or an "above-ground storage" facility of tanks and other man-made structures.

Waste management board is currently considering four candidate hazardous waste disposal or retrievable storage sites in four different counties: one each in Carver and Scott counties, certified as suitable for either a hazardous waste landfill or an "above-ground storage" facility; and one each in Marshall and Aitkin counties certified only for "above-ground storage."

Board is required to select at least one site for a hazardous waste disposal or retrievable storage facility, and is expected to select that site by late-1985.

Final site selection — and the determination of Minnesota's specific hazardous waste disposal technology — will be made after lengthy environmental studies and the board's development of a state hazardous waste management plan that will chart the state's long-term policies for managing hazardous wastes.

Board's May 24 action became possible when the Minnesota Legislature on May 21 approved new amendments to the state's waste management act (the law, originally passed in 1980, which created the board). Those amendments charged the board with studying the feasibility of the "crystalline bedrock" technology and — if the board determines that the technology is feasible — to identify site "study areas" for such a facility.

Board took its action after reviewing the first draft of a study commissioned by the board and being developed by Battelle Institute of Columbus, OH, which will evaluate the impacts and feasibility of the various potential hazardous waste disposal technologies. That study will be one of the sources to be considered by the board in future decisions on hazardous waste disposal technologies.

"Crystalline bedrock" facility would consist of several galleries and "haulageways" constructed at the base of a mine shaft deep in any of a variety of crystalline rock formations. Studies and concepts of the technology have envisioned a facility at a depth of anywhere from 200 to 1,000 feet; the exact depth would depend on the specific site and its natural and rock conditions.

Technology has not been utilized in this country for the long-term disposal of hazardous wastes, although caverns and abandoned mines in Sweden and West Germany have been utilized for the storage of oil, metal wastes and other hazardous materials.

Board has studied the "crystalline bedrock" technology as part of its continuing interest and evaluation of alternative hazardous waste disposal technologies, and in response to the recommendations of many persons involved in the board's siting process.

In authorizing the site search the board also approved siting criteria that directs board staff and consultants to search for areas of crystalline rock formations that avoid major groundwater resources and possess a large percentage of "bedrock outcrops," where bedrock is exposed to the land surface.

Preference would also be given to areas near major sources of hazardous waste generation in Minnesota, areas near major transportation routes, areas that avoid high population density and areas which avoid lakes, rivers, streams and wetlands where an interaction between water and the facility would be a factor, and public lands.

If the newly-authorized search yields potentially-suitable areas the board is expected to identify "preliminary study areas" for a crystalline bedrock facility at its June 9 meeting.

Tourism Survey Shows Need For MN Promotion

Stronger promotion of tourism in Minnesota is needed to attract more first-time vacationers to the state. First-timers tend to become repeat visitors.

These are two major findings of a survey recently commissioned by the state's division of tourism.

Survey was conducted by the Minnesota center for social research on April 20 and 23 at the Minneapolis-St. Paul, Duluth and Rochester airports. It found that nearly 45 per cent, or 243 of the 544 air travelers questioned, had not vacationed in Minnesota. They represented nearly 56 per cent of the out-of-state residents questioned and just under 21 per cent of the Minnesota residents surveyed.

About 52 per cent of those surveyed indicated they had no specific reasons for not visiting the state and were generally unaware of Minnesota's opportunities for leisure pursuits.

"The study indicates that more intense promotion is appropriate," said Hank Todd, director of the Minnesota tourism division. "The Minnesota message simply hasn't been strong enough. We are pleased with the legislature's recent $8.5 million appropriation for tourism promotion. Increased funding will help us tell our story."

Todd said the survey found few negative perceptions of Minnesota among vacationers. "This makes the job of persuading easier, especially when you consider that Minnesota offers nearly all of the most desired vacation activities. It appears that if we concentrate on getting vacationers here once, they'll return."

Most popular vacation activities mentioned by the respondents were seeing new cities and sightseeing, 35.5 per cent; participating in water recreation, 28.5 per cent; relaxing in quiet surroundings, 16.7 per cent; spring and summer outdoor recreation, 15.4 per cent; visiting people, 13.8 per cent; hunting or fishing, 13.2 per cent; and attending a cultural event, 10.4 per cent.

Months of July, August and June were the respondents' most popular vacation periods, according to Todd. He noted that the Twin Cities and Minnesota's lakes were the most often cited locations for Minnesota vacations.

The North Shore, Duluth and Brainerd areas also were mentioned by more than 10 per cent of those who have vacationed in Minnesota.

The 298 respondents who had vacationed in Minnesota reported spending time on these activities during their most recent trip to the state: water recreation, 23.5 per cent; hunting or fishing, 27.2 per cent; visiting people, 24.2 per cent; sightseeing, 18.8 per cent; relaxing or getting away, 14.8 per cent; shopping, 10.1 per cent; and spring and summer recreation, 10.1 per cent.

Summaries of the 1983 Minnesota tourism survey are available by contacting the Minnesota division of tourism at (612) 296-5027 or by writing the division at 240 Bremer Building, 419 N. Robert St., St. Paul, MN 55101.

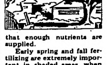
LAWN LORE

GROWING GRASS IN THE SHADE



If you take a dim view of trying to grow grass in the shade, you might like to consider these bright ideas from O.M. Scott and Sons Company, the lawn people. Grass will grow in partial shade if it has at least three to four hours of full sun daily, or filtered sunlight all day during the growing season. Unless this sun requirement is met, the grass becomes weakened and is more susceptible to disease. Turf diseases are more active in moist and shaded areas, especially where surrounding buildings and trees restrict air circulation. Eventually, the grass thins out and is replaced with bare soil or a shade-loving weed like Poa-Annua.

One way of allowing the sun to penetrate a moderate shade area is to prune out or thin the tree branches overhead or to trim overgrown shrubs along the border of the lawn.

Grass in shaded areas should be cut about one-half inch higher than grass that is growing in full sunlight. This allows greater leaf surface to use available sunlight.

It is a good idea to check the soil in shaded areas to be sure it is moist and that enough nutrients are supplied.

Early spring and fall fertilizing are extremely important in shaded areas, when leaves are not on the trees and the sunlight reaches the grass, it can make better use of fertilizer to help develop a strong root system.

If you are stumped as to what type of grass seeds to plant in the shade, you might consider that all varieties of Scotts Seed will perform well in full sun to light shade conditions. Where the shade is a little heavier you might consider Scotts Shady Area grass seed blend which is especially formulated to produce stand-out turf in light to moderate shade.

If you have a question about your lawn, you can talk with a lawn consultant at Scotts by dialing, toll-free, (800) 543-TURF. In Ohio, the number is (800) 762-4010. There is no charge or obligation for this service.

Stangeland Votes Against Dairy Bill

"Up to $2.15 could be cut from the dairy price support program if a bad bill is made law," Congressman Arlan Stangeland said recently. He opposed the bill (HR 1875) which was passed by the House agriculture committee.

"This bill hurts farmers without addressing the problems of over-production and high federal expenses in buying surplus dairy products," he said.

First of five potential cuts in the $13.10 price support would be a 50 cent deduction on the day the bill becomes law. In return, farmers, who agree to reduce production by five to 30 per cent below a set base would receive $10 for every hundredweight not produced. Farmers could choose a 1981-82 one-year base or an average of their 1980-81 and 1981-82 bases.

"Farmers would thus be paying for their own paid diversion," Congressman Stangeland said.

Three more 50 cent reductions in the price supports could follow under the bill. One would definitely occur in October 1983. A second would follow on January 1985 if annual purchases are projected at over six billion pounds of milk. The third would follow in July 1985 if 12-month projected purchases are over five billion pounds.

Final provision of the bill would require all dairymen to pay 15 cents per hundredweight to a national milk promotion campaign. They could deduct up to 10 cents of that payment if they are already participating in a state or regional advertising campaign.

"It has already been almost three years since the dairy support has been adjusted upward," Congressman Stangeland said. "If all these cuts were now imposed, the price support would drop below $11. That would force many Minnesota dairymen out of work."

Congressman Stangeland supported an alternative bill (HR 2822) which was passed by the House dairy subcommittee. That bill contained at $10 "paid diversion" program, but it would be paid for by penalizing with a lower price support only those farmers who exceed their production bases. "That bill rewarded farmers who exercised self-control on milk production," Congressman Stangeland said.

Penney's Notes First Quarter Earnings Hike

J.C. Penney Company, Inc. reported recently that its first quarter earnings were at a record high, increasing 4.9 per cent over the same period in 1982.

For the 13 weeks ended April 30, income from continuing operations rose to $58 million from $55 million a year earlier. Income from continuing operations per share amounted to 78 cents, as compared with 76 cents in 1982 when there were approximately two million fewer shares outstanding.

First quarter sales totaled $2,118 million, an increase of 1.8 per cent over the $2,080 million of last year. Excluding discontinued merchandise lines in both years, first quarter sales increased 3.2 per cent.

Cut Or Not To Cut

Following comments were written by Robert F. Dee, chairman of the board of SmithKline Beckman corporation:

Has the experiment failed?

That's how the House Budget Committee in its first resolution described the President's economic program, "the experiment that failed." Meanwhile, the committee is calling for a $30 billion tax increase in 1984.

At the same time, economic indicators have surged to a record monthly high, new housing starts are at nearly double the rate of June 1982, gross national product is growing at four per cent a year, the stock market has risen 50 per cent since July 1982, new unemployment claims are down and the unemployment rate is falling.

At this critical juncture in what appears to be a long-awaited recovery, some members of Congress are urging repeal of the July 10 per cent income tax rate cut — the third — called for in the President's economic plan.

They claim that the first two tax rate cuts had nothing to do with the recovery, that supply-side economics hasn't worked — and that being the case, it makes no sense to give taxpayers more tax relief now.

They may also believe they can spend the billions of dollars involved more wisely than average Americans can.

"Average" is exactly the word to describe the people this tax cut will benefit most — middle and lower income Americans.

Households making between $10,000 and $50,000 a year pay about two-thirds of all income taxes. These Americans will get about 72 per cent of the benefits from the 1983 tax rate cut. Those earning above $100,000 a year will get only nine per cent of the tax relief although they pay over 15 per cent of all income taxes.

So if Congress disappoints the taxpayers of America by repealing the expected income tax rate reduction on July 1, their action will hurt those most in need of income tax relief.

The issue is complicated by the fact that the United States at present has the largest public debt in its history. Instead of cutting taxes, some legislators say that these tax revenues could be used to reduce the deficit.

That argument makes sense — except that bitter experience has convinced most Americans that the more money Congress has, the more it spends. Nobody really believes that tax revenues will be used to reduce the deficit.

The principal argument in favor of the tax cut is that it will unquestionably create more jobs.

Repeal of the tax rate cut would keep a sizeable tax burden clamped on the small business sector, which is the locomotive of economic recovery. About three-quarters of all businesses in the country aren't corporations. They report their business income through individual tax returns.

Yet 80 per cent of new jobs are generated by firms with 100 or fewer employees. Small businesses produce 48 per cent of the country's output, 43 per cent of the gross national product and more than 50 per cent of all industrial inventions and innovations.

Small business is already taxed at a higher rate than most large corporations. A repeal of the expected July 1 tax rate cut could stall the small business locomotive in its tracks — and thereby nullify an essential factor in the recovery.

Revolving Door Justice

Following comments were written by U.S. Senator Alfonse D'Amato of New York, a member of the U.S. Senate appropriations committee:

John Q. Public could be anybody. On any given day the morning paper will bring him word of shootings, savage slayings, and armed robberies, many not far from John's front door. The evening television news will feature the latest videotape from the scene of that day's most horrible occurrence.

It is no wonder that each night, before retiring, John Q. Public double-checks to see if all doors are locked.

Ironically, those who John and his neighbors fear are free to roam the community and terrorize at will. John's friend, a sergeant on the police force, shrugs his shoulders saying, "We do what we can do," knowing full well that as soon as his men apprehend a suspect, the chances of that person being returned to the streets within a matter of hours are excellent.

No one can argue against the need to preserve our system of justice by which one is innocent until proven guilty and is guaranteed a fair and speedy trial. But this nation must do some deep soul-searching to determine if, in the administration of criminal justice, we have neglected to consider what is just for society.

The victims and cities change, but the stories are the same and the deep-rooted problem of revolving-door justice remains.

In some states, hardened criminals accused of having committed yet another violent crime are released pending trial. It seems to me that we need a form of preventive detention to ensure that individuals are not returned to the community and given an opportunity to commit more crimes or to terrorize those who might testify against them.

Although prison overcrowding is no secret, justice takes a strange turn when space considerations enter into the judge's determination of whether or not someone should be sent to jail for his crime.

We clearly need more prisons. But neither the states nor the federal government have the necessary funds. What is really being said is that there's not enough money to keep criminals off the streets.

A partnership is needed between the state and federal governments to build more prisons, with each sharing in the cost. I've proposed a bill that does this. Currently a number of good ideas are being examined by Congress: preventive detention; a 13-year, no probation and no parole sentence for armed robbery; stiffer penalties for drug trafficking; bail and sentencing reform. The list goes on.

But, when Washington does act, it can only deal with "federal crimes." Penalties for the more prevalent "state crimes," like murder and rape, are decided in state capitals where there are equally long lists of anti-crime bills awaiting action.

What's needed is for Congress and the state legislatures to overhaul the criminal justice system to make sure that those who commit violent crimes are removed from society. This can be done. Our efforts must be given top priority status.

Our families should not be imprisoned within the confines of our homes. Government has a clear responsibility to ensure domestic tranquility.

— A.H. Brown

"The wealth of age comes in having past reality to reflect upon instead of future uncertainty to dream about. It lies in knowing firsthand instead of relying on the word of someone else to make decisions. It comes from having done most of the things you really wanted to do at least once and knowing those you enjoy most and want to do again and again. It lies in wisdom, which can only come from experience. Knowledge is something youth may have as well as old-timers. Wisdom comes from testing mere knowledge and being able to use it effectively."

Borrowed Nonsense:

Noticing a white flag with gold stars on it in the front of the church, the small child asked her father about it. "That's a reminder of those who died in service," he explained. The child remained puzzled. "The 8:30 or the 10:30 service?" she asked.

Wife to Husband: "You keep out of this. When I want your opinion, I'll give it to you."

The young second-term congressman had met a beautiful secretary who he dated for a short time. During a moonlight stroll along the Potomac he asked her to marry him. "Absolutely not!" she replied, and the congressman fell over in a dead faint.

Water was splashed on his face and he came to with the young lady bending over him. "I thought you might be disappointed by my refusal," she said, "but I didn't expect it to affect you this way."

"It wasn't your refusal," the congressman gasped. "This is my third year in Washington and it's the first time I ever got a definite answer on anything!"

Book Reveals Facts About Ag Statistics

Did you know that:

—Total 1980-1981 average Region I crop production for the 10 leading commodities amounted to 4,805,328 tons.

—At 25 tons per semi, it would take 192,213 semis to haul this amount and assuming 150 feet between semis this would equal a single line of semis 7,869 miles long or equivalently a line stretching from Crookston westward to Portland, down to Houston, east to New York City, back to Crookston and then slightly over half way back to Portland.

—Sugarbeets accounted for only four per cent of 1980-1981 Regional harvested acreage, but comprised 40 per cent of 1980-1981 regional crop production on a tonnage basis.

These are among the many findings included in the recently completed "Region I Agricultural Commodity Movements — 1981' which documents the production and marketing of agricultural commodities from Region I.

Predominance of agriculture in the region is shown by the fact that 84 per cent of the total land area in Region I is considered to be land in farms, compared to a statewide figure of 57 per cent of total land in farms.

Eighty-two per cent of the total cash income received by farmers in the Region in 1980 was from crops, 14 per cent from livestock and four per cent from government payments. Comparable statewide breakdown for 1980 was 45 per cent from crops, 54 per cent from livestock and one per cent from government payments.

Wheat accounted for 52 per cent of regional harvested acreage in 1980-1981, followed by barley (17 per cent), sunflowers (14 per cent), oats (five per cent) and sugarbeets (four per cent). In terms of tonnage of production, sugarbeets led the list at 40 per cent of total production, followed by wheat (32 per cent), barley (11 per cent), potatoes (six per cent), and sunflowers (five per cent). Using a five year average price level (1977-1981), the annual average production of the 10 major crops for the region in 1980-1981 represents a total value of approximately 382.5 million dollars.

Due to the currently depressed price levels for ag commodities, a large portion of the regional crop production is being placed in the government reserve programs, hence being stored on farms or in elevators. Nearly 90 per cent of the regional storage capacity of 202,114,000 bushels is located on farms, with storage capacity continually expanding to accommodate the low priced grain.

Country elevator is the primary market outlet for farm producers in the region. Total elevator receipts in region I in 1981 of 94,232,000 bushels were nearly equal to 1981 shipments of 93,228,000 bushels. Wheat accounted for nearly half of total receipts and shipments. Duluth-Superior received 69 per cent of total shipments from the region, with an additional 22 per cent going to the Twin Cities.

Rail movements accounted for 58 per cent of total regional shipments of all commodities. Rail accounted for 84 per cent of all goods moved to the Twin Cities and 53 per cent of goods movement to Duluth-Superior from region I.

In addition to grain shipments throughout the region, a considerable amount of sugarbeets and potatoes are also moved by the regional transportation system. Annual average sugarbeet production for 1980-1981 in region I amounted to approximately 1.9 million tons. Annual average potatoes production for 1980-1981 in the region amounted to nearly 275,000 tons. Approximately 32 per cent of the potatoes grown in the Red River Falley are used for chipping, 21 per cent for French fries and flaking, 25 per cent as fresh and 22 per cent as seed.

Data developed in this study will serve as a sound data base to analyze the impacts which future changes in the production and marketing of agricultural commodities will have on the regional transportation system. Particular highway and railroad segments which are most crucial for agricultural commodity movements can be identified and needed maintenance can be targeted to these areas.
